HIGHBROWS

Phantasy replaced by commonsense is required to overcome the morass which has overtaken the world.

Distinguished men throughout the Universe vie with one another in the absurdity of their remedies. If individually they could hear their own scheme as if it were the creation of someone else they would scoff at the author.

How can they be "brought down" to earth—to commonsense? Our remedy would be to put them seated in OD easy chairs, because these chairs are built on a commonsense plan, and the "contact" would do them good; in fact, if we were to construct our Upholstery as the "highbrows" would reconstruct the world, many people would be "let down."

OD Upholstery "stands up" for those who use it.

THE BEECHES.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

Fagus Sylvatica, the Common Beech, common and all as it is, is one of our finest ornamental hedge plants, and, as a hedge plant, retaining its rich, brown foliage the winter through, and providing welcome shelter. F. S. Purpurea, the Copper Beech, is similarly well behaved, and richer in its winter colour. We have found the advantage of the Beech as a hedge plant in the rather wide area of an exposed kitchen garden, not the least of its good qualities being its amenity to annual clipping, and restraint to a foot in width, if so desired, with such height—say six feet—as suits garden purposes, its root-run being restricted by occasional chopping down with the spade.

ALL Garden Lovers should now plant Hyacinths, Tulips, Daffodils, Crocus, Iris, Anemones, Ranunculi, Freesias, Scillas, Snowdrops, etc. Unique selection of Bulb Bowls and specially prepared Bulb Fibre. Catalogues post free.—Drummond's, Ltd., 58 Dawson street, Dublin. T

POULTRY, CAGE BIRDS, DAIRY.

PROTECTION OF FOWL.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—We have great belief in outdoor exercise when it is possible. Of course, many poultry-keepers have no space for this, but when there are good open runs or free range the birds should be let out during every suitable occasion. But they must not be allowed to get wet or be exposed to wind. They cannot bear wind, and when combined with rain it makes them miserable. To have eggs in winter we must make our birds comfortable, and keep them under conditions that will make them bright and active. Much might be done to have shelters from wind and rain, so that when they are out they could have protection from sudden gusts of wind and showers. Of course, when the weather is very bad they must be shut in.

REGISTRATION OF CLUBS ACT, 1904.
BY THE DISTRICT JUSTICE OF THE COUNTY OF DUBLIN.

TAKE NOTICE that it is my intention to apply to the District Justice of the County of Dublin sitting at Lucan Courthouse on Thursday, the 19th day of November, 1931, at 11 a.m., on behalf of William Francis Dwyer, Secretary of the Hermitage Golf Club, for a Renewal of the Certificate of Registration of the Club Licence attached to the premises known as THE HERMITAGE GOLF CLUB, LUCAN, in the County of Dublin.

HENRY LEMASS, Solicitor, 3 Dame street, Dublin.

NOTICE OF CHARITABLE BEQUEST.

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to the Statute 30 and 31 Victoria, cap. 54, Sec. 19, that the above-named Janet Ritchie Walsh, by her will, dated the 30th day of May, 1931, made the following bequest:—

To the Treasurer for the time being of the Representative Church Body of the Church of Ireland, the sum of one hundred pounds, to be held in trust for the Protestant Church at Castlebar, the amount to be invested, and the income derived therefrom to be paid to the clergyman of the parish for the time being, in memory of her father, the late John Dudgeon.

The said Testatrix appointed Mrs. Margaret Hamilton, of 7 Eaton square, Terenure, in the County of Dublin, widow, and the Revd. Charles Coote Whittaker Duggan, of The Rectory, Leinster road, Rathmines, West, in the County of Dublin, to be Executors and Trustees of her will. The said Testatrix died on the 20th day of June, 1931, and the said will was proved by the said Executors, and Probate thereof was granted to them forth of the Principal Registry of the High Court of Justice, Saorstat Eireann (Probate), on the 12th day of September, 1931.

Dated this 8th day of October, 1931.
J. R. CRESSWELL, Solicitor for said Executors, 69 and 70 Dame street, Dublin.

To the Commissioner of Charitable Donations and Bequests for Ireland, and to others whom it may concern.

STATUTORY NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to the 22nd and 23rd Victoria, Cap. 35, that all persons claiming to be Creditors or otherwise to have any claims or demands against the estate or assets of the said Janet Ritchie Walsh Deceased, who died on the 20th day of June, 1931, are hereby required, on or before the 12th day of November, 1931, to furnish (in writing) the particulars of such claims or demands to the undersigned Solicitor for the Executors of the personal estate of the said Deceased, to whom Probate was granted forth of the Principal Registry of the High Court of Justice, Saorstat Eireann (Probate) on the 12th day of September, 1931. And Notice is hereby further given that, after the 12th day of November, 1931, the said Executors will proceed to distribute the assets of the said Deceased, having regard only to the claims and demands of which notice and particulars shall have been given as aforesaid.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS AND CLAIMANTS.

ATTIWELL HENRY WOOD, late of Cool-Na-Vee, Greystones, County Wicklow, Deceased.

Pursuant to the 22 and 23 Vict., cap. 35, all persons claiming to be Creditors or otherwise to have any claim against the assets of Deceased, who died on the 14th day of August, 1931, are hereby required, on or before the 23rd day of November next, to furnish (in writing) the particulars of such claims to the undersigned Solicitors for the Executor of Deceased, and in default thereof Deceased's assets will be distributed, having regard only to the claims of which particulars shall have been furnished.

THE NATIONAL CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL, HARCOURT STREET, DUBLIN.
(Founded 1821.)

The Committee of Management of the National Children's Hospital held their monthly meeting on Thursday, the 15th inst., the Viscount Powerscourt, K.P., H.M.L., presiding.

Also present:—T. Gillman Moorhead, M.D.; C. J. Macdougald (Hon. Secretary), Dr. Trevor N. Smith, F.R.C.S.; Brian D. Crichton, M.D.; Hugh D. Pack-Beresford, R. Denne Bolton, and the Registrar.

Before proceeding with the business of the day, the Chairman made sympathetic reference to the loss the Committee had recently sustained through the death of Mr. William Ireland, and the following resolution, which was moved from the Chair, was passed in silence, all present standing:—

"The Committee of Management of the National Children's Hospital have learned with deep regret of the death of Mr. William Ireland, who was for many years a member of the Committee, and also one of the three Trustees of the Hospital.

"Mr. Ireland will be sadly missed by the Committee, as he was a most regular attendant and took a great and kindly interest in the hospital.

"The Committee tender to his widow and children their sincere and heartfelt sympathy with them in their great sorrow."

The Chairman also referred to the death of Miss Phoebe Thorn, who had for some years acted as typist and assistant to the Registrar, and the Committee passed a similar resolution expressing their sympathy with her relatives and friends.

The minutes of the previous meeting of the Committee were read, confirmed and signed.

The usual routine business was transacted, and cheques were drawn in payment of the September accounts.

£4	4	0	Torlogh O'Brien, D.L.
£2	0	0	Dr. L. Jacob.
£1	1	0	Mrs. M. Colomb, Harvey and Co., Ltd., Mrs. M. Moyna, Inchicore Manufacturing Co., Ltd.; M. P. Cassidy, John Harvey, D.L.; A. Wilson and Co., Ltd.; E. P. Johnston.
£1	0	0	H. J. Wiley, Brooks, Thomas and Co., Ltd.; E. J. Beaumont-Nesbitt, Miss A. Robertson, Miss M. Leared, Mrs. S Boxwell, Mrs. Zoe Hall.
£0	10	0	Geo. P. A. Colley.
£0	5	0	The Misses Smyth.

Eggs—Mr. Milner.

Flowers—Miss Reid (4 times), Dr. E. J. McKee, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Silver Paper—Miss Purves.

Vegetables—The Hon. Mrs. E. Guinness (4 times).

During the month there were 2,166 out-patients, including Sun-lamp treatment and X-Ray examinations.

The main hospital is at present in the hands of the contractors for long and necessary extensive alterations and repairs, which have already been referred to in the newspapers.

The dispensary is being carried on as usual, and the Registrar's Office open to receive subscriptions, etc., patients' outstanding dues, and correspondence.

Subscriptions, donations and legacies are needed to provide regular annual income to meet ordinary hospital expenditure, and, if possible, to help in further necessary and desirable improvements in the hospital subsidiary buildings, for the benefit of the little patients.

The Registrar will gratefully acknowledge all such, and will gladly send full report to any one interested in the hospital work on application.

The hospital is non-political and non-sectarian.

On inquiry at Jervis street Hospital last night it was stated that James Cahill, 71 Benburb street, Dublin, who received leg injuries as the result of being crushed between a coal lorry and the wall at North Wall yesterday afternoon, was "fairly well."

ROYAL HOSPITAL FOR INCURABLES.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of Management of the Royal Hospital for Incurables was held at the hospital on Thursday, at 9.30 a.m., Sir Walter H. Boyd, Bart., K.C., Vice-Chairman, presiding. Also present:—A. G. Hollinshead, Esq., Hon. Treasurer; Right Rev. Monsignor J. J. Dunne, P.P., V.G., Dean; F. C. Earle Bland, Esq.; E. Clive Brooks, Esq.; Edwin N. Edwards, Esq.; W. H. Fry, Esq.; Sir Joseph Glynn, LL.D.; W. Montgomery, Esq.; H. J. Monahan, Esq., B.L.; T. C. McCormick, Esq.; R. Ryan, Esq.; R. Stephenson, Esq.; R. G. Tomlinson, Esq., and Major Whewell.

Apologies were received from the Chairman, A. T. Collins, Esq.; P. J. Brady, Esq.; J. F. Boydell, Esq., and J. T. Wood Latimer, Esq.

Before proceeding with the business of the day the Chairman made sympathetic reference to the recent death of Sir William Orpen, R.A., and the following resolution, proposed by Major Arthur Whewell and seconded by Raymond Stephenson, Esq., was passed in silence, all present standing:—"The Committee of Management of the Royal Hospital for Incurables desire to place on record their deep regret on the demise of Sir William Orpen, R.A. (a Life Governor of the hospital), and beg to tender to Lady Orpen and relatives their sympathy in their bereavement."

The proceedings of the last meeting were read, confirmed and signed; also those of the Visiting and Finance Committees. On the recommendation of the Finance Committee, cheques amounting to £2,330 6s. 1d. were signed in settlement of quarterly accounts, leaving the large sum of £6,851 9s. 4d. DUE TO THE BANK.

Miss M. Angela-Boland, Miss L. Bradshaw, C. G. Warner, Esq., and P. J. Brady, Esq., having kindly consented to act, were appointed Visiting Governors for the month.

The report books of the Lady Superintendent and Resident Medical Officer were read and approved of. 234 patients in the hospital—99 males and 135 females. The quarterly return of diseases was taken as read.

On the proposal of Mr. A. G. Hollinshead (Hon. Treasurer), seconded by Mr. W. Houghton Fry, it was unanimously resolved that Dr. Cyril H. Adderly be appointed Resident Medical Officer to the hospital.

Read remarks by Visiting Governors' book, which contained the following:—"I visited the hospital several times during the month. I found the patients happy and satisfied. The kitchen, laundry, offices and servant quarters are spotlessly kept. I was greatly struck with the airiness and general cleanliness of the kitchen and bedrooms of the staff. I thought the dinners—meat, vegetables and potatoes—well cooked on the days I inspected.—Signed, Kathleen Cantwell. 10th September, 1931."

The Committee tender their grateful thanks for the following kind contributions received since last meeting:—£10—Sir John P. Griffiths, M.Inst.C.E. £8 8/9—"The Culverwell Gift," per Mrs. E. P. Culverwell. £5 each—W. A. Hamilton, Esq.; Mrs. W. A. Hamilton, G. A. Newsome, Esq. £3 3/—Mrs. Purdon Winter. £2 2/- each—Messrs. Scallan and Co.; Col. the Hon. W. E. SWEEPSTAKE TICKET.

FIGHT FOR £60,000.

SOME AMUSING EVIDENCE.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE MEREDITH.)

Some amusing evidence was given on the resumed hearing of the case of Antonio Apicella and Matteo Constantino, two Italian hairdressers, residing in London, against Emilio Scala, another Italian, a café proprietor, also residing in London; the trustees of the Hospitals Sweepstakes, Prize Money and the Hospitals Committee.

The plaintiffs claim approximately £60,000, to which they say they are entitled as co-owners with Mr. Scala of a ticket which won the first prize in the Grand National sweepstake. The defendant Scala denies that the plaintiffs held the ticket with him, and said that he held the ticket outside the pool in which the plaintiffs alleged it was included.

Mr. Gavan Duffy, K.C.; Mr. T. A. Finlay, K.C., and Miss Phelan (instructed by Messrs. Corrigan and Corrigan) appeared for the plaintiffs; Mr. Wood, K.C.; Mr. FitzGerald, K.C., and Mr. Nolan Whelan (instructed by Messrs. Taylor, Son and Robinson) for the defendant, Emilio Scala; and Mr. Lavery, K.C., and Mr. MacFhionnlaoic (instructed by Messrs. Ruttledge and MacFhionnlaoic) for the other defendants.

THE EXPLANATION.

Mrs. Apicella was recalled by Mr. Justice Meredith and questioned about the agreement in which the plaintiffs say the winning ticket was included. She said that she put the word "signed" in the agreement of her own motion immediately after she had filled in the numbers and the rest of the agreement, without any suggestion from Mr. Scala.

Mr. Justice Meredith—Will you tell me why you did that of your motion on that occasion and did not put it at the bottom of the earlier agreement in January? I cannot give you an explanation of that at all.

Shall I give you an explanation, and give you an opportunity of saying whether you accept it? When you were writing the first agreement, that was all for Mr. Scala, and when you came to the second agreement, that was an agreement that you were wanting yourself to get from him. You were taking things more into your own hands, and it was because you took things into your hands that you wrote the word "signed"; do you think that is the correct explanation or not?—I do, my lord.

Witness agreed that her mind was more alert on the second occasion, and when asked why, when her mind was so alert, she did not suggest at once to Mr. Scala, "What about the additional ticket?" (the winning ticket) she replied that she was just waiting for Mr. Scala to give in the ticket, and wrote "signed" while waiting for him to produce it.

Mr. Justice Meredith—In writing the word "signed" you did not leave any place for the additional number: that is what is rather sticking in my mind.

Witness—The paper was too small.

A SUPPER IN MARCH.

Gaetana Lucino, a glove manufacturer, residing in Naples, was examined by Mr. Gavan Duffy, and said that every time he came to London he saw Mr. Apicella, whom he had known for some years. On the 18th of last February he met the plaintiffs while in London, and heard them talking about the Irish sweepstake. At a supper in Mr. Apicella's at the beginning of March he was shown an agreement, which he now recognised. It was signed by the plaintiffs and Mr. Scala. He wished the three of them good-luck before he returned to Naples.

Cross-examined by Mr. Wood, he said that he did not send Apicella congratulations after the race. He was in England again in July, and saw Apicella nearly every night, but they did not speak of the sweepstake.

Pressed on this point, the witness asked counsel to "explain better"; and having been asked why he did not speak to Apicella about the sweepstake, he said that he did not understand it, adding: "What we do not want to talk about we do not understand."

Mr. Justice Meredith—Some question you do not like you do not understand? (Laughter.)

The witness was questioned about what was provided to drink at the supper in Mr. Appicella's, and said that he only drank coffee.

SAT AND LISTENED.

Mr. Wood—Nothing in it?—Only coffee—black coffee—for me.

Mr. Wood—May I take it now that you always take a liquer in your coffee?—You said that; I did not say that. (Laughter.)

May I take it that when you can get it you take it?—If I get it, yes.

Witness, answering further questions, said that when he got his supper he sat and listened to the talk, but he could only remember what was his own business.

Mr. Justice Meredith—When you get your supper you have no further interest. (Laughter.) Unless somebody wanted a pair of gloves—that would waken you up?—Yes. (Laughter.)

Joseph Romaneo, examined by Miss Phelan, said that the plaintiffs had told him about the winning ticket, and that he wished them good luck and told them that he hoped the "gee-gee" would arrive.

Sidney Henry Matts, a manufacturer's agent, of Surrey, said that he saw the agreement produced in a club in London.

"THE TABLE JUMPED."

Mrs. Florence Lewis said that she lived near the Costantinos' house in Walthamstow. On Sunday, February 8th, she was asked by Mrs. Costantino to borrow a three-legged table, as Mr. Scala was going to try some "spiritualism." She got the table at her mother's house, and when she brought it into the room Mr. Scala dimmed the lights, and he stood at the back and called out in Italian for some "spirits," the only name she remembered being Rasputin. (Laughter.)

"I was laughing," the witness said, "and Mr. Scala said to me, 'Don't laugh or the spirit won't come in.'" (Laughter.)

Mr. Justice Meredith—And did the "spirit" come in? I got serious when Mr. Scala was able to tell what money Mr. Apicella had in his pocket. I thought the "spirit" told him. (Laughter.) Mr Apicella then asked Mr. Scala to inquire of the spirits if they would win the Irish sweepstake, and Mr. Scala called on a spirit named Paganini, and told him: "Raise the table twice if we are to win and once if we are to lose." (Laughter.)

And what happened? It jumped twice, and they all congratulated themselves. (Laughter.)

The witness next gave evidence about seeing the agreement, and when it was shown to her she said: "I hope Mr. Scala will win," but she was not very sincere in this, as she had two tickets of her own in the sweep, and had hopes of one of them winning. (Laughter.)

F. Simeone, who was sworn in the Fascisti fashion, with hand raised, corroborated the evidence about the signing of the agreement, and the adding of the number of the winning ticket at the end on the dictation of Mr. Scala.

SAW NO SPIRIT.

Vincent Vecchione, who was examined by Mr. Gavan Duffy, gave evidence about what was stated to have taken place in Mr. Constantino's house on the 8th February, and said that the three-legged table that had been mentioned was split across. Mr. Scala called Rasputin and said, "Listen to it knocking." "I tapped one of the legs of the table with my foot," said the witness, "and they thought it was a spirit tapping."

Mr. Gavan Duffy—They thought it was Rasputin, did they?—Yes; he said, "Listen to it knocking." (Laughter.)

Witness went on to say that when asked what he was laughing at he told them what he had done. Mr. Scala also called Paganini, and as Mr. Scala said Paganini liked music, someone got a record of the Dead March and put it on the gramaphone. (Loud laughter.)

Mr. Gavan Duffy—Did you play any pranks on Paganini?—Not that I remember.

Did he appear and do his duty?—I only saw the faces of the people in the room. I did not see any spirit. There was a spirit on the sideboard—a bottle of whiskey. (Laughter.)

Other witnesses having given evidence,

The further hearing was adjourned until next Tuesday.

New Zealand's best wishes for a speedy recovery from his illness have been telegraphed to Lord Jellicoe by the Prime Minister, Mr. Forbes. Lord Jellicoe was Governor-General of the Dominion from 1920 to 1924.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.

SWEEPSTAKE TICKET COUNTERFOILS.

HEAD POSTMAN CHARGED.

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN.)

Stephen Connolly (38), described as a head postman, of Kickham road, Inchicore, was put forward charged with the theft on 12th inst. of a postal packet containing a postal order for 20s., addressed to the Hospitals' Trust Fund, Earlsfort terrace. Mr. George Reid, solicitor to the Post Office, prosecuted, while Mr. E. H. Burne, solicitor, appeared for the defendant.

Mr. Reid said that there was now a further charge against the defendant of having illegally in his possession the sum of £35, for which he was unable to give a satisfactory explanation. He was also charged with other alleged thefts of postal packets.

Mr. T. G. Malone, Post Office Investigation Department, said that he interviewed the defendant in the Pearse street office and asked him to turn out his pockets. Connolly produced a number of Bank of England notes and some Free State notes, and, in a statement, said that he had changed one large note in a bank in College Green. He denied having taken any of the money, but made no reference to some of the specific charges.

When other clothing of the defendant was searched, five envelopes were found. Connolly then admitted having opened four of the letters and taken their contents. He said that he did not know why he stole the letters.

Mr. Reid said that one of the letters contained counterfoils of tickets for the November Handicap Sweepstake.

At this point Mr. Burne intimated that to save trouble his client had decided to plead guilty to the charges.

Mr. Patrick Waldron, Chief Superintendent, Sorting Office, said that the defendant was mostly employed at indoor work, which would allow him to handle a large amount of postal matter. He had been in the postal service since 1907, and had a good record.

Replying to Mr. Burne, the witness said that he was aware that the defendant's wife was confined in a mental home.

Mr. Reid said that, with one exception, the letters had been sent under cover, and it would not be possible to trace the senders. In one instance where the sender was known evidence would be given.

Miss Burke, Arbour Hill, identified a letter which she said she had posted in Dublin on a recent date.

Mr. Saurin, Hospitals' Trust, said that the letter tested by Miss Burke had not been delivered to him. He had not received four other letters which were shown him by Mr. Reid.

The accused man was returned for trial, bail being allowed.

CITY BURGLARIES.

FINGER PRINTS ON BROKEN GLASS.

William O'Beirnes (24), Cathedral lane, appeared on remand, charged with breaking and entering the licensed premises of James Bambrick, Patrick street, on 4th inst., and attempting to murder him. There were other charges of breaking and entering houses at Dolphin's Barn, Bishop street, Rathmines, Blackrock and Synge place, off South Circular road.

Thomas Briggs, Ontario terrace, Rathmines, gave evidence that on the 20th ult. he found one of the windows in his office at Grantham street broken, and papers inside disarranged.

Richard Macken said that he found that 25s. in silver and 10s. 8d. in stamps were missing from his office in Synge place on 31st May last. On the 21st July he found glass broken in one of the windows, and £1 4s. 0½d. stolen.

The accused man said that he knew nothing about the charge.

Guard 96 A said that he was on duty in James's street on the 21st July. When passing Mrs. Quinn's shop he heard a noise, and, looking through the window, saw the prisoner inside. At that moment the prisoner looked out, and, seeing the witness, ran out by the back door. The witness went round by Echlin street, crossed over a wall six feet high, and then on to the flat roof of a shed, and finally on to the roof at the back of a pork shop, where he found a window open. The prisoner had got through this window, and had escaped by the time the witness got there.

Mr. Hannan remanded the defendant for a week in custody.

HATCHET ATTACK.

FATHER OF DEAD BOY IN THE DOCK.

Bernard Price (42), a brass worker, of Britain lane, appeared on remand, charged with the murder of his four-year-old son, Stanley, and with the attempted murder of his daughter, Annette (17), at their home last Tuesday morning.

Mr. James Cawley (instructed by Mr. W. S. Barrett) appeared for the defendant, who appeared dazed.

Superintendent O'Connell said that he saw the boy's body at Jervis street Hospital on the 14th inst. There were wounds on his head and body. When arrested and charged with the murder, the prisoner said: "I have nothing to say."

The Superintendent then applied for a remand for a week, which was granted, Mr Cawley having no objection.

CHARGE AGAINST SERVANT.

When Kathleen Lennon (21), a domestic servant, of Green road, Blackrock, was put forward charged with concealment of birth, Inspector Wolfe told how he found the dead body of a male child under a press in a room of the house where the girl was employed. The body was wrapped in paper. There were no marks of violence.

Dr. Joseph D. Murray, House Surgeon, St. Michael's Hospital, Kingstown, gave it as his opinion that the baby died from want of skilled attention at birth.

Mr. Hannan returned the defendant for trial, and allowed bail.

COUNCILLOR'S APPEAL DISMISSED.

NO FOUNDATION FOR ALLEGATIONS.

(BEFORE JUDGE ROCHE.)

James Gately, a member of the Dublin Corporation, appealed against a fine of 40s. recorded against him by the District Justice, on a charge of having used obscene language in a public place, near Fairview, a couple of weeks ago.

The evidence for the prosecution was that Mr. Gately had an altercation with a man named Gaffney, a publican, on ground to the rear of Fairview avenue, concerning the erection of a hoarding near the appellant's garage. Guard Foley, who came on the scene and arrested Mr. Gately, said that Mr. Gately called him a "black and tan," and said that he would get him dismissed next day.

Mr. Gately, in evidence, denied that he used either profane or obscene language on the occasion, and said that the Guard arrived on the scene with Gaffney, and that the Guard said that if he hit Gaffney he would "knock his —— head off." The Guard was, he said, under the influence of drink at the time.

The Judge dismissed the appeal, affirmed the conviction, and said that there was no foundation for the suggestion that the Guard or Mr. Gaffney were under the influence of drink on the occasion.

Mr. G. O'Sullivan (instructed by Messrs. G. Byrne and Co.) appeared for the appellant.

DRIVER'S LICENCE WITHHELD PENDING APPEAL.

Patrick Warren, taxi-cab driver, St. Mary's terrace, Mountjoy street, appealed against a conviction and fine of £10, and the suspension of his driving licence for a period of six months in the District Court, on a charge of dangerous driving in Thomas street on August 10th.

The appellant complained that he had been deprived of his licence for two months pending the appeal. He had applied for it after having lodged notice of appeal, but the District Justice (Mr. Little) declined to give it to him, and his solicitor had applied for it without success.

The Judge said that the refusal meant that the appellant was penalised, whether he was guilty or innocent. For two months the man was deprived of his licence, and from whom could he recover his loss? In his (the judge's) opinion, the proceedings were all wrong, and, under the circumstances, he reduced the fine from £10 to 10s., because it had been proved that his driving had caused no danger to the public. If there was any danger it was only to the appellant himself. He also reduced the term of suspension to two months, which had just elapsed, so that the appellant could have his licence to-day.

Mr. W. O'B. Fitzgerald (instructed by Mr. James Fagan) appeared for the appellant. Mr. Clarke conducted the case for the prosecution.

'BUSMAN AND GUARD'S INJURY.

John Murphy, driver of a Carmel 'bus, appealed from a conviction and fine of £5 and an endorsement of his licence in the District Court for dangerous driving in High street on the 24th of last June.

Guard Broaders (122 A), who was on traffic duty, stated that Murphy had cut in too closely, and the 'bus struck him and injured his hip to such an extent that he had to be off duty for three days. The 'bus did not stop.

The defence was that the 'bus did stop, and that there was nothing to indicate that the Guard had been struck. The sudden appearance of a lorry with a trailer had forced the 'bus to cut in close to the Guard.

The appeal was allowed, and the conviction was reversed.

Mr. Clarke (Chief State Solicitor's Office) conducted the case for the prosecution, and Mr. Sainsbury (instructed by Mr. W. J. Keery) appeared for the appellant.

CASE AGAINST A GIRL MOTHER.

DECISION OF HIGH COURT.

NO COSTS AGAINST THE DISTRICT JUSTICE.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE.)

An application was made by Mr. Roe (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) on behalf of the Attorney-General for an order to make absolute a conditional order of certorari directed to District Justice Goff, Dundalk, to bring up for the purpose of being quashed, an order made by him on the 15th July last in relation to Rose Anne Finnegan, of Toprass, Dundalk; and for an order to make absolute a conditional order for mandamus directing the District Justice, on production before him of Rose Anne Finnegan, to hear such evidence as might be preferred against her, and to take depositions and determine whether she should be returned for trial.

Mr. McGuckin (instructed by Messrs. James O'Connor and Co.) appeared for the District Justice, who, in an affidavit stated that he submitted himself to the jurisdiction of the Court.

Mr. Desmond O'Hagan, solicitor, appeared for Rose Anne Finnegan.

RETURNED FOR TRIAL.

Mr. Justice O'Byrne said that it appeared that this girl was brought before the District Justice on July 15, 1931, on a charge that she did, on June 11, 1931, unlawfully kill and slay an infant of which she was the mother, and that, on June 15, she concealed the birth of the child. On those charges evidence was produced before the District Justice, and he and the State Solicitor both assumed that the first charge brought against the accused girl was a charge of murder, and, having heard evidence, the District Justice received informations, and returned the accused girl for trial to the Central Criminal Court. Subsequently the matter came before the Attorney-General, who considered that the charge was one, not of murder, but of manslaughter, and upon that basis, considering that the District Justice had no power to return the girl for trial to the Central Criminal Court, directed that she should be discharged from custody. She was discharged, and immediately re-arrasted and brought before the District Justice, charged with murder and concealment of birth. The District Justice refused to take evidence, being of the opinion that the girl had already been returned for trial on that charge, and, considering that she was a young girl, taking depositions would cause her a great deal of trouble.

CONSTRUING THE CHARGE.

Apart altogether from the question of whether certiorari was available for the purpose of quashing the order made by the District Justice on July 15, 1931, his lordship had to consider whether or not any object would be served by making absolute an order for certiorari. It seemed to him that the order had been completely spent, and that no useful purpose would be served in quashing it.

The real question he had to consider was whether or not he should make the order absolute as far as it directed a mandamus to the District Justice to take evidence against this girl, and to return her for trial if the evidence warranted such a course.

In construing the charge of July 15th it seemed to him that he should construe it in the manner most favourable to the accused. The words were "unlawfully and wilfully kill and slay." It did not contain the word "murder," nor was it stated that the killing was "with malice aforethought." In those circumstances, construing such a charge, he was of opinion that it did not charge the girl with murder, but with manslaughter.

SUBSEQUENTLY ARRESTED.

Taking that view of the case, it seemed to him that the District Justice had no power to return the girl originally for trial to the Central Criminal Court, and that the order which purported to do so was, in effect, null. The girl was subsequently arrested and brought before the District Justice on a clear charge of murder. In his opinion, the District Justice had never taken evidence on such a charge, and had a right to do so. He would now make absolute the conditional order in so far as issuing it to the District Justice, directing him to hear such evidence as might be adduced in such charge against the accused girl, and to take evidence and determine whether or not she should be returned for trial. He discharged the conditional order for certiorari and made absolute the conditional order for mandamus.

In reply to Mr. Justice O'Byrne, Mr. Roe said that he did not ask for costs against the District Justice. The mistake originally was on the part of those making the charge, and on the second occasion it was on the part of the District Justice.

Mr. Justice O'Byrne—I am greatly in sympathy with the District Justice. I think he was misled, and when the case came before him in the first instance it was construed as a charge of murder, and he treated it accordingly. Considering all the circumstances of the case, I think that the Attorney-General should pay the costs of the District Justice.

BUTTER MARKETING.

TRIBUNAL AND WITNESSES.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE.)

Motions were listed in the matter of the Butter Marketing Tribunal against Edward Farrell, Drombana; Henry Nash, Oola; John Noonan, Liscarroll, Mallow; Patrick McGrath, Solohead; John McGrath, Lisnagry; Edward O'Callaghan, Tipperary, and Patrick Coleman, Nenagh, in regard to alleged refusal to appear before the Tribunal with books and records of the creamery companies by whom they were employed.

Mr. Lynch, K.C., who, with Mr. M. J. Connolly (instructed by Mr. J. J. Nash), appeared for the defendants, asked that the cases should be allowed to stand for two months, remarking that it was probable that the parties would come to some arrangement.

Mr. Roe (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor), who appeared for the Tribunal, agreed.

Mr. Justice O'Byrne took the cases out of the list, with liberty to re-enter.

IRISH FAIRS.

MACROOM (Co. Cork).—Average-sized cattle fair, the approximate numbers on offer being:—Store cattle, 460; fat cattle, 94; springers and milch cows, 90; calves, 320. Some 160 lambs, 240 store sheep, 70 fat sheep, 50 young and 150 store pigs were also offered. The cattle fair was composed chiefly of young shorthorn stock. Exporters and home buyers were well represented, and all classes of young store cattle with condition and quality met an improved demand; aged stores sold slowly at late rates. Fat cattle met a brisk local inquiry. Springers and milch cows met a steady sale at values showing an upward tendency. All classes of sheep and lambs sold slowly at lower prices. Young and store pigs met a moderate request at reduced figures.

Range of prices per head:—Dropped calves, £1 15s. to £3; other calves, under six months, £3 to £4. Young cattle, six to 12 months, £4 5s. to £7 10s. Store cattle, one to two years, £6 5s. to £12 10s.; two to three years, £9 10s. to £15 10s.; three years and over, £14 to £15 10s. Fat cattle, under two years, £12 10s. to £14 10s.; two to three years, £13 to £15; three years and over, £13 10s. to £15 15s.; cows and bulls, £5 to £16 10s. Springers (cows and heifers), £12 10s. to £23. Milch cows (down calved), £14 to £21. Store lambs (under 12 months), long wools, 17s. 6d. to 22s. 6d.; fat lambs (under 12 months), long wools, 20s. to 35s. Store sheep, breeding ewes, long wools, 40s. to 50s.; mountain, 15s. to 25s.; other ewes and wethers, one to two years, mountain, 12s. 6d. to 22s. 6d. Fat sheep—wethers, etc., one to two years, long wools, 42s. 6d. to 50s.; two years and over, long wools, 35s. to 47s. 6d. Young pigs, under 12 weeks, 12s. 6d. to 17s. 6d.; store pigs, 12 weeks to four months, 20s. to 30s.; four months and over, 32s. 6d. to 52s. 6d.

CAVAN.—Average-size fair, the approximate numbers on offer being:—Store cattle 710, fat cattle 110, springers and milch cows 500, calves 40, lambs 30, fat sheep 30, and young pigs 300. The cattle fair was composed chiefly of Shorthorn stock. Buyers were well represented, and all well-bred store cattle with condition were in request at slightly higher prices; thin and rough lots were hard to cash. Fat cattle were in brisk request, and the majority were cleared. Springers and milch cows were in demand at current quotations. All classes of sheep and lambs were sold slowly at reduced prices. Young pigs met a moderate demand, but a good clearance was effected.

Range of prices per head:—Dropped calves, £2 15s. to £3 10s.; young cattle, 6 to 12 months, £5 to £9 5s.; store cattle, 1 to 2 years, £7 10s. to £13; 2 to 3 years, £10 10s. to £15; 3 years and over, £14 10s. to £16; fat cattle, 2 to 3 years, £14 to £18; cows and bulls, £9 to £17; springers (cows and heifers), £13 10s. to £21; milch cows (down calved), £12 to £19; fat lambs (under 12 months), long wools, 28s. to 40s.; fat sheep (wethers, etc.), 2 years and over, long wools, 35s. to 42s.; young pigs, under 12 weeks, 28s. to 40s.

ROSCREA (Co. Tipperary)—Average-sized cattle fair, the approximate numbers on offer being:—Store cattle, 685; fat cattle, 75; springers and milch cows, 55; calves, 80; some 215 lambs, 80 store and 50 fat sheep were also offered. The cattle fair was composed of first and second class Shorthorn, Hereford and Aberdeen-Angus stock. Store cattle met a slow trade at values tending lower. Fat cattle met a moderate trade, but the majority were, however, cleared. Springers and milch cows were in request and a good clearance was effected at high prices. Sheep and lambs sold slowly, but practically all were cashed at somewhat reduced figures. Range of prices per head:—Dropped calves, £2 5s. to £3; other calves under 6 months, £4 10s. to £5 10s. Young cattle: 6 to 12 months, 1st class, £7 to £9 10s. Store cattle: 1 to 2 years, £7 10s. to £12 10s.; 2 to 3 years, £10 15s. to £15 5s.; 3 years and over, £12 10s to £16 15s. Fat cattle: 3 years and over, 2nd class, £17 to £20 10s.; cows and bulls, 2nd class, £13 10s. to £17. Springers (cows and heifers), 2nd class, £16 10s. to £21. Milch cows (down calved), 2nd class, £15 10s. to £20. Store lambs (under 12 months), 21s. 6d. to 28s. Fat lambs (under 12 months), long wools, 29s. to 33s. Store sheep: breeding ewes, long wools, 34s. to 42s. Store sheep: other ewes and wethers, 1 to 2 years, long wools, 30s. to 36s. Fat sheep: wethers, etc., 1 to 2 years, long wools, 41s. to 46s.

YESTERDAY'S DEBATE IN THE DAIL

CONSTITUTION BILL TO OPERATE TO-DAY.

ALL STAGES PASSED IN THE DAIL.

GOVERNMENT'S BIG MAJORITIES IN THE SENATE.

THE Constitution (Amendment No. 17) Bill completed its final stage at yesterday's sitting of the Dail, after which it was sent to the Senate, and when the Upper House rose last night the Committee stage had been passed. The progress of the bill was more rapid than in the Dail, and it is expected that it will leave the House for the Governor-General's signature at half-past one o'clock to-day.

The final hours of the debate in the Dail were marked by heated interchanges, which were absent from the discussions on Wednesday and Thursday, and once or twice excitement ran high when allegations were made against or by Ministers.

During the progress of the bill through the Senate Mr. Blythe stated that the military tribunals would not always sit in private, and that legal assistance could be provided for those who were charged before them.

President Cosgrave announced that the bill would be law to-day.

AT the sitting of the House at 10.30 a.m., President COSGRAVE formally moved the report stage of the Constitution (Amendment No. 17) Bill.

Mr. AIKEN (F.F., Louth), said that to fully understand the present situation it was necessary to bear in mind certain historical facts. In Elizabeth's time Carew sought to create disturbance and bloodshed among the Irish in order to further the policy of his Government in Ireland. That had been the traditional British policy in Ireland ever since. At the time of the Treaty he (Mr. Aiken) would have liked to have surrounded the Dail, and imprison the deputies there until they arrived at some solution that would save the country from war. When the Army representatives met he did all in his power to keep them together until the Dail would frame the Constitution. He opposed the idea of holding an Army convention until the Dail should have framed that Constitution. He remained under the Dail Minister for Defence, and did everything possible to get the Army to obey the Dail Minister. About the month of May, in 1922, when the Republican forces in the North were endeavouring to protect the Northern Nationalists, he and some other Army Officers, feeling that, owing to their being away from the disputes in the South, they were able to form a clear conception of the direction in which events were drifting, came to Dublin to endeavour to secure peace.

As a result of conferences they held with the leaders of the various parties here the Pact was drawn up. It was his belief that the Pact would have secured peace in this country were it not for the unfortunate killing of Sir Henry Wilson, which gave the British the excuse for again interfering in furtherance of their traditional policy laid down by Carew. In the North they created bloodshed between Catholic and Protestant. Personally, he did all in his power to prevent the civil war in the South, and his efforts led to his being imprisoned. He then appealed to the Provisional Government to declare to Great Britain that peace could not be obtained, and that the Treaty could not be put through unless the oath of allegiance for deputies was abolished.

A PEACE TREATY.

At the end of the civil war the I.R.A. and the Republican Government put forward proposals for peace which were unanimously agreed to by the representatives of the Army and the organisation. These proposals were turned down. He had always regretted the civil war. He knew perfectly well that it only played into the English hands. He knew that the majority of the men who fought on the Free State side in the civil war had no thought that they were fighting to uphold the British policy in this country. He knew that perfectly well. He might have said hard things about them at the time, but, while they had bitter thoughts of the Free State Army, he always realised that fact.

If he had his way he would call a conference, such as he had helped to call at the time of the pact of representatives of all parties, political and military, in this country, and, perhaps, also representatives of the different Church bodies; and he would put it to them that they should sign a treaty for peace between Irishmen for all time something on these lines:—

"We hereby pledge ourselves to the honour of God and the glory of Ireland to use all our influence to secure national agreement for all time by all Irish citizens to the following:—

"(1) That no Irish citizen shall use arms or violence of any description against another for any purpose whatsoever, except to secure obedience by all the citizens to the laws made by Dail Eireann, which should consist of representatives of the Irish people who are elected on adult suffrage, and who shall pledge themselves to carry out the will of the majority of the Irish people without faith or fealty, rent or render to any power under Heaven except God above.

"(2) That all arms shall be under control of the Dail, which pledges itself as in No. 1.

"(3) That the social relations between Irishmen shall be governed by the principles outlined by the Pope in his latest Encyclical.

"(4) That no Irish citizen shall be a member of any secret society of any description."

FIGHTING BATTLES WITH WORDS

He thought that such a scheme as he had outlined would meet with the general approval of all Irishmen, and bring permanent peace to the country. He did not want people who had voted for the bill in the House to go home feeling that the position in the country would be as insecure as it had been if they passed the Public Safety Act. Everyone wished that Irishmen in future would fight their battles with words. They would like to see the national energy directed to the economic and financial problems facing the country.

MINISTER HITS OUT.

MR. DE VALERA AND THE PRESIDENT.

Mr. MULCAHY, Minister for Local Government, said that he would like to know what there was in the statement made by the President on Wednesday that prevented Deputy Aiken making on Wednesday evening the speech that he had just delivered.

Mr. DERRIG (F.F., Carlow-Kilkenny)—Did not the Minister for Justice say that he refused to consider the question of a conference until Labour and Fianna Fail came together on the matter.

Mr. O'CONNELL (Lab., Mayo, South) said that representatives of the Labour Party asked for an interview with the President to see if it would be possible to get the three parties together at a conference. The Labour Party had already seen the Fianna Fail leaders, and they had expressed their willingness to go to the conference. The President however, would only intimate that the two other parties must have a formula that they would put to the conference, and that he should get his bill through in any case.

Mr. MULCAHY said that because of that they were treated to the case made against the bill in the last two days—a case of personal abuse against members of the Executive Council.

"President Cosgrave is a coward; the Minister for Agriculture is full of hatred for his former leader; I am the organiser of secret societies against the edicts of the Catholic Church;" the Minister proceeded, "The murders of Ryan and Curtin, Armstrong and others, were excused as being unreasonable. Deputy Aiken does strike a particular note this morning, if there is any sincerity in it. Does Deputy de Valera withdraw the charge of cowardice that he made against the President last night?

Mr. DE VALERA—I will reply to that.

PREPARED TO WITHDRAW.

The MINISTER—The deputy will not withdraw it?

Mr. DE VALERA—I am prepared to do that; it was my intention before this sitting ended to ask for permission to apologise for having imputed cowardice to anybody. I will do it now. There is no charge that it is so easy to level and so difficult to disprove as the charge of cowardice; and there is no charge so unfair, because it is very difficult to know the motives that inspire a man's action. I was stung into a retort because a lie was used here that has been used as propaganda against me—that I was absent from the country during the Black and Tan time. Time after time I have stated that I came home from America at the time that Cork was burning, and was here during the severe part of the Black and Tan time, and I defy anyone to say that I neglected a single act or a single duty necessary for the filling of my office.

I wanted to make the apology, because I wanted to retract the imputation of cowardice, because even though there has been a long slavery of our people I do not think that personal cowardice is a fault of ours. The President denied the charge, but he said that from personal knowledge on my part I knew that it was false. I did not know that it was false. When I came home from America representations were made to me that I should remove the then Minister for Local Government from office, as he had deserted his post.

Mr. MULCAHY—Who informed the deputy of that?

Mr. DE VALERA—I was informed——

SPEAKER INTERVENES.

The SPEAKER said that the question of a particular statement was involved, and he would like that Deputy de Valera would keep to his statement within the narrowest possible limits and deal with the particular statement made on the previous night.

Mr. MULCAHY—I have the statement here.

The SPEAKER—There is no use in having heated exchanges between deputies. I heard the statement, and I would like if we could keep to it.

Mr. MULCAHY—I have been on my feet and I gave way. The statement was made by Deputy de Valera that the President of the Executive Council ran away and that he called him back.

Mr. DE VALERA—I wanted to make a fair statement—fair to the President and to myself. I want to deal with the charge that I knowingly imputed cowardice to the President; that I made a statement that I knew to be false. I am guilty of hastily retorting, and imputing cowardice to the President, but I did not know that the charge was false. I deny that I made it knowing that it was false, and I make that explanation in fairness to the President and myself.

The SPEAKER—This is simply a question of fact—the deputy said that he recalled the President—does he withdraw that?

Mr. DE VALERA—This is not a question in which a simple "yes" or "no" will meet the point.

The SPEAKER—The President denied that he was in England at the time.

Mr. DE VALERA—I said that whether the President was in England or not is not a matter of my personal knowledge.

The SPEAKER—The deputy said that he called him back.

AN ORDER TO ATTEND.

Mr. DE VALERA—I gave orders that he should attend the next meeting of the Cabinet, and the intention of my order was to call him back.

Mr. MULCAHY—The facts are that the deputy said that the President ran away, and that he called him back. The President was not absent from any meeting of the Cabinet except the meeting of 29th June, 1920, when he was in prison.

Mr. DE VALERA—I did not say anything about a Cabinet meeting last night; I said that he deserted his post

Mr. MULCAHY—The President was charged with cowardice, and that was one of the deputy's contributions to bringing about the spirit of co-operation, and the second contribution of the deputy is that he charges me with having, contrary to Catholic principles, organised the I.R.B. Will the deputy withdraw that?

Mr. DE VALERA—Everyone in the House knows perfectly well what I said—I said that it was in the reports.

THE I.R.B. AT FRONGOCH.

Mr. G. BOLAND (F.F., Roscommon), rising to his feet, said to Mr. Mulcahy: "I say that you organised the I.R.B. at Frongoch. I was there at the time, and you started the whole thing, with a whole bunch around you. I organised a group of truthful men against your cursed work. You afterwards suggested poisoning the British troops. I know the facts inside out, and I know you.

The SPEAKER—I have some little knowledge of these things, too——.

Mr. G. BOLAND—I know you since you were a kid. I know every one of you inside out, and you know me, too.

The SPEAKER—One of the things that has done a great deal to oil the machinery of this House is the fact that Deputy Boland has known me since I was a kid. At another time I said that if the history of this country in the last ten years was going to be judged by any tribunal, the House over which I have the honour to preside would be the worst tribunal that could be conceived or formed for that purpose.

Mr. MULCAHY said that Deputy Boland said that he knew all about it, and he brought there Deputy Geoghegan and put the cloak of Wolfe Tone about him ——.

Mr. BOLAND—Deputy Geoghegan never claimed to have anything to do with Wolfe Tone. (Laughter.)

Mr. MULCAHY—And Michael Collins cannot wear the robe of Tom Clarke, because the Deputies say that there is a tradition in Ireland that cannot wipe it out.

Mr. BOLAND—Sit down; you ought to be ashamed to mention his name.

MINISTER'S DENIAL.

Mr. MULCAHY—I have been accused of organising the I.R.B. I deny that I ever asked any man to join the I.R.B.

Mr. BOLAND—I know that you did. You tried to start it in Frongoch.

Mr. MULCAHY—And we are charged with organising secret societies contrary to Catholic principles.

Continuing, the Minister said that they had an Army subservient to the people. If there was any man in this country who should not stoop to what Deputy de Valera stooped in that debate it was Deputy de Valera.

Mr. DE VALERA—I am heartily ashamed that I said a word about cowardice.

Mr. BOLAND—Don't make your confessions to him.

There was considerable excitement after the exchanges, and several deputies shouted remarks across the House.

Mrs. COLLINS-O'DRISCOLL (Govt., Dublin N.) said that no one had interrupted Mr. de Valera, no matter how the feelings of those listening to him were outraged by his references to the living and the dead, and the Minister should be listened to in silence.

The Minister soon after finished his speech.

LABOUR LEADER'S APPEAL.

Mr. O'CONNELL (Lab., Mayo), said that, speaking at Castlebar on Sunday last, he appealed for a conference of all parties in the House. In making that appeal his main purpose was to avoid what they had been listening to for the past few days. Things happened in 1922 and 1925, but what had they to do with the present position?

Mr. McENTEE (F.F., Dublin South)—They were the origin of it.

Mr. O'CONNELL — Yes, but in God's name let us forget them.

Mr. O'CONNELL, continuing, said that he believed that some good would come out of the debate. Deputies de Valera and Aiken had made their positions clear, and that satisfied him. They had it now clear that, so far as every party in the House was concerned, all agreed that there should be only one army, and that under the control of the elected representatives of the people in the Dail. He said that the manner in which the Minister for Defence received Mr. de Valera's speech last night was regrettable. The Minister had said it was blackguardly.

Mr. FITZGERALD—Hear, hear.

Mr. O'CONNELL said that it was worthy of the Minister for Defence, but it was not the way a Minister should receive a speech of the Leader of the Opposition. It was that attitude of mind that had been responsible for the introduction of one of the most drastic measures ever introduced in any country in an effort to secure peace. There were times when it required more moral courage to be weak than to be brave.

Mr. MULCAHY—Why was it not made on Wednesday?

Mr. O'CONNELL said that he agreed, but a good thing was never too late.

Mr. O'CONNELL (continuing) said they were pretending to be strong because they were afraid to appear weak.

Mr. MULCAHY—Are we to give way to the murderers of Ryan and Curtin?

Mr. CORRY (F.F., Cork)—The least said about murders by the Minister the better.

Mr. O'CONNELL said that if the murderers of Ryan and Curtin were caught let them be executed by all means. He went on to say he was concerned only with the future, and if Mr. Aiken or anybody else suggested means of securing peace, not through fear of the law, but out of respect for it, those suggestions ought to be taken up, and no method ought to be lost sight of and no avenue left unexplored.

PREVENTIVE METHODS.

Nothing could justify murder, but it was not he alone who saw that if they had certain conditions in the country those conditions were breeding grounds for disorder, and if they wanted to remove disorder they must remove the breeding grounds. They should not concentrate entirely on curative methods, but on preventive methods, also. He appealed to the Government not to throw aside the gesture of Mr. Aiken. To him the terms sounded sufficiently good as a basis of discusion.

Last night, he said, Cardinal MacRory made an appeal for peace. Why should they not avail themselves of every opportunity of bringing about a state of affairs where they would secure all that is necessary to secure—the control of all arms in this country under the authority of the Government?

FACING THE FACTS.

DRILLING—THE ROAD TO MURDER.

Mr. BLYTHE, the Minister for Finance, said that he agreed with Deputy O'Connell that talking about peace would not get them any further. They should be prepared to face the situation as they stood, and in that Deputy O'Connell had displayed a lack of clarity on the situation. Deputy Aiken had said things in a very nice way as to what should be done, but did anyone think there was any hope for betterment in that speech. Deputy Aiken's view was that the government of a country was to be carried on on the basis of unanimity, and of satisfying everybody; on the basis of removing things that any crank or madman would object to. This was a democratic country, and they accepted the principle of democracy, and government could only be carried on on one basis, and that was the basis that majority rule should be accepted and the laws set up obeyed, and the authority of the State respected, and those who wanted things changed must be satisfied to persuade the majority to change them. The speeches that they had heard, so far from being helpful, were unhelpful, and Deputy O'Connell's speech was unhelpful because it encouraged the idea that people could bring changes by other means than persuasion.

What was wrong with the speeches of Fianna Fail was that they sometimes heard in them some things that were perfectly correct, and things that one would like to hear, but in the next speech that was made by members of the party—and by the same members of the party—they heard an encouragement, whether it was meant or not, to the sort of men who were challenging the authority of the State and the authority of the majority.

"What we want," said the Minister, "is to face the matter straight. There is no excuse whatsoever for carrying on here any sort of armed organisation. That was criminal. The mere drilling and drawing young fellows to drill even without arms is criminal, and especially criminal in view of their history, because everybody knows that drilling and arms lead inevitably to murder."

CLEARING THE AIR.

What they should do now, he added, was to make the position absolutely clear, and not to talk about misguided young men, and privately weep tears over them, because that sort of thing would inflame them and encourage them. The speeches that commonly came from the Fianna Fail benches contained a great deal of that, and it did tremendous harm, and created an atmosphere of encouragement for those people to go on. He did not believe in severity, or in pushing things too far, but he believed in making it clear that if people wanted militarism, they would get all they wanted of it and be put down.

He had no hesitation in saying that the people who now ran the I.R.A. had no encouragement from persons who were previously connected with it, but that it was run by a dirty, cowardly rabble, and would have to be dealt with on that basis. There was no use in blinking the fact that it was a movement supporting anti-democratic theories in policy with a view to the minority seizing power.

NO DANGER OF CIVIL WAR.

If they (the Government) yielded to one armed movement to-day, it would be difficult not to yield to some other armed movement in the future. They should deal with a conspiracy of this sort, and the way to deal with it was to give the Executive Government power to deal with it. There was absolutely no other way of protecting the ordinary citizen. The Executive in the past were too moderate and too gentle and sparing in the powers they had in their hands. He did not regret it. If they had dealt with the situation after the civil war as it would be normally dealt with, perhaps they would not have these conditions now. Their policy had been to use very sparingly the power in their hands, and the civil struggle was ended with the very minimum of bloodshed. People talked about seventy-seven executions, but if the matter had been dealt with in anything like according to rule, there would have been ten or twenty times that number, but the Executive Council's policy had been to use the minimum of force that was necessary once they had adequate powers in their hands.

In the people they had to deal with there was a tendency to scuttle for safety when there was danger, and probably there would be very little occasion to put the powers of the bill into actual use. People spoke about the bill provoking civil war. There was no shade or shadow of danger of that. If there was any danger it was in delay. If they delayed some months until the movement grew and more people were demoralised by the appeals going on in the country he was satisfied that they would have to settle some sort of civil war. If there were one or two deaths it would be the maximum, and he was quite satisfied that it was better if there were the deaths of one or two ruffians conspiring against the people than of a number of innocent citizens doing their duty in the ordinary way and pursuing their ordinary avocations.

REPORT STAGE CARRIED.

Mr. MULLINS (Indept. Republican, West Cork) said that they had a fair measure of agreement in the House on one matter at least; the Minister for Finance described the I.R.A. as a dirty cowardly rabble; Deputy Boland, of Fianna Fail, said that they belonged to the criminal classes, and a Labour deputy was prepared to abolish every section of the Constitution to suppress them. He (Mr. Mullins) told Fianna Fail and Labour that they were not going to convince the people of this country that these people were criminals. In this bill they proposed to treat these men—men whose motives were the highest and purest—in the same category as the lowest criminals. This bill was sowing the seed of a revolution.

On a division the report stage was carried by 82 votes to 63.

PLAIN SPEAKING.

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE AND A CONFERENCE.

President COSGRAVE, in moving that the bill do now pass, said the Government had been given a good deal of advice this week as to how the country should be governed, and not the least remarkable of the events that had happened during the week was the attitude of the leader of the Labour Party in this connection. The Government was invited to attend a conference. What was the date of the invitation? They were invited to attend a conference with other parties in the House after a series of events had occurred in the country which had disgraced the country, and which brought odium on its good name, and which were sapping the foundations of ordered society and interfering with the progress of the country. The people who gave that invitation to the Government knew better than any other people in the country how vital it was to civics, good order, progress and employment to have ordered conditions in the State. When was the invitation issued?

Mr. AIKEN—Now.

President COSGRAVE—Why not after Superintendent Curtin was murdered? Why not after young Ryan was taken out and slaughtered on the roadside?

Mr. AIKEN—It was made nine years ago.

President COSGRAVE asked why it was not issued after Mr. McInerney's house had been fired into in Clare, or Mr. Lynch's house had been fired into in Clare. Why was it not issued until authority took to itself the right to govern? That attitude was very little different from one of "Hands off the ruffians." Nine years ago, Mr. Aiken said. What happened nine years ago? The people of this country were blackmailed——

Mr. LITTLE—Why did you break the Pact?

President COSGRAVE replied that the Government stood, as they always stood, for democratic rule. Why should the people not have been allowed to vote without interference? Because there were armed forces in the country repudiating the authority of the State. He had no desire in the introduction of this measure to bring before the people of the country the events of the last eight or nine years. The leader of the Opposition was the man who wanted to be regarded as the pacificator, the man who pretended to show respect for him (President Cosgrave), the man who disliked him more and hated him more than any other man in the country.

Mr. MULLINS—We want to hear about the bill, not personalities.

THE MILITARY COURTS.

President COSGRAVE said that the bill, on its face, described exactly what it was for. It was for peace in this country, it was that people who talked about military matters and wanted to be regarded as soldiers were going to be treated as soldiers. If there were people in the country who wanted to upset democracy, they were going to be brought before military tribunals. These military tribunals would deal with them in the presence of the prisoner—a right and a privilege denied to Superintendent Curtin, and to young Ryan, who did not get Christian aid. Superintendent Curtin was sent before his God without a moment's preparation. Was that Christianity? And when they said they were going to stop that they were invited by the leader of the Labour Party to a conference.

Mr. AIKEN said that the President's party had some responsibility for similar instances.

President COSGRAVE said that the party opposite had responsibility for extraordinary events which occurred in this country, which made our name a bye-word throught the nations. In May, 1923 when Mr. de Valera was up against it, he told them he had put up proposals to Senators Douglas and Jameson which would be acceptable to business men.

Mark the selection, said the President. If I say that in this country there must be fair dealing with non-Catholics and non-Nationalists, with all those who comprise the citizenship, I am taxed with Masonry, but when the Deputy is up against it, who does he send for?

Mr. DE VALERA—I did not send for them. The approach was made to me by Senator Douglas.

President COSGRAVE said that he had not sent them to Mr. de Valera, and that his answer to these two gentlemen when they came to him was that it was not a matter for him; that he was responsible to the people of the country, and that he could not deal with Mr. de Valera, who was then posturing as the President of the Republic, as the man who had authority in the country, and was trying to rob and loot the people of their god-given rights and privileges. He said there could be nothing done until the arms were given up. He did not want to humiliate these people; he did not care if he never saw the arms, he was willing to have them given up to a Bishop. He was satisfied as long as they were destroyed. Was that an undue or unreasonable condition to make, occupying the position that he held as President of the Executive Council?

Mr. AIKEN—And His Majesty's Minister.

President COSGRAVE said the Deputy was a member of His Majesty's Opposition. (Laughter.) What rights and privileges the Government held were got from the people of the country; he was elected by the Dail, and he had no further right than that. He did not want to occupy that position for a moment beyond the will of the House. He had not got to live on politics.

Mr. DERRIG—And some of your colleagues have

At this point the Speaker protested against interruptions, and said that deputies had not the faintest sense of fair play.

A REPUBLICAN DOCUMENT.

ANGRY SCENE IN THE HOUSE.

President COSGRAVE said that Mr. Derrig interrupted because he had a document signed by Mr. Derrig in his hand. This document was a Republican Government proclamation dated December 2, 1922, and setting forth that where people continued to pay income tax, land annuities, payments to the Congested Districts Board, spirit licences, or other moneys demanded by the Free State Government they should be fined the amounts paid, or have their goods seized or confiscated to that amount.

Mr. DERRIG—Hear, hear.

President COSGRAVE, reading—"Mails are to be robbed at regular periods, and all documents connected with inland revenue destroyed." That was Mr. Derrig in 1922, said President Cosgrave.

At this point the excitement which had been growing rapidly throughout the President's speech reached a pitch which prevented him from continuing. There were cries from the Labour benches and from Mr. Mullins to get down to the bill. Mr. Lemass, standing up and leaning far over the front bench, demanded that if the President was going to describe the events of that period he should deal with them all.

At the same time Mr. Cleary was shouting from the back Fianna Fail bench charges about the occasion on which Mr. Derrig's eye was injured, and spectators in the gallery appeared to be astonished at the angry, incoherent sounds of rage that filled the chamber.

President Cosgrave resumed his seat, and the Speaker appealed for order.

Mr. LEMASS again urged that President Cosgrave was now describing the events of 1922, and that they should all be dealt with.

SPEAKER'S RULING.

The SPEAKER said that the chair had taken the line since Wednesday; that this debate in all circumstances was necessarily one in which very great latitude was given. They were not there to deal with what had happened nine years ago, but references to it were permitted on Wednesday and Thursday, but when the President spoke to-day he was challenged, by way of interruption, about what had happened nine years ago, and was answering. They could not permit a state of affairs in the House in which President and leader of the House was particularly singled out for interruption. The President must be heard.

President COSGRAVE said that he was not such a fool as to imagine that when there was civil war and armed men going around the country that all the fault would be on one side, but when he was charged by people who postured as being sinless he looked up their records. Quoting again from the document, he said that people disobeying that order were to be shot, and, turning towards the Fianna Fail benches, he said: "The fact of the matter is that there are a great many people over there who are very lucky."

Mr. LEMASS—We lost.

President COSGRAVE—The reason the deputies lost was that they had no moral sanction behind them in their work.

Mr. MULLINS—That they had not the pluck to shoot.

President COSGRAVE—They had the pluck to escape.

Mr. MULLINS—They were too damned soft-hearted, that is the reason they lost.

President COSGRAVE—I am afraid the softness extended to their heads in a good many cases

Continuing, he said that they were dealing with a very important measure. They were told to deal with the causes. What gave rise to all this?

Mr. BRADY (Fianna Fail, South Dublin)—Ernest Blythe

President COSGRAVE said they would have to come down to more recent causes than that. If they took the most recent incident—there was a publication in this country called the Irish Press. What was its contribution to to ordered conditions in the State, the conditions which, after all, were going to support the Government. What was it doing to inculcate respect for authority? It posed as an impartial journal. How did it treat the leader of that House; how did it treat the leader of that House? It called him Mr. Cosgrave, President of the Free State Executive Council. Every possible attempt was made to belittle the institutions of the State.

Mr. MULLINS—Suppress it.

President COSGRAVE—It would be a pity to suppress it. It will suppress itself.

Continuing, he said that the real danger which affected democratic government all over the world to-day emanated from Russia. There was a new scheme in operation there. It was against religion and against the most cherished traditions of democracy. What were the things which led to a matter of that sort being considered by the people who hope to undermine as far as possible citizenship and all that it connoted? The system started with attacking the State, bringing it into disrepute, and making every possible advance and attack on ordered conditions in the State. Having done that, and having criticised religious institutions, the road was clear for attack upon their most cherished thoughts in connection with government, and every journal emanating in this country which had adopted that line was practically tilling the field to sow the seeds of Communism and Bolshevism. They were asked to attend a conference. Was it intended to invite the leaders of Saor Eire to that conference?

Mr. MULLINS—Yes. It would be useless without them.

Mr. O'CONNELL said that the people that he had intended to be at the conference were the representatives of the parties in the House.

Mr. MULLINS—That is where you will fail.

President COSGRAVE asked what was this conference to do, and why should it do it now? Why not when those incidents occurred? Were they to confer with the people outside who were making the attack on the State?

Mr. AIKEN—All parties should be in it.

President COSGRAVE read extracts from An Phoblacht of August 29th, 1931, which stated that the time had come when all those who had adhered to Parliamentary methods must discard their belief in Parliament for direct action, and realise that a change of Government under the Parliamentary system was only a change of masters. The cancer of the Capitalist system must, said the paper, be cut out by the bayonets of the people. Mr. FitzGerald-Kenney relied on the gun, but, judging by the temper of the people, he might be hoist by his own petard. Were those people to be invited to the conference? They were told that force was no remedy. Did those who gave them that advice give it to the people who were attacking the State?

Mr. LEMASS—It was said last night.

President COSGRAVE—Was that the first time?

Mr. LEMASS—No.

President COSGRAVE said that they were told that last night; he would like to know what Mrs. Curtin thought of it.

Mr. AIKEN—Or Mrs. Bondfield.

President COSGRAVE—Yes, or Mrs. Bondfield, or Mrs. Adamson, and every other one of them. He said they were charged with a big responsibility. For years he had read in American papers addresses given by deputies on the far side in America attacking the State and belittling its institutions, and holding it up to public ridicule; so much so that when he went to America he met a great many people there who would not believe that there was such an office in this State as a Prime Minister or a President, and in one instance the only proof he could bring to convince the man he was speaking to that this was an independent country was to cite his visit to the President of the United States. When the Irish officers went to America to take part in the jumping competitions there at last was evidence that they even had an Army. All those incidents occurred during the last few years, and had contributed towards the situation they had got to solve now.

Mr. AIKEN—After this they will believe we are Communists.

Mr. COONEY (F.F., North Dublin)—Have you any extracts from Birkenhead's speeches there?

President COSGRAVE—There is a tradition in this country, and that is that in every Irish heart with Irish blood in it there is always respect for the dead. Let us not depart from that.

MR. DE VALERA'S SPEECH.

President COSGRAVE then read from Mr. de Valera's speech on the previous night, in which he said: "These men are misguided, but they are brave men, and now let us have at least the decent respect that we should have for the brave. They have done terrible things recently I admit, if they are responsible for them, and I suppose they are. I appeal to them, and ask them in God's name not to do it." That, said President Cosgrave, is a remarkable pronouncement. I wonder what Mrs. Curtin would think of it?

Mr. AIKEN—She would agree with it.

President COSGRAVE said they were strengthening the Constitution to enable a situation to be dealt with which was not envisaged when the Constitution was first framed. The Constitution envisaged peaceful conditions or a state of war, but it did not envisage a situation in which the writ of the State might not run, and they are now providing for that.

Mr. COONEY—Why not consult the people?

President COSGRAVE—Because when I have a job to do I do it without consulting anybody—because I am here to govern. Neither of the two parties, Fianna Fail or Labour, is fit to govern, because neither of them know what to do in a situation like this. A conference with the State trembling in the balance! That is not a time for conference; it is a time to govern. Some months ago there was an attack upon the guard outside the Ceann Comhairle's house. There was no denunciation of that.

Here Mr. Derrig made an observation, and the Ceann Comhairle said that the leader of the Opposition had been heard yesterday evening practically without interruption. The President had not been allowed to enunciate two consecutive sentences without interruption.

PAWNING THE PEOPLE'S RIGHTS.

President COSGRAVE said that there were fundamental issues dividing them in connection with this matter. In being asked to go into a conference they were being asked to put in pawn the people's rights and privileges. They could not do it; no Government could do it. That was not the way to govern. There had been for years past a continuous movement on the part of a large number of periodicals detracting from the respect that ought to be shown to authority. If it were allowed to go on, people would believe there was something in it, and if support were withdrawn from authority it came into contempt. They had the culmination of it when Deputy Fahy mentioned that Fianna Fail were fit to govern, and that the present Government should get out; that a minority party in the State should have the Government. If a united expression of opinion went from the House on the matter, there would be no difficulty in governing the country. Why was it denied?

Continuing, he said that other countries relied upon the Government to get them out of difficulties, but if Mr. de Valera were in power here, the people when in difficulty would say: "The long fellow will have to give another twist." During the debate the previous night Mr. de Valera made a statement that President Cosgrave had to be called back from England during the troubled times.

"I said that statement was untrue," said President Cosgrave, "and so it is. It has not the shadow of foundation of the truth."

Mr. DE VALERA—That statement was made in the fullest belief that it was true.

President COSGRAVE—It is not true. I deny it absolutely.

Mr. DE VALERA said that if the whole position was made clear, which resulted in Mr. Kevin O'Higgins being put into the President's place in a particular department, there would be justification for his statement.

President COSGRAVE—I invite the deputy now to state the position.

The Speaker here intervened, and President Cosgrave, continuing, said that Mr. de Valera had made a statement last night that he was here during the whole of the Black-and-Tan war.

Mr. DE VALERA—I did not.

WHAT THE BILL WILL DO.

President COSGRAVE—The deputy made a statement last night that he came back from America, and that he had to send for me to England. I deny that absolutely. I had no communication with the deputy, directly or indirectly.

Mr. DE VALERA—Indeed you di. How did you come to the Cabinet meeting?

President COSGRAVE—Summoned by Mr. Hegarty.

Mr. DE VALERA—My order was that you were to come to that meeting. (Laughter.)

President COSGRAVE—Order! His order! The deputy must be getting more jocular as we go along. Did the deputy still adhere to that statement that he ordered him back from England?

Mr. DE VALERA—I was prepared to make a full statement, with the permission of the Ceann Comhairle.

President COSGRAVE concluded—This bill will enable us for all time to get rid of the conspiracy against democracy, against religion, against authority, and give us every opportunity to ensure that God's Commandments will be obeyed in the country. (Loud applause.)

THE SEEDS OF STRIFE.

DEPUTY O'KELLY AND THE BILL.

Mr. O'KELLY (F.F., North Dublin) said that President Cosgrave had described this bill as the best that was ever introduced in the House. He (Deputy O'Kelly) did not accept that. He knew of no bill that contained the seeds of disorder and strife to a greater extent than this bill. The speeches made that morning by the President and the Minister for Local Government proved that contention to demonstration. This bill was plain politics, and nothing else. Fianna Fail did not wish to play politics when dealing with this bill. They believed that there was a serious problem to be dealt with in this country, and that that problem related to fundamentals going to the very roots of their national being. To his mind, it was a political and not a social problem. If agreement could be got on the fundamentals they could, he believed, work together to solve the differences on fundamentals that existed. The bill made no attempt to solve their political differences. The President could have his cheap jibes as much as he liked, but that was not good government, nor statesmanship, nor patriotism, especially when he said they must admit that there was a difficult and dangerous problem before them. Cheap jibes would not help them out of the difficulty. He doubted if they were one bit further away from the bitterness engendered by the civil war nine years ago.

Mr. DAVIN—Who is responsible?

Mr. O'KELLY said that they were all responsible—he, himself, to a considerable extent; but the President and the Ministers of the Executive Council had not, either in that House or outside it, done their duty as patriotic Irishmen to bring about a better state of affairs. They all knew that certain teachings were engendered in the minds of young men, and that they were taught to practice militarism. The instalment of liberty they had got was a good thing, but they had not gone the whole road, and the President and his Ministers knew it.

IRISH INDEPENDENCE.

There were young men who believed, as the President believed once, and might still believe, though not practise, that the independence of Ireland was a good thing. They had indulged in methods which, to his mind, would not help, but were more likely to be an obstacle in bringing about the independence of the country. What he would like the gentlemen on the other side to remember, particularly those who took an active part in the Republican movement a few years ago, was that the methods those young men were taught would take a long time to eradicate. They could not change in a day or a year, or even ten years, the methods so successfully and ably practised by the Minister for Local Government. The Minister for Defence had spoken of "Bloody Sunday" and the awful things that happened in Dublin, organised by the Minister for Local Government.

Mr. MULCAHY—For the protection of the people.

Mr. O'KELLY said that he would accept that, but, nevertheless, methods were engendered and actions were taught, and some of the men who took part in these same actions directed by the Minister for Local Government in these days still believed in them and practised the same methods.

Mr. MULCAHY—Is there no distinction between British spies and Irishmen?

Mr. O'KELLY said that he had not failed to take cognisance of the big change that had come about, but even so, every mind did not move so rapidly—or, perhaps, so slowly—as the minds of people on the Government benches. They could not change a tradition in five years, and they certainly had not begun to alter these things since the Free State was established.

Continuing, he said that he did not believe that this country was faced with a Bolshevik revolution, or that there was Bolshevism existing to any extent, even in Dublin. There were theorists and Communists here in Dublin, but to attempt to get the House and the country to believe that they were faced with a Bolshevist revolution was certainly farcical, and statements in that connection by the President would not help the Eucharistic Congress of the coming year.

A MINUTE OF THE FIRST DAIL.

He admitted that things had been done, crimes had been committed here in the last year that the Government were bound to deal with, and bound to search out and punish the authors, but, comparing this country with any in Europe, they had a lighter calendar of crime, on the political or civil side, and they need not hide their faces. There was no cause for painting this country as one of the black spots of Europe. He did not think that Russia, and Russian ideals, and the Muscovite doctrine that the President talked of had got any hold in this country. They had heard a lot about connections with Russia, but he would like to quote for the House an extract from the minutes of the first Dail held in June, 1920.

Deputy O KELLY went on to read the minute stating that under the Acting President (Mr. Arthur Griffith) the Dail had appointed a diplomatic mission to visit the Government of Russian Socialist Federal Soviet Republic. Deputy Cosgrave was a member of the Executive then, and Mr. Arthur Griffith, who approved of the mission, was never at any time a Socialist or Communist.

Mr. MULCAHY asked was there no difference between that mission and the mission of 1925. Did the Deputy deny that the military mission of 1925 was to learn about arms, and so forth, and that Deputy O'Kelly was in New York explaining how the Army and Government here were to be destroyed?

Mr. LEMASS—That was not the purpose of the mission of 1925.

Mr. O'KELLY said that he had not the document the Minister for Local Government had read, but he had known the Minister for Local Government to "fake" documents before.

Proceeding, he said that they had a serious problem before them, which endangered the lives of good Irishmen, and he certainly would do his best to bring about that condition of peace and good order that they all wished for, particularly in view of the coming year. The Minister for Local Government had talked of Catholic principles, but he (Mr. O'Kelly) had to admit that when he was in the I.R.B. he did not obey the teachings of the Catholic Church, nor did Deputy Mulcahy, Deputy Fitzgerald, nor even Mr. de Valera, for the short time he was in the I.R.B., when their ecclesiastical Catholic leaders, year after year, urged them not to be in that secret society.

Mr. O'CONNOR—It made Easter Week. What about the Fenians?

Mr. O'KELLY, continuing, said that the bill was not good statesmanship. It was dirty, low party politics, and the Government were playing the part of vindictive men in introducing a measure of this kind.

At this stage the Minister for Defence moved that the question be put.

THE DIVISION.

The motion that the bill "do now pass" was carried on a division by 83 votes to 65.

The voting was as follows:—

"Scotch" and "Scottish" : The Whisperer : Boswell's System.
The "Steak-Tester" : The Gold Shortage.

Distaste for "Scotch."

There is no doubt that Scots have grown to dislike the verbal forms, "Scotch" and "Scotchman." Yet Burns commonly used the adjective "Scotch," and Sir Walter Scott wrote "Scotch" and "Scottish," as well as "Scotchman" and "Scotsman," indifferently. Did not Robert Louis Stevenson say: "The happiest lot on earth is to be born a 'Scotchman'?" Surely these writers felt nothing injurious to the national dignity in the colloquial variation.

As the modern Scot is acutely sensitive on this verbal point, it is courteous to defer to his wishes; and if his distaste for "Scotch" continues, he may yet succeed in making the form obsolete. Already Scottish terriers have supplanted Scotch terriers in reports of dog shows. Presently we may have Scottish mists and Scottish tweeds—but somehow I cannot envisage a request for "a large Scottish and soda."

The Gold Shortage.

One strange effect of the shortage of gold has just come to light in the account of a law-suit in Budapest. A dentist was sued by a patient for putting a defective filling in a tooth, as a result of which the patient contracted a disease. The dentist admitted that the filling was not pure gold, but an alloy, and said in his defence that the shortage of gold was so great that he could not obtain it for fillings. He added that the alloy used could only be injurious if it came into contact with certain acids. The Court investigated the dentist's defence and found that what he had said was true. The case was dismissed.

Here is one effect of getting off the gold standard which no amount of paper currency will remedy; for I am doubtful about the efficacy of paper as a tooth-filling medium. The countries which are hoarding gold will have to be asked to allow some of it to go free for dentists' use. Otherwise, I can foresee a shortage of work for dentists as far as filling is concerned.

The Whisperer.

I was much interested the other day to discover in an old book an account of a man who lived near Dublin about the middle of the last century and acquired a widespread reputation as a horse-tamer. He was known familiarly as "The Whisperer," but his real name was Con Sullivan, and he was a native of County Cork. He first made his reputation at the Curragh at the Spring Meeting of 1864, during which a savage brute of a horse named King Pippin was to run. This animal used to worry anyone within reach, even going to the length of seizing by the leg any person who attempted to ride him, and dragging him from his back. On this particular occasion nobody could go near him. Sullivan was requested to try his skill on this unfavourable subject, and he did so, walking fearlessly into his stable and remaining with him all night. In the morning the hitherto "savager" was quite docile, followed Sullivan like a kitten, and won a race that evening. Soon afterwards Colonel Westenra, who afterwards became Lord Rossmore, had a splendid, but vicious, racehorse named Rainbow, and was recommended by Lord Doneraile to get Sullivan to cure the animal. The Colonel betted a thousand pounds that "The Whisperer" would fail in this instance. Sullivan followed his usual procedure and entered the "savager's" stable, where he was found fifteen minutes later with the hitherto refractory animal playing like a kitten beside him. Both the animal and the man appeared exhausted, and brandy had to be administered to "The Whisperer."

Emergency Referees.

At an Association football match on Sunday last between Shamrock Rovers and Dundalk, the referee was temporarily disabled owing to a blow from the ball in the face. During his absence from the field his place was taken by a linesman, but, fortunately, he was soon able to resume. I recall a much more important occasion—this time in Rugby circles—when the referee suffered such injuries that he had to retire from the match for good. It occurred in the match between the Springboks and Ireland at Lansdowne road on November 30, 1912. The ground was frostbound and really much too hard for Rugby. Soon after the game had started every player on the field was suffering from some minor injury. The first serious casualty, however, occurred when the referee, Mr. D. Jack, had to leave the field with a strained leg muscle just before half time. No neutral referee was available, so that Mr. Fred Gardiner was pressed into service. Mr. Gardiner had played for Ireland on twenty-two occasions, but, in spite of being the only Irishman to referee an international match in which Ireland was concerned, he performed his duties punctiliously. The score was—South Africa, 38 points, to Ireland, nil. Let us hope that Ireland does better this year against the present South African team.

Boswell at Work.

The revival of interest in James Boswell since the discovery of the Malahide manuscripts may lend point to the following example of the system adopted by the famous biographer. A man named Lowe induced Dr. Johnson to write a letter for him, and while the Doctor was thus engaged Boswell came into the room. He greeted Johnson effusively, but took no notice whatever of Lowe, although he had been introduced to him on several occasions. But no sooner had Lowe left the room with his letter than Boswell followed, shook hands, inquired after his health, and, after passing the most extravagant compliments, remarked: "Pardon me, my dear Mr. Lowe, but I think I saw my dear friend, Dr. Johnson, writing a letter for you." "Yes," replied Lowe, "a little private affair of my own." "Sir," said Boswell, "I am the last man in the world to pry into any man's private affairs, but, if the matter was of no particular merit, I would be greatly obliged if you would let me look at it; everything from that hand, you know, is inestimable." Lowe handed over the letter, and Boswell, having read it, thanked him profusely. "My dear Mr. Lowe," he continued, "you would render my obligation to you eternal if you would only do me another favour. Pray honour me by taking a dish of coffee with me at Peel's, and allow me to transcribe this letter." Lowe, overwhelmed by the Scotsman's familiarity and condescension, went with him to the coffee-house, where Boswell made a copy of the letter. As soon as he had done so he stood up, as pompous and arrogant as he had been half-an-hour before, and stalked out of the house; nor did he ever again deign to notice the unfortunate Lowe, who, I regret to say, was left to pay for the two cups of coffee.

A Useful Gadget.

Americans are nothing if not ingenious. The latest example of their ingenuity is called a "steak-tester," and is supposed to determine the degree of tenderness of a steak. Technical details are not yet available, but, as far as I can gather, it works on somewhat the same principle as a pressure gauge for tyres. No doubt, the inventor will prepare a series of tables, with numbers to show the appropriate degrees of tenderness for different varieties of steak.

The spectacle will then be witnessed in restaurants of a man testing his steak, and probably telling the waiter to take it back and run it up to 40 units, just as one tells a garage hand to have one's tyres pumped to a certain pressure. The inventor mentions in his description of his apparatus the principle of the resisting power of the steak as the basis of his tester. From long experience of restaurant steaks, I must say that this method will be more humane than the old-fashioned one of testing steaks by the resisting powers of the eater.

TRINITY COLLEGE NOTES.

THE OPENING MEETINGS.

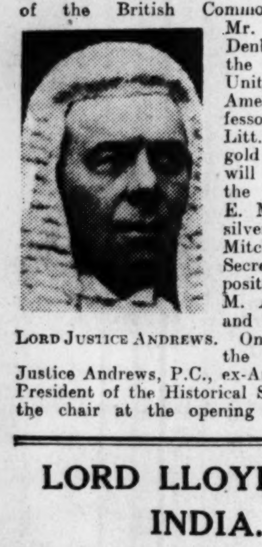
From a Correspondent.

WITH the passing of "Little-go" and one or two incidental examinations, nothing of interest occupies the stage until the opening of Michaelmas Term lectures next Thursday. Meanwhile, College has filled up to its normal term capacity, and only one place functions at half-speed. The Library has been deserted by those who have been studying there hitherto for the recent examinations, and now are content to rest awhile.

Always off to an early start, the Choral Society has rehearsed for some weeks past the second half of the Bach "Mass in B Minor," which will be performed in December. The soloists probably will be the same singers who performed in Hilary Term, with the exception of the bass, Mr. Cole.

VARIED SPEAKERS.

Arrangements for the opening meetings of the Philosophical and Historical Societies have now been completed. At the Philosophical Society's meeting on October 28th the Provost will take the chair. After Mr. Ellison's address on "The University and the Modern World" three speakers will take the floor — Mr. P. J. Hannon, ex-Director of the British Commonwealth Union, Mr. James Orr Denby, Secretary of the Legation of the United States of America, and Professor Walter Starkie, Litt.D., F.,T.C.D. A gold medal for oratory will be awarded to the Hon. Secretary, E. M. Wood, and a silver medal to D. M. Mitchell, ex-Hon Secretary. The composition medals go to M. A. Ellison, Sch., and E. M. Wood.



Lord Justice Andrews.

On November 4th the Rt. Hon. Lord Justice Andrews, P.C., ex-Auditor, and Vice-President of the Historical Society, will take the chair at the opening meeting of his old Society. The Auditor, Mr. James J. Auchmuty, Sch., will read his inaugural address, entitled "Ireland Abroad." Four speakers will address the House at the conclusion of Mr. Auchmuty's paper. The Right Hon. Sir Dunbar Plunket Barton, Bart., sometime President of the Oxford Union, judge of the Irish High Court, and member of Parliament for mid-Armagh, is also a Fellow of the Royal Historical Society, the author of many historical works, and at present Treasurer of Gray's Inn. The second speaker will be the Marquess MacSwiney of Mashanaglass, M.R.I.A., sometime Privy Chamberlain to the Pope, and Vatican representative at various diplomatic functions. Major-General Sir George M. Franks, K.C.B., R.A., President of the Allied Sub-Commission of Organisation in Turkey, will speak third, while the last to address the House will be a representative of the Department of External Affairs.

Rt. Hon. Sir D. Plunket Barton.

"THE TYRANNY OF DARWINISM."

Another opening meeting will take place on November 10th, in the Physics Laboratory, when Mr. J. M. Henry, F.,T.C.D., will address the Experimental Science Association, on "The Tyranny of Darwinism." Mr. Henry should draw a large audience to this meeting, while the second speaker, Professor Gatenby, makes the prospects for the evening doubly bright.

Mr. J. M. Henry.

The results of the honour and prize examinations have not all been made available up to this time. Mr. Edwin Owen has won the Cluff Prize for Junior Sophisters doing History, Mr. Raymond J. O'Neill the Dunbar Ingram prize for Senior Freshmen doing History, and Mr. W. Bedell Stanford, Sch., the Mullins Prize for the aggregate of three years' honour marks. His average of 78.75 per cent. is thought to have been unequalled for many years.

The Rugby Club First XV. have had bad luck in their three games this year against Bective, Wanderers and, last Wednesday, Lansdowne. Two of these matches were drawn, and the Wanderers match was lost by a converted try. The sports critics were unanimous in their praise of the performances made by the Trinity side in these engagements. This year Trinity College should do good work in the Senior League, and, with the material in the club, there is no reason why they should not win the League Cup.

LORD LLOYD AND INDIA.

WHAT A CRASH WOULD MEAN.

Lord Lloyd, a former Governor of Bombay, yesterday addressed members of the Manchester Publicity Association on "India and Lancashire Trade." A more impartial and resolute maintenance of law and order in India, he said, was essential to Lancashire trade, and also to any scheme of advance.

If any crash came in India, he added, it would mean the political and moral eclipse of our people. It would mean the loss of an assured market. It would mean more than the loss of the Great War. It would cripple our finances beyond the possibility of recovery. Any crash in India would reduce us, politically and morally, to fragments. It would mean desperate civil war in India, and the end of it would be the loss of the Indian Empire.

Lancashire, Lord Lloyd said, had a right to demand preference over the foreigner in the Indian market. Responsibility with safeguard was a contradiction in terms.

NATIONAL UNIVERSITY HONORARY DEGREES.

The National University of Ireland yesterday conferred honorary degrees on Miss Eleanor Hull (in absentia), Professor John Joly, Sir Banister F. Fletcher and Professor R. M. Butler. A photograph taken in the Senate Chamber, Merrion square, Dublin, where the ceremony took place. Left to right: Professor Butler, Professor Purcell, Sir Banister Fletcher, Dr. Weber, Dr. Coffey (Vice-Chancellor), Dr. Conway and Professor Joly. At back: Dr. Douglas Hyde.

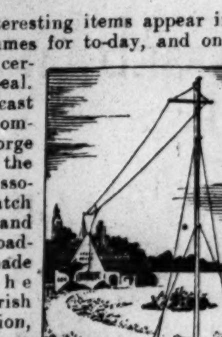
A verdict of accidental death was returned at the inquest at Castleton, Derbyshire, yesterday on Dr. Agnes Neil Buckley (aged 26), resident medical officer at Park Hospital, Davyhulme, Manchester, the victim of the Mam Tor accident on Wednesday. Dr. Buckley fell 200 feet down the side of Mam Tor. Dr. Baillie, of Castleton, said that the head injuries alone would have killed Dr. Buckley. The suggestion that the top of Mam Tor should be fenced around was made by the Coroner.

ON THE WIRELESS

IRELAND v. ENGLAND AT BELFAST.



PLENTY of interesting items appear in the programmes for to-day, and one in particular is certain of a wide appeal. That is the broadcast of a running commentary by George F. Allison, on the international Association football match between Ireland and England. This broadcast, which is made possible by the courtesy of the Irish Football Association, will be relayed from the Linfield Club, Windsor Park, Belfast. The relay will be given by both the Belfast and National Stations. Those who appreciate organ music should not fail to tune in to the North Regional Station at three o'clock this afternoon, when a recital will be given on the organ of St. George's Hall, Liverpool. This is the first recital since the restoration of the organ. The organist will be Mr. H. F. Ellingford (organist to the Liverpool Corporation), and prior to the recital there will be a few remarks by the Lord Mayor of Liverpool (Alderman Edwin Thompson).

IRELAND IN LONDON.

THROUGH THE EYES OF AN EXILE.

By a Special Correspondent.

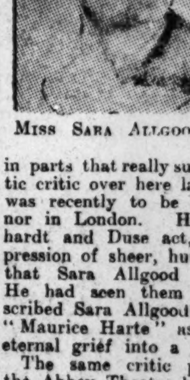
IS it possible to make really good cheese in Ireland? At least one Irishman in London believes that it is. He has been trying to set up a factory in Munster that would make really first-grade "Cheshire" cheese. For some reason, the supply of this Cheshire cheese has diminished in the last few years. A great deal of it used to be made on the borders of Cheshire and Flintshire, until artificial silk factories were set up, in the town of Flint, that paid higher wages to its workers than those earned by dairymaids.

Cheese-making, they say, is at once an art and an hereditary talent. Ten years ago Cheshire cheese was made by girls whose mothers and grandmothers had made it before them. These girls then went off to the silk factories, and what local folk called the "cheeseries" were closed.

It was proposed this year to import some of the older of these Flintshire women into Munster, to see whether Irish maidens could be made proficient in the cheese-making art. The assistance of some such organisation as that of the co-operative creameries was necessary, however, and this does not seem at present to be forthcoming. As the originator of the scheme says, it would be a good thing to get dairy farmers out of the butter-making rut. I remember that Mr. R. A. Anderson, then Secretary of the I.A.O.S., tried to do this at the end of the war, and that Mrs. Dermod O'Brien was for a time an enthusiastic maker of cheese. Mr. Conor O'Brien, her brother-in-law, also experimented in the manufacture of cheese when he had returned from waging wars in the British Navy, and before he took to book-writing and the sailing of the tiny ketch Saoirse round the world. He used to say that cheese-making was interesting, because results were so uncertain. Once he had abandoned a cheese as uneatable and carelessly left it aside in an outhouse for more than a twelvemonth. He then came upon it one day, thought it looked good, tried it, and found it one of the world's best cheeses. That incident cheered him greatly, but added nothing to the world's knowledge of how cheese should be made.

Among the parliamentary candidates over here in whose fate much interest will be taken in Ireland is Lord Borodale. He is fighting the Peckham Division, and it has been a real misfortune for him that his father, Lord Beatty, was injured last Saturday by a fall from a horse. A few nights before Admiral Lord Beatty had made what he described as his first public speech in support of his son's candidature. Its reception was excellent, because Lord Beatty knew what he wanted to say and said it briefly. As a horseman this distinguished Admiral is unlucky. Just about the beginning of last hunting season he had another serious accident, again due to a fall off a horse.

THEATRICAL AFFAIRS.



Miss Sara Allgood

Nobody seems to be quite certain whether bad times have killed the proposal to establish a permanent Irish theatre in London. Mr. J. B. Fagan's new comedy, "The Improper Duchess," is still playing to good houses at the Globe Theatre; and he has been away in America. It is to be hoped that, if the project comes to anything, Miss Sara Allgood, who has been seen on the stage too seldom of late, will be given a chance in parts that really suit her. A French dramatic critic over here last week asked why she was recently to be seen neither in Dublin nor in London. He had seen both Bernhardt and Duse act, but for complete expression of sheer, human passion he thought that Sara Allgood surpassed them both. He had seen them all weep, but he described Sara Allgood's shriek at the end of "Maurice Harte" as "the concentration of eternal grief into a single sound."

The same critic praised the work that the Abbey Theatre had done to advance the art of acting, but he deplored what he called the "deliberate difference" in its technique from that of the stage elsewhere. He did not complain that the Abbey authorities had set out to make the acting on their stage distinctively Irish—that was all to the good; but he felt that they had sometimes made their technique different for the mere sake of being different. This, he said, might be good for the theatre, but was limiting for the artists who could play peasants, but were handicapped when they had to work abroad in almost any other parts.

LACE AND TWEEDS.

A great deal both of modern and old Irish lace is to be in the trousseau of Miss Moyra Combe, who is to be married at the end of this month to Lord Castlereagh, the wedding having been postponed on account of the general election. The bridegroom's mother, Lady Londonderry, is to give them a well-stocked linen chest, which will contain Irish linen of superfine quality. This will include bed linen in every colour and damask tablecloths woven in many pale shades and in special patterns.

It is pleasant to see that Kerry tweeds are now being shown in some of the most exclusive workshops where women's tailor-made costumes are to be found. Those that I saw were in lovely blues, with tiny rare flecks of red and orange, and others in the new stained-glass reds and purples. The proprietor of one of these establishments told me that there is no difficulty at all in selling these tweeds on their merits. They wore, he said with a wry smile, almost too long for his taste, because tailor-mades do not "date" so quickly as other feminine garb, and, both in quality and design, they were the equal of any that he had seen. Irish makers now kept more closely up-to-date than any others with whom he had dealings.

THE COURTS RESUME.

There is little of the boast of heraldry or the pomp of power in these matter-of-fact days of economy. It was a grateful sight, therefore, to those who happened to be near to see the High Court judges in procession this week on their way back to the dry labour of the law after the Long Vacation. Their lordships looked magnificent in their wigs and gowns of taffetas and ermine. As an economic gesture they had foregone their formal breakfast. It all recalled the story of the days when Assize Judges in Ireland walked, in great state, from their lodgings, if these were near, to the Court. A pompous, but a kindly, judge saw a policeman restraining the enthusiasm of a small boy who wished to observe the dignitaries of the law at closer range "Constable," said the judge, to the malicious delight of the bystanders, "let the little boy look!"

This week, an anxious Irishman has written to the London Press desiring to know exactly what penalties can be exacted from an exasperated householder who punishes, by his own hand, those who work pneumatic drills in the neighbourhood of his bed during his legitimate hours of slumber. It seems that very little in that way can safely be undertaken in this country. In Ireland, thirty years ago, the situation was more satisfactory. At that time the Tramways Company was laying new tracks in the narrow part of South Great George's street, just outside a somnolent hotel. Naturally, the guests there were disturbed. Equally naturally, they complained to the manager, an Englishman whose own slumbers had been disturbed by the street operations. Long residence in Ireland, it may be, had made the manager bold. When his appeals for peace during the night had been ignored, he acted. At one or two o'clock in the morning he gathered a faithful band about him. The fire-hose was connected to a tap, and its nozzle made to protrude from a window and directed on to the gang of workmen beneath. The manager in a stentorian voice, asked the latter, as men and brothers, to down tools and go home, or even to come into the hotel. When they refused, he turned the hose on them. There was no more work in that street that night. History has never related why there were no police court proceedings as a result of the incident. But there never were.

CONSTITUTION BILL IN THE SENATE.

THE COMMITTEE STAGE COMPLETED.

LARGE MAJORITIES ON ALL DIVISIONS.

When the Senate met at 3 o'clock yesterday,

Senator WILSON proposed that the guillotine be applied to the new Constitution Bill received from the Dail. Under the guillotine the bill must be disposed of at 1 p.m. on Saturday.

He said they could not stand for the state of affairs by which juries could be intimidated and the Constitution set at naught. It was the duty of the Senate to support the Government to whatever extent was necessary to secure order in the country. Whatever ideals were held, whether separatism from England or Communism, must be realised not by violence, but by argument and free vote of the people. If a section wanted force, what more could the Government do than meet force by force, and he, as a mouthpiece of the Government, maintained that they, the members of the Senate, would be neglectful of their duty if they did not support the Government and give them the powers that they considered necessary for the good government of the country, so that the State might be preserved and the property and lives of the people saved.

Senator O'ROURKE seconded the motion, and said that the bill was necessary in the interests of the country.

Mr JOHNSON moved an amendment which sought to allow the House time after 9.45 that night to raise questions in Committee. He asked the members of the Senate to realise that if they passed this motion they were placing themselves in the position of assemblies in Fascist and Communist countries, who were there to ratify without discussion the decisions of the Executive. They were allowed to discuss if they wished, but not to amend the motion.

PROCEDURE QUESTIONED.

Mr. CONNOLLY questioned whether the motion or amendment was in order, for the simple reason that they had no bill before them. The procedure was entirely irregular and unconstitutional.

The CHAIRMAN ruled that the motion was in order.

Mr. CONNOLLY—Despite the fact that no bill has passed the Dail?

The CHAIRMAN replied that the bill had been passed by the Dail. The Clerk of the Senate had received a certified copy of the bill, which was passed by Dail Eireann about an hour and a quarter before.

Mr. CONNOLLY said that he wished to ask the Chairman one question. He had stated that day that the House had control of its own procedure, but on Wednesday he had declared that he had no alternative but to order the business of the House in such a way that the measure would be dealt with this week. The House was entitled to know why the Chairman had no option, what pressure had been brought to bear on him, and who held the pistol to his head.

The Chairman answered that the President of the Executive Council had informed him that, in the interests of the country, he should summon a meeting of the Senate, and he felt that it was his duty to the President and to the country to do so. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. CONNOLLY said that he wanted to know, with regard to the motion and the amendment, what was the haste for the bill to be finished on Saturday afternoon.

A SENATOR—To stop the gunmen.

Mr. CONNOLLY went on to say that sixty per cent. of the members of the House did not believe that the bill was necessary; yet they were going to permit this legislation, which would steep the country in blood, and then they talked about truth, justice, piety, and religion, as contained in the opening prayer of the Senate.

MORE TIME WANTED.

Mr. COMYN, K.C., said that the bill was a very revolutionary measure, and plenty of time should be given to its consideration. It was the most foolish measure that had been applied to the country for the last one hundred years. He was of the opinion that a death sentence passed by the three military officers should not be carried out without the sanction of the Executive Council. The bill, he contended, did not amend the Constitution, but suspended it. He took it that the President would not put this Act into operation without the authority of the people.

President COSGRAVE—It will be put into force to-morrow.

CLOSURE MOTION CARRIED.

Mr. MILROY then moved that the motion be put, and, on a division, it was carried by 39 votes to 15.

Mr. JOHNSON'S amendment was defeated by 41 votes to 15.

The closure motion was then put, and declared carried by 40 votes to 15.

A REVOLUTIONARY ORGANISATION.

THE OMISSION OF THE CREATOR'S NAME.

President COSGRAVE said that it was within the knowledge of most people in the country that many cases of intimidation, many attempts and assassinations had occurred in this country during the past twelve months. The ordinary law which, normally speaking, ought to be in a position to deal with that matter had proved ineffective. One of the most prized institutions in this or any other country—trial by jury—had been attacked by a conspiracy in this country, which existed not alone for the overthrow of the State, but for the subversion of ordered conditions of civilisation and of any attempt to govern by democratic means. It was a serious menace. Apart altogether from the heinous crimes and assassinations that he had referred to; apart altogether from the attacks which had been made upon individuals; apart from attacks on prisons or prison warders; apart from the activities of organisations engaged in that conspiracy, they had had within the last few months an attempt to found and propagate through the country another organisation, which apparently had its roots in another country, and which boasted quite openly of its attempt to achieve by revolutionary means the objects which it set out to achieve.

For something like fifty or sixty years there had been in the mouths of patriotic Irishmen all over the world the salutation, "God save Ireland." The Irish translation of that was, A Dhia Saor Eire. This new organisation had taken out the word Dhia, leaving the words Saor Eire. From that fact the sane people of the country could draw their own conclusions. It was the first time in this country that an attempt had been made to carry out the activities of an organisation without invoking the aid and assistance of Almighty God. This conspiracy was something which would have to be dealt with by any Government. At long last it came down to this, that upon the Executive Council, elected by the people, was laid the responsibility of enforcing law and order, and protecting the liberty of the citizens. It did not matter what Government was in power; upon it would rest the responsibility in the first and last degree of ensuring to the people liberty, and liberty without licenses.

ALL LAWS FLOUTED.

The organisations to which he had referred had taken to themselves all authority and power to enforce their will upon an unarmed people, and that was where the first weakness or infirmity was found in their Constitution. There were provisions for dealing with crime and offences against the laws of the State; laws not made by the Government, but by the Oireachtas, of both Houses, set up by the people, who alone had the right to decide what laws they wished for, and what were the conditions under which they wished to live. In a period of exceptional economic difficulty, the like of which had never been known in the world's history before, when ordered conditions should prevail, the work of the country was held up by a crowd of people who postured as nationalists and patriots, and who acted in contravention of the laws of the State, the laws of God, and of every other law.

To deal with that situation they had produced a bill of far-reaching power and authority. It sought to deal out justice to those who offended against the State's law, "and," he added, "it gives greater freedom to a person who is charged with an offence than to any of the victims, or the supposed victims, or possible victims, of the conspiracy I am denouncing here to-day." They asked the citizens in God's name to give them that power: a power not to that Executive alone, but to any other Executive responsible in the future for the Government of the country.

REJECTION ASKED.

Mr. DOHERTY (F.F.) asked the House to reject the second reading of the bill. Democratic government, he said, coming from Mr Cosgrave meant a very different thing to the definition of democratic government which this country lived up to through the ages, but especially from 1916 to 1921. As a custodian of democratic government he charged the President of the Executive Council with the responsibility for much of the turmoil existing in this country at the present moment because of the bad example that he gave in the exercise of functions placed in him by the people.

The President had discovered that a new Communistic organisation has left out the word "God"; but for all those organisations that left out God's name the President made up for it. He could scarcely close a door without calling on the name of God; but the name of God was not written in the alleged free Constitution of the so-called Free State.

THE PEACE OF THE TOMB.

"We are spending money for the maintenance of order," said Mr. Doherty, "but for us the only peace is the peace of the tomb following coercion. The calling on you and on me to put our names to this bill, which is an act of coercion, is, in my opinion, asking you to put your names to the death sentences not merely of the young men named in the Dail, but of any other man or woman in Ireland who dare lift his or her voice to say that this country at this moment is not politically free and that this assembly is not a sovereign assembly."

He said to them that this bill would bring bloodshed in its track, and the President of the Executive Council and the other Ministers could translate into that statement what they translated into Mr. de Valera's statement in Tipperary in 1921. The alternative was for them to approach the matter as Irishmen, and let them remove from the Constitution anything which at the moment was debarring certain Irishmen from coming in.

THE ONLY ISSUE.

Mr. DOUGLAS said that the Executive Council had come to the Oireachtas and solemnly said that they were satisfied that such a state of affairs existed in the country as could only be dealt with by the methods set out in the bill, and that they must have these powers at once. This bill, as he saw it, gave the Executive full responsibility carte blance. There was only one issue—was that House satisfied with the case made by the Government, or were they prepared to accept the case made by the principal opponents of the bill? Because he was not prepared to say that the Government was dishonest and that the whole proposal was corrupt, he was going to vote for the bill.

Mr. DOWDALL said that he was going to vote against the measure, because he regarded it as an election dodge. He had seen some men coming up to the House on Wednesday with guards, but he had seen these same men mixing with the crowds on Sunday last without any guards. What had happened in the three days to create such an atmosphere of danger? How any man could think for a moment that Communism could develop in this country he could not imagine. The country was entirely a Christian country, and because of a few hare-brained idiots in Dublin calling themselves what they wished, it was put forward as a justification for the present measure. It was a well-staged attempt to create a successful election atmosphere. The bill was a degradation of the House, and he would vote against it.

INSPIRED BY RUSSIA.

SENATOR AND SAOR EIRE.

Mr. JOHNSON said that this bill was an amendment of the fundamental law of the State and an amendment of the Constitution. The President had spoken of a new movement, Saor Eire, and the public was inflamed by it. He thought the minds operating that movement were not wholly the same as those which operated the pure national movement. In so far as Saor Eire was Communist, it would be less national than the older I.R.A. He was one of those who thought that this new movement had undoubtedly got its inspiration from Russia. He pointed out that there had been a Communist influence working in this country for the past eight or nine years, but it was now taking a hand in the arming of certain elements, probably a separate and distinct body of people. He drew attention to that because he wanted to know whether the emphasis upon the Communist activities in the country was the occasion for the introduction of the bill and all its powers, or whether the emphasis was rather upon armed activities, because, said Mr. Johnson, there was a difference.

For quite a number of years he had been persistent in trying to prevent any association, where he had some responsibility, from allowing their natural desires or obligations to improve the position of the workers and defend them against attack, from becoming affected with Communist philosophies. He thought the Communist influence had had very little influence upon the working classes of this country. Undoubtedly, the Communist movement was extremely influential by virtue of its experience all over the world, because it knew how to inflame and excite and permeate the minds of people who are suffering from injustice and economic depression or oppression. It was not essential to the Communist movement that they should use arms to attain their end. It was not part of the necessary methods of Communism, but it so happened that they had taken advantage of the situation in this country to utilise militant nationalist ideas and ideals to propagate their ideals.

AN IMPORTANT DISTINCTION.

"Is it," asked Mr. Johnson, "the social, political, and economic idea of Communism that the House is going to direct its aim against, or is it the accomplishment of its ideals by means of arms that they were intending to suppress?"

It was important, he continued, that they should draw a distinction, because if they did not they were going to pass a bill under cover of preventing the dissemination of Communist social and economic ideas, and which would enable the Executives of the future to suppress other minority ideas and other movements which had no intention of achieving their ends by arms or violence.

With regard to the tribunals set up under the bill he said that there was nothing in the bill to ensure that there would be any report or record made of the trials or executions.

He would say that the entering upon this course, to his mind, was a certain method of developing the Communist movement, not necessarily an armed Communist movement, not necessarily a movement for the overthrow of the State by arms. It would undoubtedly have a very serious affect on the attitude of very many people to the Parliamentary institution and to the State organisation, which they had up to now endeavoured to make one which would give security to the citizens and prevent injustice from the executive authority.

THE BUSINESS POINT OF VIEW.

Sir WALTER NUGENT said that he looked upon it solely from a business point of view, and asked himself what effect will all this controversy have on industry and the commercial life of the country. It was quite clear that no country can prosper industrially while unrest and civil strife prevails—and, therefore, the sooner normal conditonsi are restored the better. The Ministers responsible said that the proposed legislation was necessary to enable them to cope with organised political or semi-political crimes. The Opposition said that it was not. Every section of the House agreed that freedom of opinion in politics as in religion must be maintained in the Free State.

The Minister for Justice said that he wanted the bill before the House passed, and that order could not under present circumstances be maintained without it. If, then, they were satisfied that the additional powers asked for were necessary—and that they would not interfere with the rights of law-abiding citizens—it was obviously their duty to grant them. It could not be said that the bill was passed in the interests of any political party, as a general election was not far off and the public would then have an opportunity of giving their verdict for or against what has been done. Remember also that what they were dealing with is only a passing phase. In the meantime, for God's sake, let them have a rest from politics—let them forget all about gunmen, and see what a little honest work could accomplish. Let them take advantage for once of the opportunities offered them. The prospects for the coming year were better than they have ever been before. They were promised an enormous influx of visitors to celebrate a great religious ceremony. A general revival of industry was in sight, and improved prices for agricultural produce must follow

Colonel MOORE described the bill as propaganda, and said that the Government should see that the C.I.D. were made to observe law and order, and that the five million pounds sent to England annually should be kept at home for the benefit of the Irish people.

A DISHONEST POLICY.

Mr. D. FITZGERALD (Minister for Defence) said that the movement which the Government wanted to cope with was dangerous, firstly, because of the gunmen; and secondly, because of its objects, which were to put disorder where order existed. This country, with its traditions of Nationalism, was being travelled by blackguards who preached the dishonest policy of telling the people not to pay land annuities.

Mr. MacELLIN—Are you suggesting that because Fianna Fail go round the country telling the people not to pay land annuities that they are dishonest?

The MINISTER—Anyone who goes round the country and tells the people without authority not to pay land annuities is to my mind acting dishonestly.

Senator CONNOLLY said that if this measure was passed it would bring about the shedding of blood; there would be chaos and very little possibilities of the Eucharistic Congress being held next year.

WHERE RESPONSIBILITY LIES.

Sir JOHN KEANE said that Senator Johnson, in his speech, had said that he was ashamed of the bill, but he (Sir John) was also ashamed of the bill, but he had to examine as to where the responsibility lay. If the Opposition had come out openly, and said that they stood for the repression of crime, and that they would put down the disgraceful incidents of the past year, there would have been no necessity for it.

Mr. DOWDALL—We made the offer.

Mr. CONNOLLY — Our party has consistently condemned crime all over the country

President COSGRAVE said that Senator Connolly was the best evidence of the slave mind in that assembly. He had not yet lost the marks of the chain.

At this remark there was disorder in the House, Fianna Fail members shouting across the room at the President, but President Cosgrave persisted, and was heard to say that the slave mind was there. As far as the Oath of Allegiance was concerned, he quoted from Dail debates of 1921, and said that this Executive stands over the oath, and if you don't want the oath, put us out. The position is the same to-day, said the President. Put us out, and get the people of this country to give their sanction to you, and the road is clear for you, and you can face the situation.

President COSGRAVE—Resign to what? To a minority? Nonsense.

Mr. O'DOHERTY—You are afraid.

Mr. COSGRAVE—What is it that we are fighting?

There were shouts of "Answer the question," and President Cosgrave went on to say that Senator Douglas said he wished to wash his hands of the bill and leave it to the Government: that they had enough power and control in the law as it stood. "We have not enough power as we stand," he said, "and it is the Fianna Fail Party that is imitating Pontius Pilate and trying to wash its hands of the whole matter."

The division resulted:—For, 41; against, 14.

THE ABSENCE OF SAFEGUARDS.

The Senate went into Committee on the bill. On the motion that Section 1 of the bill stand, Mr. Johnson said that this was the most essential clause of the bill, and he thought that the names of those who opposed it should be recorded in a division. He therefore challenged a division.

On a division the section was carried by 37 votes to 10.

On the motion that the schedule stand part of the bill, Mr. Johnson moved an amendment to add a new sub-section, providing that when an Order was made setting up a tribunal the Order should be submitted to both Houses of the Oireachtas in the usual form.

He quoted from a speech of Senator Brown in the Senate on 10th August, 1927, protesting against the setting up of military tribunals, which could only be justified by a state of absolute emergency. Senator Brown said that he would have opposed the 1927 bill if it were not for the safeguarding to which the President then referred. There were no such safeguards in the present measure.

Mr. S. L. Brown said that he still had the objection that every lawyer had to the setting up of any court other than their ordinary civil courts. The circumstances when the bill of 1927 came before them, however, were entirely different from what they were to-day. There was then no such emergency as had arisen now, and there was no civil war. If, however they were to accept the statements of the Ministers, he added, there was now a state of civil war.

Mr. STAINES said that since 1921 there had been ten members of the Garda Siochana foully murdered. In addition there were 28 political murders of civilians—25 men, one woman, and two babies.

Mr. CONNOLLY said that he was surprised that Senator Brown should allow himself to be so blinded by political prejudice as to lend his sanction to a bill under which the courtsmartial would not even follow the procedure under the King's code. Under the bill the prisoner had not the right to be professionally represented. He went on to say that there may have been murders, but what had they to do with the present measure? Civic Guards may murder each other, or they may even murder the Minister for Justice.

Mr. O'FARRELL said that they must not only look to the immediate future, but to all the future. There may be Governments in power that would make very drastic and improper use of the powers given in the bill. If the bill was merely a temporary measure there may be some justification in opposing the amendment.

BREAK DOWN OF JURY SYSTEM.

Mr. FitzGERALD-KENNEY, Minister for Justice, said that they had done every single thing they could to preserve the jury system, but it had broken down, because jurymen had been terrorised into giving verdicts against their oath, and it was apparent to everyone that courts of the nature indicated in the bill must be set up.

They had to consider what was the right and proper legislation now in the present state of the country. Everybody knew that there was recently an attempt to terrorise the members of the Oireachtas from doing their duty, and that was a fact they could not leave out of consideration. He knew that no such attempt was made so far as the party to which Senator Johnson or Senator Moore belonged. Senator Johnson was filled with the spirit of liberty, and was always on the side of the person who may be charged, and he had no sympathy for the liberties for the people.

The Minister went on to refer to the possibility of members of the Oireachtas being murdered. He asked the House to reject the amendment.

DELAYING THE BILL.

Mr. E. BLYTHE, Minister for Finance, said that he was certain that one of the great causes of the activity of illegal organisations last spring was the hope that there would be a general election next spring, and that during the time that the Dail was dissolved they would have unequalled opportunities of creating turmoil, if not chaos, in the country. The passing of Senator Johnson's amendment would only delay the passing of the bill, and that was what Senator Johnson had in mind.

Mr. DOWDALL asked if a person was arrested and charged under the bill, could he be defended by counsel?

President COSGRAVE replied in the affirmative.

The amendment was lost by 40 votes to 15.

Mr. COMYN moved an amendment the object of which was to provide immunity for members entering and leaving the Dail and Senate, and for any statement they might make in either House.

Mr. BLYTHE said that there was no intention of interfering with members of the Oireachtas going to or returning from the House. There were not at present the sort of Deputies in either House who were engaged in any sort of murder conspiracy. They knew that any members who in the past had any affiliations with the forces of armed conspiracy had broken that connection, and there was no likelihood, as far as he could see, that any action would be taken against any of them. However, there could be a situation when the immunity of a Deputy would be most undesirable. They might in the future have Communist Deputies going into the House with guns in their pockets, and it was not so very long ago since they might have had Deputies going into that very House with guns in their pockets. The assumption that the powers given under the Act were going to be used to prevent ordinary discussion was utterly absurd, but he would not allow any Deputy to advocate murder in the House, and he would not allow any newspaper to publish direct incitements to murder. He did not believe that Parliamentary immunity should be carried to that extent

The amendment was lost.

Replying to another amendment by Mr. Comyn, that the word "offence," which included crime, should be deleted,

Mr. BLYTHE said that, if they could get the murderer of young Ryan, they would bring him before a tribunal where there would be no chance of intimidation. If they accepted the amendment, they would have to bring the murderer before the civil court.

The amendment was lost.

MEMBERSHIP OF THE TRIBUNAL.

Mr. JOHNSON moved an amendment that one of the officers forming the military tribunal shall be a person certified by the Attorney-General to have legal knowledge and experience.

Mr. BLYTHE said that the difficulty about this was that of securing legal men to form the tribunal. Army officers were men who had to face up to danger no matter where they came up against it, whether in the course of their ordinary work or not. If a military officer was not prepared to take the danger of being shot or killed in some other way than his duty requires, he is not fit to be a military officer. It was not the duty of civilians to undertake these things, and it might not be possible to get suitable civilians to undertake the task. They had come to the conclusion in the circumstances which they were up against that it would not be fair to put a civilian in that position, and it would not be easily possible to get a suitable man. They would have to get very good men, but they did not require legal men. They required intelligent, resolute and conscientious men, who would bring commonsense to bear on the problems brought before them. The legal technicalities would not come into the procedure of the court. It would ordinarily sit in public, and would have professional men speaking before it. The members of the court would be permanently in their position so long as the court existed. After all, this court would have no jurisdiction to deal with civil offences. It will have legal men on both sides. It will have prosecutors and a defence.

Mr. JOHNSON—Is that settled?

Mr. BLYTHE said that the members of the tribunal would be conscientious men. No one would take the risk of trying any undefended prisoner.

At 9.45 p.m. the amendment was declared lost, and the schedule was carried by 41 to 15.

This completed the committee stage, and the House adjourned till to-day at 11 a.m.

Bed and Clothing Burned.

Mysterious Outrage near Armagh.

ARMAGH, Friday.

A MYSTERIOUS outrage was reported to-day to the police at Milford, near Armagh, by Mrs. Treacy, who, with her three young children, reside in a row of small houses for workers at Lislea. Last night, about 7 o'clock, Mrs. Treacy left her house securely locked up, and proceeded to a neighbour's house on business. On returning about 11 o'clock she found the front door barred on the inside, with the result that she could not gain admittance. She went to the rear of the house, and there discovered that a window on the ground floor had been torn out, and, on entering, she found the house in a state of great disorder. An iron bedstead, bed clothing and wearing apparel had been removed to a garden at the rear of the house and burnt.

Mrs. Treacy left her three children in care of a neighbour, and at once reported the matter to the nearest police station at Milford, and to-day lodged a claim for malicious injury.

Mrs. Treacy's husband, Thomas Treacy, a plasterer, is at present working in the Free State, and, as she always has been on the most friendly terms with the people in the neighbourhood, she si absolutely unable to account for the outrage.

District Inspector Jennings, Armagh, and Sergeant Oswald, Milford, visited the scene to-day, and the police are busily engaged investigating the affair.

New Girls' School at Enniskillen.

ENNISKILLEN, Friday.

THE first secondary school to be erected by a public education authority in Northern Ireland was opened to-day at Enniskillen by Lady Charlemont, in place of her husband, the Minister of Education, who was absent owing to illness. The school takes the place of the Enniskillen Royal School for girls, which was transferred to the Regional Education Committee. After religious Services, the Earl of Belmore, chairman of the Education Committee, presided. Lady Charlemont, in opening the school, said that she understood that this was the first new secondary school to be erected by a regional committee. She would like to congratulate the education authority and the Regional Committee for their courage and foresight in deciding to accept the transfer of the school, and in acquiring an entirely new site for the building. Whatever might be said about education in Ulster, the Act of 1923 had certainly accomplished a great deal in the erection of the new schools. She thought that the school was fortunate in having those beautiful surroundings.

RIGHT HON.
SIR E. ARCHDALE.

Education was not entirely a matter of building and amenities. The influence of environment was a very powerful influence in school life. In some cases there were old associations and traditions which played their part, such as those in the great public schools in England, and those which they had in the ancient foundations of Portora. But obviously they could not have these in a new school, and the best alternative was up-to-date premises on a good site, with plenty of fresh air and sunlight, and these conditions were satisfied there.

After congratulating the head mistress and staff, Lady Charlemont said that secondary education did not appear to be afflicted with the storms and controversies which raged around primary education, but she was not sure that their secondary schools were not progressing just as well as they would if they caught more public attention; for there were many advantages of a good secondary education, which were not apparent at the time.

The Irish Times

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1931.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

The first ceremony in connection with next year's Eucharistic Congress, that of blessing the site, in Phœnix Park, whereon the altar will be erected, was performed yesterday by Dr. Byrne, Archbishop of Dublin.—(Page 10.)

The Constitution Amendment Bill passed through all its stages in the Dail yesterday, and the Committee stage had concluded in the Senate before the House rose last night.—(Page 5.)

GREAT BRITAIN.

ABROAD.

The United States representative has joined the League Council's discussions of the Sino-Japanese dispute. Japan's opposition to the intervention of any third party in the dispute is maintained, and it is contended that the Kellogg Pact is not applicable to the present controversy.—(Page 9.)

Dr. Bruening's reconstituted Cabinet survived the first division in the Reichstag, a Nationalist motion of no confidence being defeated by twenty-four votes. So Hitler's hour has not yet struck.—(Page 9.)

A vigorous protest against the Spanish Republic's "multiple offences," and a message of sympathy to the faithful, is conveyed in a letter from the Pope to the Papal Nuncio in Madrid.—(Page 9.)

FINANCIAL.

London Stock Markets were firm in tone, with a more confident feeling regarding the election. British Rails were a good spot.—(Page 14.)

The Treasury bill rate was slightly lower, and discount rates were not so firm. Overnight loans were made at 4-3½ per cent. Sterling was easier in New York.—(Page 14.)

Dublin Market was busier, and Industrials strengthened.—(Page 14.)

Public Safety.

The Free State Government has insisted upon its rigid time-table for the Constitution (Amendment) Bill. Yesterday the bill received its final reading in Dáil Eireann, and was sent to the Senate, from which, this afternoon, it will emerge intact. By this evening, therefore, the bill may have become the law of the land. The concluding discussions in the Dáil did not maintain the earlier level. Tempers broke under the strain of political excitement, and much dirty linen was washed in public. The Government's spokesmen dealt mercilessly with the subtleties of the Fianna Fáil conscience, and were reminded bitterly, in their turn, that the Ministers of to-day had been the conspirators of yesterday. We deplore such outbursts, but they have some historical value, since they help to explain the difficulties of the present situation. The Free State was born in lawlessness, and it is hardly surprising that, although good government has effected miracles of change, the spirit of lawlessness still lingers among a section of the people. In the youngest Dominion rancours far deeper than the ordinary rancours of politics exist between the two main parties in the State. Only time can heal such wounds, and in the meanwhile the nation suffers. President Cosgrave explained yesterday his refusal to accept a belated conference of parties upon the public peril. We think that a timely conference was desirable, but the chance seems to have been lost because the past held the present too firmly in its grip.

One fact—and it is the crucial fact—emerges clearly from the week's debates. Sedition is widespread throughout the State; dreadful crimes have escaped punishment, and in many districts the machinery of the law has suffered a complete dislocation. Indeed, Mr. Cosgrave declares, with all the responsibility of his high office, that "the State is trembling in the balance." In these circumstances, his Government has demanded, and Parliament has conceded, a protective measure of extreme severity. The Constitution (Amendment) Bill invades at least half-a-dozen articles of the Free State Constitution. It shoulders the law courts out of a vital part of their jurisdiction, and invests a military tribunal with powers of life and death. Such a measure, if it is to be tolerable, must have two main justifications—its need and the manner of its enforcement. The need has been proved; for a righteous enforcement of this measure the country must depend upon the Government's spirit and intentions. We expect that the new Act will be enforced firmly, but we expect also that it will be enforced with restraint and prudence. The State's welfare must be safeguarded, and innocent lives must be protected at any cost. In that duty the Government cannot falter; but the country will hope that the mere presence of this Act upon the Statute Book will rout much of the sedition and criminal purpose which are now rampant in the land. For its full effect the Act must be supported by a strong public opinion, and here, no doubt, we may find a guarantee that its extraordinary powers will not be abused.

Optimism is a useful virtue, but nobody can pretend that the immediate outlook is cheerful. On the one hand, the Free State confronts the menace of lawlessness and sedition; on the other, she faces an accumulation of economic troubles. Her trade has declined in recent months, and may be affected catastrophically by the results of the British general election. The coming winter, at the best, cannot fail to be a searching test of citizenship. Whether the Free State will emerge unhurt depends on many things—on her readiness to put the public weal before party politics, on her abnegation of personal prejudices, and upon a recognition of the need to work in harness. The Free State citizen's chief fault as a citizen is that which Mr. Kipling's German naturalist found in his gorilla—"there is too much ego in his cosmos." Yesterday Mr. Cosgrave drew a shrewd contrast between the British and Irish senses of citizenship. For Englishmen in a time of crisis their Government is an impersonal thing, which men of all parties credit with a patriotic purpose. In Ireland at such times we canvass the fate of politicians and ignore the nation. So it is to-day. Britons of all parties are rallying round a National Government, because, with logical patriotism, they realise that the country's need demands a united effort. In the Free State one of the main parties admits a danger, but rejects a policy of co-operation with its rivals. It is essential that the people shall not follow this bad example. The sooner a united citizenship helps Mr. Cosgrave's Government to suppress lawlessness, the sooner every citizen will have untroubled freedom to build his own and his country's fortunes.

America and the League.

The League of Nations took a step of the highest significance yesterday when it decided to invite the United States' presence at its deliberations on the Sino-Japanese dispute. The invitation, of course, does not imply a request that the United States shall become a member of the League. It simply recognises that American policy and interests are linked so closely with the relations of Japan and China that the collaboration of the United States is essential. Furthermore, as the draft invitation declared, the United States, as a signatory of the Pact of Paris, has a certain right to attend a hearing in which a case of war is involved. Naturally, Japan opposed the innovation, which was sponsored by M. Briand. Her representative complained that it embodied a question of principle, and so required a unanimous vote of the Council; but his arguments were overcome by the Marquess of Reading, the British representative. The most significant remark of the day, however, was made by M. Briand, when he explained that a precedent was being established. In analogous cases, he said, the Council, doubtless, would act always in the same manner—that is, in inviting a non-member of the League to collaborate whenever it was deemed advisable. Stated thus in general terms, the new policy does not suggest its full significance. Few important nations are without the scope of Geneva, and one can imagine few occasions on which the precedent would need to be applied. Its importance lies in the fact that it affords the United States an opportunity to collaborate, and so may remove the most urgent of existing handicaps on the League's progress. So long as the United States and Soviet Russia are divorced from the League, so long it will be unable to wield any real power. There is no prospect of any honest co-operation with the League by Soviet Russia; the collaboration of the United States, on the other hand, is not merely desirable, but essential. Without it no problem of international politics or economics can receive fitting and full treatment. The League of Nations primarily is intended as a league of all, not of some, nations. While the United States remain outside, its constitution is incomplete, and, though it can speak for the greater part of the civilised world, it misses that final authority which its voice demands. We trust that the United States' acceptance of the invitation preludes its readiness to accept a seat at Geneva within the near future.

Free State Produce.

We are glad to learn that the High Commissioner for the Free State in London is taking the fullest advantage of recent events in Great Britain to advertise the excellence of Irish dairy produce and other goods. Mr. Dulanty has done much excellent work in London. He has spared no effort to increase the purchase of Free State exports, with the result that there has been a steady improvement in trade. Next week no fewer than twenty-eight Free State creameries will be in competition in the Butter Section of the London Dairy Show. For the first time Free State eggs will be displayed; for Mr. Dulanty has been able to persuade the authorities to establish a special class which will become a permanent feature of the Show. There will be also a composite display of Free State products, consisting largely of condensed milk, tinned cream and bacon, and every inducement will be offered to the English purchaser to transfer his custom from foreign to Free State firms. Last week Mr. Dulanty made an interesting experiment. A shop was opened in Hitchin for the advertisement of Free State goods, and scored an immediate success. The people of Hitchin for the first time have become acquainted with Free State products, and one trader already has decided in future to stock only Irish bacon. In pursuit of his general policy, Mr. Dulanty has arranged for Free State displays at several other Shows during the next few weeks. Since Mr. Hogan's decision to improve the quality of Free State produce vast strides have been made. Free State butter, eggs, bacon, condensed milk and tinned cream now can hold their own with the products of any other agricultural country in the world; and the depreciation in the foreign value of sterling has given them an enormous advantage in the British market. It is encouraging, at a time when politicians at home are squabbling about their past activities, to find Mr. Dulanty making such a success of his constructive work in Great Britain. The development of the British market is the one thing that really matters to the Free State.

Drought in Canada.

A correspondent of The Times in Regina paints a vivid picture of the conditions prevailing in the Canadian prairie provinces. Only two years ago, he says, Regina itself was "booming." Its industries prospered, and the town, nurtured by the huge wheat area that surrounded it, was increasing both in size and in wealth. Then came the shadow of over-production of grain, the "slump," and finally the greatest of its possible evils, drought. To-day Regina is the capital of a desert. The soil in parts is dry to a depth of twelve feet. Throughout the drought-stricken area not a blade of grass can be seen; trees have died; and the light soil, like sand, is rippled by the breezes and whirled into black and stinging storm by the winds. Blackened rows of seedlings, we learn, show where the farmer sowed his crop. In some cases, however, the very seed was blown out of the soil; in others, the crop contrived to sprout, but withered away for lack of moisture, or shrivelled to nothing in, perhaps, a single day of intense heat. Farming, of course, is impossible in such conditions. Some farmers have moved to the homestead lands which have been newly opened in the bush towards the north; about three thousand families are forced to live on relief, while others still contrive to endure, hoping that their day of prosperity will return. In Regina, meanwhile, business has suffered a cruel set-back; unemployment is on the increase, and a hard winter is expected. Courage will be needed; for the hardship is too great and widespread to be repaired by ordinary Government relief. Nevertheless, some hope is aroused by the news that a conference of the prairie provinces will be held at Calgary next week to discuss the crisis.

COURT AND PERSONAL.

The King and Queen have been entertaining friends at dinner every evening this week at Sandringham, where Sir John and Lady Maffey and Miss Penelope Maffey were among their latest guests.

The Queen has appointed Princess Alice Countess of Athlone, Lady Forres and Lady Digby to be members of the Council of the Queen's Institute of District Nursing, of which Her Majesty is President.

The Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of York and Prince George will be present at the marriage of Lady May Cambridge and Captain Abel Smith next Saturday at Balcombe, Sussex. Princess Alice and the Earl of Athlone are in residence at Brantridge Park, Sussex, where Lady May and her fiancé joined them on Thursday.

Owing to the general depression the King of the Belgians has decided that the State ball which annually opened the Court season in Brussels shall not take place this winter.

The Duchess of Brabant was summoned to Stockholm to her mother, Princess Ingeborg of Sweden, who was very ill for some days. The Princess underwent an operation on Thursday, and was reported yesterday to be making good progress.

In honour of the anniversary of the coronation of the King of Afghanistan a reception was held last night at the Afghan Legation at Prince's Gate, London.

The Duke of Abercorn will return to Baronscourt, Co. Tyrone, to-day from London. Lochiel and Lady Hermione Cameron are returning to Achnacarry Castle, Inverness-shire, where they will give several entertainments in celebration of their eldest son's coming of age.

Earl Jellicoe continues to progress towards recovery. His eldest daughter, Lady Gwendoline Jellicoe, who was laid up in Montreal for some time with a severe attack of gastritis, is expected to leave for England at the end of next week.

Lady Albreda Bourke, who has been staying with the Earl and Countess of Dunraven at Adare Manor, has returned to Roseboro', Naas, and will preside next week at the annual sale in aid of the Cheeverstown Convalescent Home for Poor Children.

The Marquess and Marchioness of Waterford will leave Curraghmore to-day for a week's stay in London. LONDON LETTER.

THE FIRST RETURNS.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

One-tenth part of the new Parliament was returned to-day owing to unopposed nominations. The proportion of returns was overwhelmingly in favour of the National Government, and, if the Prime Minister retains the lead which he secured to-day, there can be no doubt about the strength of his following. A number of Ministers figure among the elected—a significant indication that Labour did not think it advisable to contest their seats. Northern Ireland and Scotland figure largely in the list of unopposed candidates and it is expected confidently that many of the rural constituencies in this country will follow the example thus set, and will return National Government candidates on polling day. That so few Labour members were returned unopposed draws attention to the fact that about one hundred and twenty Labour members were returned to the late Parliament as victors in three-cornered contests.

Mr. Lloyd-George's Policy.

Mr. Lloyd George's attitude towards the present national crisis is difficult to understand, and his broadcast statement last night made his position no clearer. It would appear that there is nothing which Mr. Lloyd George desires so much as to see the National Government defeated at the polls, and, while he recognises that this is almost improbable, he is prepared to hamper its progress as much as possible. Yet it is claimed that the Lloyd George Liberals are fighting the election on the lines of the manifesto issued by Lord Reading and Sir Herbert Samuel in support of the National Government.

Presumably, it is in pursuit of this policy that Liberal candidates are being put forward in a number of centres to split votes and to defeat the National Government candidates. The responsibility incurred by Mr. Lloyd George is grave, but he no longer can hope to dominate the new Parliament as he dominated the old. The National Government majority may be reduced slightly by his action, but the Prime Minister's support will be too great, as the Liberal leader admitted last night, to be subjected to outside influences.

The Labour Leader.

Mr. Arthur Henderson, the leader of the Labour Party, will have to put up a great fight if he is retain his seat at Burnley. His poll at the 1929 election was 28,091, and his two opponents, a Conservative and a Liberal polled together 32,639 votes. His Conservative opponent on the present occasion, Rear-Admiral Campbell, is an excellent candidate from the National Government point of view, and to-day it became manifest that a number of Mr. Henderson's votes will be filched by a Communist candidate nominated this morning. Mr. Henderson's majority last time was 7,954, but, in the circumstances of to-day, that majority may melt like snow.

If Mr. Henderson fails to secure election, his position in regard to the Disarmament Conference at Geneva next year might be regarded as a little difficult; but, as Mr. Henderson claims that he was appointed chairman in his personal capacity, and intends to go to the Conference, it must be assumed that the Labour leader sees no difficulty in representing a country in which he may have no official status.

M. Laval's Visit.

Despite M. Laval's declaration that he is crossing the Atlantic merely to have a friendly chat with President Hoover on world problems, reports from Paris indicate an impression that there may be far-reaching developments from the visit. All France is talking of the visit of the Premier in terms which leave no doubt that it will prove a long step in the direction of a new movement to deal with the world crisis. Official declarations, maintaining the private character of M. Laval's journey, are in striking contrast to the expectations of the French people.

The Upper Air.

In the not distant future attempts will be made to conquer the difficulties attendant on flight in the upper regions of the air. This region, known as the stratosphere, has been investigated only by Professor Piccard and his companion, Dr. Kipfer, and many facts have yet to be ascertained about it. There are winds of startling velocity, however, and if these could be utilised, it would be possible for an aeroplane to cross the Atlantic from Ireland to Newfoundland in three or four hours. No machine has been manufactured yet that would be able to withstand the conditions of the stratosphere, but the Germans are experimenting with one at Dessau, and a successful trial flight in ordinary conditions has taken place. The machine has an air-tight cabin for the pilot, and is fitted with an 800 horse-power supercharged engine. It is understood that Britain will not be left behind in attempting an investigation of the stratosphere, and work is proceeding with the object of finding an engine that will give full power at great heights.

The Mothers' Union.

The Lady Mayoress of London was present at the great mass meeting of the London branch of the Mothers' Union this week, when the gathering was so considerable that it had to be held in the Central Hall, Westminster, having outgrown the great hall of the Church House. Dame Beatrix Lyall, London Diocesan President, took the chair. She remarked that they had never before had a London Lady Mayoress present at their meeting, but she hoped that it would not be for the last time. The Mothers' Union had a membership approaching fifty thousand in and about Greater London. The special speaker for the occasion was Mrs. Raymond, Guildford Diocesan President, who pointed out that, although the Mothers' Union set its standard so high, it was a remarkable thing that women—and these young women—were coming forward day by day for membership.

A New Liner.

The P. and O. liner Corfu, which sailed from King George V. Dock at London to-day on its maiden voyage to the Straits, China and Japan, represents a type of vessel which is expected to be used extensively in the near future by shipping companies in the Eastern trade. In addition to a first-class passenger ship, it is also a capacious cargo-carrier. The advantage to the owners is a yield from the cargo carried, in addition to the passenger rates, while shippers are provided with facilities for sending a large quantity of material by a speedy ship. Instead of the usual buff colour for the upper works of vessels of this company, the new liner is painted white; for tests have shown that white is four degrees cooler than the buff hitherto used.

Television.

Late last night a definite advance in television was made, when a famous dance orchestra was "televised." The occasion marked the first admission of television to ordinary broadcasting hours. The performance lasted for half-an-hour, and in turn most of the bandsmen appeared on the screen, and could be recognised by those "looking-in." It is some five years since television began with the showing of a doll's head, but the system is accepted now as a definite addition to the broadcasting programme, and transmission will be a weekly feature.

ANGRY DEBATES ON SAFETY BILL.

SCENES IN THE DAIL AND THE SENATE.

OLD GRIEVANCES RECALLED.

DEPUTY AIKEN'S SCHEME FOR CONFERENCE REJECTED.

By Our Special Correspondent.

FROM 10.30 yesterday morning till 9.45 last night, the Constitution (Amendment 17) Bill occupied the attention of legislators at Leinster House. During this period of virtually twelve hours there was, first in the Dail Chamber, and afterwards in the Senate, a continuous stream of oratory, in the course of which almost every phase of Irish history was recalled, but more particularly the period immediately before and after the passing of the Treaty of 1921.

In the course of these exchanges angry feelings were frequently aroused, and allegations of various kinds were hurled across the House with vehemence. In the Senate members, in the course of debate, raised their voices to a pitch which rarely marks debates in that Chamber.

IN THE DAIL.

A PLEA FOR A PACT.

In the Dail, the new bill which is designed to give the Government full power to deal with a measure of lawlessness and sedition which has arisen in the Free State, came up on the report stage. Its second stage and Committee stage had been completed on the previous evening. The report stage having been passed formally, the final acceptance was moved; and thereupon Deputy Aiken, one of the Fianna Fail leaders, unfolded a proposal for a conference which seemed to come as a surprise to the House. Deputy Aiken, who, in the civil war, held the post of Chief of Staff of the Irregular forces, has not hitherto been regarded as a man of compromise. In a quiet voice he unfolded his scheme for a conference and a pact between all representative parties, political and military, as well as Church bodies, all of whom would bind themselves to a treaty "for the honour of God and the glory of Ireland," to secure a national agreement. This agreement was to stipulate that no Irish citizen should use arms or violence for any purpose except to secure the obedience of all citizens to the laws of Dail Eireann, and that all should pledge themselves to carry out the will of the majority of the people "without fealty to any power under heaven except God above." The agreement also pledged all against "membership of any secret society of any description."

HOUSE TAKEN BY SURPRISE.

For a moment the proposal appeared to take the House by surprise, and observers wondered what the reaction of the Government benches would be to this scheme. Deputy O'Connell, the Labour leader, who had been himself engaged earlier in the week in a endeavour to promote a conference, expressed his approval, and, incidentally, mentioned that when he had put the matter to President Cosgrave he insisted that the two opposition parties should agree to a formula before he could consider it.

Mr. Blythe stated the Government attitude in one of the best speeches he has made in the House. It was brief, but very much to the point. Postulating that the Free State is a democratic country, he said that the laws of the country and the authority of the State should be respected. The State stood on the basis of majority rule, and those who wanted change must persuade the majority to their view. Speeches such as Deputies Aiken and O'Connell had made were not helpful, because they suggested that changes could be brought about otherwise than by the will of the people. Drilling and the inducement of young men to drill were criminal; for drilling and arms led to murder. He did not believe in severity, but, if people wanted militarism, they would get it.

A VIOLENT OUTBURST.

The Opposition benches were stirred to a violent outburst when President Cosgrave, in moving the acceptance of the bill, read documents relating to the robbing of banks during the civil war. Members on the Opposition benches flung across the floor violent allegations against individuals on the Government side.

The Speaker, who acted throughout with great firmness, tempered by invariable good humour, was able to secure order. It was this spirit which provoked Deputy Boland, when called to order, to remark in the friendliest manner and amidst laughter: "Sure I know you since you were a kid."

Mr. Cosgrave dealt with the proposal for a conference, and asked were they to confer with people who were attacking the State and attempting to subvert the Government? The Government was told that force was no remedy, but nobody said that to the people who had the guns outside. Anyhow, they were there to govern, and they intended to do it. He asked the Dail to give the Government the power to enable them to get rid of this conspiracy and "to ensure that the Commandments of God will be obeyed in this country."

On a vote the motion was carried by 83 votes to 65.

THE SENATE.

PROTESTS AGAINST CLOSURE.

At three o'clock the Senate assembled to deal with the bill, and there was a very full attendance, only four members being absent when the final division was taken. As was to be expected, a certain section of the members protested strongly against the adoption of the closure, including Senators Johnson and Connolly. The point was raised that the text of the bill, as passed by the Dail, was not in the hands of the members. The Chairman answered this by pointing out that the text of the bill, which members had received and which showed the bill in the form in which it left the Committee stage in the Dail, was actually the bill as finally passed by the Dail. He had a copy of the bill duly certified by the Clerk of the Dail.

LIKE MR. MCGILLIGAN.

Opposition to the second reading was expressed chiefly by Senator O'Doherty, who found it necessary to concentrate on events in the early life of the State. His strong Northern accent—he told the House he was, like Mr. McGilligan, a Derryman—rang out like the rattle of a machine gun through the Chamber as he denounced the Government for its action in the past election, and on various other occasions. He charged President Cosgrave, who now professed love for justice by setting up Special Courts, as being the man who was instrumental in pulling down the courts set up by the Irish people. The Free State Ministers, he said, were spending Irish money for the maintenance of law and order between other nations, but the only peace that the Irish people could claim would be the peace of the tomb after the Coercion Bill was passed. When Mr. Desmond Fitzgerald and Senator Connolly had spoken, a vote was taken, when the second reading was carried by 41 to 14.

PUBLIC COURT.

During the discussion of amendments on the Committee stage, Mr. Blythe enlightened the House as to the work of the tribunals which are to try cases.

Instead of being secret courts, Mr. Blythe announced that they would sit in public, presumably with Press representatives in attendance, and, moreover, that prisoners may have advocates to appear for them. Of forty-three amendments only four had been dealt with when the House rose. The final stages of the bill will be taken to-day.

PROBABLE OPERATION TO-DAY.

By Our Political Correspondent.

There is now no doubt that by one o'clock to-day the Constitution (Amendment 17) Bill will have passed the Senate. So far the closure schedule has been followed. It is probable that the bill will be taken this afternoon for signature to the Governor-General, and later the Executive Council will; it is understood, issue the necessary order putting it into operation.

It was noted that the attendance in the Senate yesterday was only three short of the total available members. The Earl of Granard came specially from Paris to be present.

ATTEMPTED "HOLD-UP" NEAR KINGSTOWN.

MASKED MAN WITH A REVOLVER.

A daring attempt to hold up and rob Mr. James Hand, an employé of the Salthill Hotel, Kingstown, was made at about six o'clock last night.

Mr. Hand was leaving his van and baskets of linen at the back of the hotel, when a man, who had his face blackened, and had apparently been hiding in the bushes, jumped out brandishing a revolver and shouted: "Put them up quickly and no nonsense."

The man tried to seize Mr. Hand's leather bag, which contained £37 10s., but Mr. Hand shouted for help, and a struggle took place. Mr. Hand gave his assailant a blow on the chin, and he ran away. Mr. Hand informed the police, who immediately searched the district, but without result.

The man was aged about thirty-five years, and was about five feet eight inches in height.

MYSTERIOUS CALLERS.

VISIT TO HOTEL WHERE T.D. STAYS.

Shortly after two o'clock yesterday morning a dark Ford saloon motor car drove up to the hotel at which Mr. Alexander Haslett, T.D. for Co. Monaghan, usually stays while in Dublin.

Two men entered the hotel and asked to see Mr. Haslett, and they were told that Mr. Haslett had left. They then asked to see the visitors' book, and, it was stated there that room 56, where Mr. Haslett had stayed was vacant. The men asked no further questions and left the building without giving any indication as to their business. They drove off in the car in the direction of Great George's street.

ARCTIC SUBMARINE VOYAGE.

NEW VENTURE BY SIR H. WILKINS.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
MILFORD (CONN.), Friday.

Undaunted by the difficulties he experienced in the Nautilus, Sir Hubert Wilkins, the explorer, is contemplating another submarine voyage to the Arctic.

In a letter to Mr. Simon Lake, the American submarine inventor, Sir Hubert expresses his firm intention of making another Arctic submarine voyage as soon as he can obtain a suitable vessel.

TAX ON BRITISH SILVER COINS.

SOUTH AFRICAN CHECK ON SPECULATION.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
PRETORIA, Friday.

An exchange duty of twenty per cent. to prevent dumping, on all British silver coins imported into the Union and into South-West Africa, has been imposed by the Government of the Union.

This action is consequent on the abandonment of the gold standard by Northern and Southern Rhodesia and by Great Britain.

The South African pound, now being worth more than twenty English shillings, it has been advantageous for persons holding South African notes or visiting South Africa to change their money outside the Union into English silver, which is legal tender throughout the Union, and import this silver into the Union.

The Diocesan School Old Boys' Union hold their fourth annual meeting in the school next Monday, 19th, at 8 p.m. Former pupils are asked to attend. The winter programme will be decided.

BRUENING GIVEN FREE HAND.

HITLERITES THWARTED.

MAJORITY OF 24 IN REICHSTAG.

QUASI-DICTATORSHIP TERMINATED.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
BERLIN, Friday.

THE second Bruening Government has been saved by a majority of twenty-four. Consequently Germany will be ruled by constitutional methods and not by emergency decrees.

This afternoon the Reichstag rejected by 294 votes to 270 the Nationalist no confidence motion, and later a Communist motion of no confidence, which was opposed by General Groener, the Minister of Defence, was rejected by 321 votes to 233.

There was some surprise at the size of the Government's majority, most people not having expected even twenty.

When the hooter sounded at 4.45 to call the deputies to vote an electric atmosphere was felt in the House. Every seat was taken, and the Diplomatic, the Press and the Public Galleries were crowded.

Dr. Bruening.

On the announcement of the result a storm of cheering broke out from the Government supporters, which the countercheers of the Opposition could not drown.

HOW THEY VOTED.

The Government owed its victory to the votes of the Socialists, all the Middle Parties, the Economic Party, and some of the People's Party, while those who voted against the Government were the Nazis, the German Nationalists, the Communists, the Agrarian Party, and the remainder of the People's Party. There were only three abstentions.

The Reichstag rejected a combined Nationalist and Communist motion for a dissolution by 320 votes to 252.

Various motions of no confidence in individual Ministers were rejected by substantial majorities. A Nationalist motion for the annulment of all emergency decrees was rejected by 336 votes to 233.

The result of all this is that Dr. Bruening has a free hand to rule Germany as he pleases during the winter, and Adolf Hitler, who thought that at last his time had come, will have to continue his weary wait in his "Brown House" at Munich.

The Reichstag has now adjourned till February.

THE DRINK EVIL.

SOME DEFECTS IN LEGISLATION.

THE MOST REV. DR. COLLIER, Bishop of Ossory, presided at the fifth triennial congress of the Catholic Total Abstinence Federation of Ireland, held in the Oak Room of the Mansion House, Dublin, yesterday. There was a representative attendance of delegates.

The executive committee, in their report for the period 1926-31, referred to the introduction of the bill to amend the Act of 1927, and said that much stress had been placed on the clause relating to St. Patrick's Day opening, but practically every clause in the bill was destructive to temperance interests. It was the duty of all supporters of temperance interests to use their utmost efforts, not alone to prevent St. Patrick's centennial year from being profaned by the opening of the public-houses on the national festival day, but also to oppose energetically the attempt contained in every line of the new bill to mutilate and destroy the Liquor Act of 1927.

The Rev. Dr. Coffey, President of the Federation, welcomed the bishop, and said that it would not be amiss if he sent a brief message to the public from the meeting. They were concerned solely with the suppression of intemperance. They were united in the advocacy and promotion of the Christian virtue of temperance, even in its highest form of total abstinence.

In a letter expressing his inability to be present, Cardinal MacRory said that no movement had done more for God and Ireland.

In moving the adoption of the report, the Very Rev. Canon Lyons said: "If you make a joke against the temperance workers you always have a gallery to laugh at them, and that is one thing an Irishman finds very hard." If the temperance legislation of the past few years was not all that they had hoped for, it was not the fault of the Federation.

They had at the moment a menace to temperance provided by the dance halls, so prevalent in town and country. There was legislation for dealing with it to some extent, but it was not all it might be. Still, it was something, and it ought to be used.

The Rev. Father Aloysius, O.S.F.C., seconded the motion. He said they were not prohibitionists. They wanted the trade so regulated that there would be no need for prohibition. It was because trade was not so regulated that prohibition was resorted to in other countries.

The report was adopted.

Bishop Collier said there was no greater work of Catholic action—the furtherance of which the present Pope was making his life-work—than that in which they were engaged. They had still great things to do, because, like the work of the Church in the world, this would never be completed.

The following resolution was unanimously passed:—"This Congress, representing over two hundred branches of the Catholic Total Abstinence Federation of Ireland, comprising a membership of one hundred thousand Irish citizens, makes a solemn protest against—

(a)—The Government's lamentable failure to enforce Part 4 of the Intoxicating Liquor Act of 1927, whereby the Oireachtas is empowered to abolish licences in areas where there are too many of such premises, and where there are sufficient reasons for such abolition;

(b) The Intoxicating Liquor Bill of 1931 (a bill now in suspension, amending the Irish Licensing Act of 1927), which sanctions St. Patrick's Day opening of licensed premises, and contains, in addition, several other clauses favourable to intemperance;

(c) Section 15, Part 2, of the 1927 Intoxicating Liquor Act, which permits the holders of on-licences to sell liquor to bona fide travellers at any hour on a week-day, and so gives legal sanction in Irish towns and villages to midnight opening of public-houses on Sunday nights, especially in connection with dances, causing grave abuses."

The officials were re-elected.

PROTEST FROM THE POPE.

SPAIN'S "MULTIPLE OFFENCES."

SYMPATHETIC MESSAGE TO THE FAITHFUL.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
ROME, Friday.

"WITH all the energy required by my Apostolic Ministry, I vigorously protest against the multiple offences inflicted upon the sacred rights of the Church, which are the rights of God and of souls."

Thus runs a protest against the disestablishment of the Spanish Church, the dissolution of the Order of the Jesuits, and the nationalisation of the property of the Church, sent by the Pope to the Papal Nuncio at Madrid.

His Holiness wishes his protest to be communicated to all "Cardinals, Archbishops, secular and regular clergy, and all sons of the Church of Spain," and is in the form of a letter to the Papal Nuncio.

The Pontiff points out, in the first place, that, as he has been throughout the recent struggle, he is now more than ever close to the faithful in Spain in these days, sharing with them the harms and sorrows of the present menaces and the dangers of the future, and requests that, on the Feast of Christ the King, when he celebrates Mass on behalf of the "universal needs of this moment," they should unite in a special intercession for that great tribulation affecting the beloved Spanish nation.

JESUIT MONASTERY RAIDED

From Reuter's Correspondent.
MADRID, Friday.

The Governor of Vitoria has communicated a note to the Press stating that the police received warning that something strange was happening at a Jesuit monastery in the district.

The police kept watch and overheard conversations regarding revolvers and machine guns. It was found that Jesuits had been holding meetings with individuals belonging to a society for the protection of convents.

The Governor had the doors of the building sealed. Afterwards leaders of the Jesuits in Vitoria visited the Governor and informed him that they would obey the decision of the Cortes and would not take reprisals.

Trouble is reported from other parts of Spain arising out of the bitter religious quarrel which has occasioned great excitement among Catholic students, and in Madrid and elsewhere convents and churches are guarded by police.

AUTHORITIES TO "STOP AT NOTHING."

PREMIER AVERTS NATION-WIDE STRIKE.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
MADRID, Friday.

The Syndicalists had prepared a nation-wide strike for to-day, and only called it off when Señor Azana, the newly-elected Prime Minister, sent word to the organisers that he would stand no trifling and would stop at nothing to preserve order, whether the disturbers were Monarchists, priests or social agitators.

Unrest, however, still prevails throughout Andalusia, where general strikes are in progress in Granada and Cadiz. The Syndicalist railwaymen of Andalusia have called a strike to start at midnight to-night, and the Government is taking the strictest precautions to maintain order.

The trains will be run by soldiers, if necessary, but the Socialist railwaymen have announced that they will not join in the strike, since the Government has promised the question of wage increases will be considered.

FROM "THE TIMES."

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

THE FUNDAMENTAL ISSUE.

The Times remarks in a leading article to-day:—Mr. Henderson declares that the fundamental issue of the coming election is public control of the financial mechanism of the country. He advocates national ownership and control of the banking and credit system. That is valiantly and roundly phrased; yet it is beyond sober belief that he or any colleague of his in the late Cabinet would wish to be put back again under the responsibilities from which they fled in August with a mandate, broadly speaking, to nationalise the City. Possibly Mr. Henderson is trusting to the electors to save him from his friends, his programme and himself. Possibly, too, his trust is well founded.

The pound is no longer defended by gold. Its present strength is the confidence of the world within and beyond our shores. When Mr. Henderson and his venturesome friend, Mr. William Graham, are able to report their conquest and control of Wall street and the foreign Bourses, then it may be time to see how the world will take the plan of subjecting to a Cabinet of Socialists, pledged to a State distribution and dissipation of wealth, the great international exchange called London.

THE LABOUR APPEAL.

The men who now advance it must be supposed themselves to know what foreign, not to speak of domestic, distrust means for national credit. Only two months or more ago their action, or inaction, invited that distrust. Coupled with their ignominious evasions, it broke their careers. As Ministers it chastised and chased them out.

The sincerity of these pompous periods in the Labour appeal is hard to accept, but, whether the leaders are the designers or the prisoners of their programme, there can be no security for the pound nor for all that has, in Mr. Snowden's words, been worked for and won in social amelioration until it is certain that the plan for the organisation of financial panic and for the disruption of the machinery of credit will not appear again, even in the lines of a face-saving and vote-enticing manifesto.

U. S. AT COUNCIL TABLE.

FOR PEACE PACT ISSUES.

JAPAN MAINTAINS OPPOSITION.

LEAGUE RESIGNATION HINTED AT.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
GENEVA, Friday.

THE United States has accepted the invitation of the League Council to be represented in its discussion on the Sino-Japanese dispute, and its representative, Mr. Prentiss Gilbert, Consul in Geneva, attended this evening's sitting and addressed the Council.

His instructions from the State Department in Washington are:—"You are authorised to take part in the discussions when they relate to the possible application of the Kellogg-Briand Pact. You are expected to report on the results of the discussions to the State Department for its determination as to possible action. If you are present at the discussion of any other aspect of the Sino-Japanese dispute it must only be as an observer and auditor."

M. Briand, who presided, voiced the Council's feeling of satisfaction at the presence of the United States representative, saying that the co-operation of America was both significant and symbolic.

Lord Reading.

MR. LESTER'S VIEW.

Lord Reading said:—"This shows that pacification in all matters of controversy instead of the arbitrament of war is the main object of the Pact of Paris as well as of the League."

Mr. Lester (Irish Free State) said that as the representative of a small country he realised the moral importance of the presence of America, a country which had always worked for the peace of the world.

The Council adjourned without fixing the date for the next meeting.

While Japan maintained to the end her opposition to the sending of the invitation, it was noticed that at the opening of this evening's discussion Baron Yoshizawa, the Japanese delegate, went up to the American representative and warmly shook his hand.

Lord Reading this afternoon had an hour and a half's heart-to-heart talk with Baron Yoshizawa, but it appears to have had no very definite result, and there are as yet no signs that Japan is prepared to withdraw her troops.

KELLOGG PACT NOT APPLICABLE.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
TOKYO, Friday.

The Japanese interpretation of the decision to invite the United States to attend the League Council is that the League and America wish to co-operate for the purpose of invoking the Kellogg Pact, thereby forcing the intervention of a third party.

This Japan is determined to resist to the utmost, as she is unable to brook outside interference in the settlement of a dispute that affects her very existence. She is, therefore, it is stated, more likely to break with the League than to retreat from the policy of directly negotiating a settlement with China.

Furthermore, it is pointed out that the Kellogg Pact applies only to warlike activities, while Japan contends that no acts of war have taken place. Even should China declare war Japan would, it is stated, probably disregard it.

Baron Wakatsuki, the Prime Minister, in a statement expressed appreciation of the League's effort for peace, but said the Japanese Government gravely doubted the legality of the decision reached by a majority vote.

[Note.—It is authoritatively stated in Geneva that nothing is known there of the suggestion that Japan might withdraw from the League.]

FREE STATE FOOD PRODUCTS.

INCREASINGLY POPULAR IN BRITAIN.

The activities of Mr. J. W. Dulanty, the High Commissioner of the Irish Free State, in connection with the introduction of dairy produce in this country are well known, and it is interesting to notice that they are to be greatly intensified in the near future.

Twenty-eight Free State creameries have sent entries for competition in the Butter Section of the Dairy Show which opens at the Agricultural Hall, London, next Tuesday.

This year, for the first time, Free State eggs have been entered. Up to this there has been no section in which Free State eggs could compete, but through the efforts of Mr. J. W. Dulanty and the Department of Agriculture the organisers have been induced to create a permanent class in which Free State eggs can compete.

In connection with the competitions, a space has been taken in the Main Hall for a composite display of Free State products—bacon and hams, butter, condensed milk, tinned cream, fresh cream, eggs and turkeys.

A very special effort has been made in connection with this display, having regard to the importance of the occasion, and it is expected that the Free State Stand will be one of the most attractive in the Hall.

CREAM AND BACON.

A particularly good response to the High Commissioner's exhibition publicity on behalf of condensed milk, tinned cream and bacon is being experienced. At Hitchin last week, where a shop was taken and stocked with Free State products, a keen demand was developed, particularly for the tinned cream. An encouraging aspect is that one large trader in the town proposes to stock only Irish bacon and to cut out foreign bacon altogether.

A feature was made also of Round Tower tweeds.

On Monday the Southwark Health Exhibition will be opened by the Lord Mayor of London. There will be a Free State display of bacon, hams and dairy products. Displays are also being arranged at the Bethnal Green, London, Trades Exhibition; the Ideal Homes Exhibition, Cardiff, and the Imperial Fruit Show during the month.

1,286 CANDIDATES NOMINATED.

HOW GENERAL ELECTION WILL BE FOUGHT.

NUMERICAL STRENGTH OF PARTIES.

65 MEMBERS RETURNED UNOPPOSED.

THE total number of candidates nominated for the general election in Great Britain and Northern Ireland yesterday was 1,286. The only outstanding nominations are those for Oxford University (two seats) and the English Combined Universities (two seats).

Sixty-two members—45 Conservatives, 11 Liberals and 6 Labour—were returned unopposed, and three members—two Conservatives and one Liberal—already had been so returned for the Scottish Universities.

An analysis of the unopposed returns shows:—

CONSERVATIVES	47	LIBERALS	12
LABOUR	6	TOTAL	65

The total membership of the House being 615, there remain to be elected 550.

A feature of the nominations is the reduction in the number of three-cornered contests. In 1929 there were 444; on this occasion there will be only 99. Straight fights have increased accordingly; they will number no less than 410.

Sixty-one women have been nominated—eight less than in 1929—and in two constituencies there will be straight fights between women.

MANY MORE STRAIGHT FIGHTS.

The most noteworthy feature of the nominations is the elimination of three-corner and four-corner contests. At the last election there were 444 three-corner contests and 26 four-corner contests in single-member constituencies—470 in all. On this occasion there will be only 99 three-corner contests and 14 four-corner contests in single-member constituencies—a total of 113. This is the smallest number of such contests at any British election for over twenty years.

Of the 99 three-corner fights, 56 are between Conservative, Liberal and Labour. In 39 of these triangles the Liberal candidate is known to be a supporter of the Government, and is, therefore, described as a National Liberal. In three triangles the candidates are Conservative, National Labour and Labour—namely, at Everton, represented in the last House by Mr. Derwent Hall Caine; at Newcastle Central, where Sir Charles Trevelyan is the Labour candidate, and at South-East Essex.

In twelve triangles the candidates represent Conservative, Labour and Sir Oswald Mosley's new party.

In 410 constituencies there is a straight fight between two candidates. At the last election there were only 94 straight fights.

The total number of candidates nominated is 1,286. This includes the unopposed returns and the candidates nominated several days ago for the London and Welsh Universities, but does not include Oxford University and the combined English Universities, nominations for which have not yet been made.

COMPARISON WITH 1929.

The following analysis shows how yesterday's nominations compare with those for the general election in 1929:—

	1931.	1929.
Conservative	517	590
Labour	514	570
National Liberals	123	—
Liberals	37	513
National Labour	21	—
New Party	23	—
Communists	25	25
Others	26	32
Women (included above)	61	69
Three-cornered contests...	99	444

HOW PARTIES FARE.

Included in the National Liberal total of 123 are 39 supporters of Sir John Simon's Liberal National Organisation. Seven of the 39 have been returned unopposed—namely, Dr. Morris Jones, Mr. R. J. Russell, Mr. E. Granville, Mr. Duncan Miller, Mr. Clement Davies, Mr. Ian Macpherson and Mr. Runciman. The names of three of the seven also appeared in the official list of Liberal Party headquarters' candidates.

The Prime Minister has a three-cornered contest at Seaham with Labour and a Communist. Other Ministers involved in three-corner fights are: Sir Herbert Samuel, Sir Donald Maclean, Mr. E. D. Simon, Mr. Milner Gray and Mr. A. E. Glassey, each of whom has Conservative and Labour opponents. Others who have three-corner contests are: Mr. Arthur Henderson, at Burnley (Conservative and Communist), and Mr. Churchill, at Epping (Liberal and Labour).

STRAIGHT FIGHTS.

Ministers who have straight fights against Labour include: Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Sir Austen Chamberlain, Sir Samuel Hoare, Mr. Malcolm Macdonald (the Prime Minister's son), Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, Sir John Gilmour, Mr. Craigie Aitchison, Sir Henry Betterton, Mr. Ormsby Gore and Sir Philip Sassoon. Viscount Elmley, a Liberal member of the Government, who was threatened with Conservative opposition, will have a straight fight in East Norfolk against Labour.

Sir John Simon has a straight fight against Labour. Among those who have straight fights against Conservative candidates are: Mr. Lloyd George, his son (Major Gwilyn Lloyd George) and his daughter (Miss Megan Lloyd George). There are twenty-five straight fights between Conservatives and Liberals.

Labour ex-Ministers who have straight fights against Conservatives include: Dr. Addison, Mr. Clynes, Miss Bondfield (against Miss Irene Ward) and Mr. Tom Kennedy.

Mr. W. E. D. Allen, late member for West Belfast, a supporter of Sir Oswald Mosley, has not been nominated.

Mr. Wal Hannington, who is now in prison, has been nominated as Communist candidate for Bermondsey West.

WOMEN CANDIDATES.

Sixty-one women are among the candidates—eight less than the number nominated in 1929. There were fifteen women in the late Parliament, and all but one (Lady Cynthia Mosley, who retires for reasons of health) are standing again. Miss Eleanor Rathbone, Independent, is seeking re-election by the English Universities, nominations of which have not yet been made.

The Labour Party again has the largest number of women nominees. The distribution of the women candidates among parties is: Labour 36, Conservative 16, National Liberal 3, Liberal 3, others 3. In the last general election the Labour Party had 30 women candidates, Liberals 25, Conservatives 10, and there were four others.

There are two constituencies in which straight fights will be witnessed between women. At Wallsend Miss Margaret Bondfield, who was Minister of Labour in the Labour Government, has as her only opponent Miss Irene Ward, Conservative; and at East Islington Mrs. Leah Manning is opposed by Miss Thelma Cazalet, Conservative.

A FREE HAND.

THE PREMIER'S PLEDGE.

In a letter written yesterday to the Hon. R. D. Denman, National Labour candidate for Central Leeds, who sat as Labour member in the late Parliament, Mr. Macdonald spoke of those of his old party who had stood by him. He said: You have been few, but you have been gallant, and I cannot but feel that a gallant people will rally to you.

Referring to the Government's appeal for a free hand, Mr. Macdonald says: There is one pledge we can give firmly—that we will act without prejudice, in accordance with our honest judgment, on the merits of each problem as it arises.

We shall carry on together our old work for peace and for international settlements, which will put an end to impossible efforts to pay vast sums in War debts and reparations. We shall watch vigilantly the effect of the de-valued currency on the standards of life of our people, and shall not hesitate to take action regarding it. By the action we have already taken we have warded off serious depreciations in the incomes of the masses of our people, and we shall pursue that work until these days of uncertainty have passed.

APPEAL FOR NATIONAL LABOUR.

MR. SNOWDEN EXPOSES OPPOSITION.

Mr. Snowden, in a letter which he has sent personally to all candidates of the National Labour Party, says:—I would like to send you my best wishes for success in your gallant fight. Your courageous action in following the path of duty in this crisis in our country's destinies deserves, and I believe will receive, the emphatic support of your electorate.

The National Government is appealing to the country to show its condemnation of the cowardice and untrustworthiness of men who ran away from their national duty in the hour of crisis.

The Labour Party officials have issued an election manifesto which has no relation whatever to the present national emergency. It is a programme which they themselves know they could not carry out if they had a parliamentary majority. If they attempted to carry it out, they would bring immediate and irretrievable ruin to the country.

They are now professing to be opposed to tariffs. This is the crowning act of their attempt to delude the electors. The very men who have issued the Labour Party appeal against tariffs proposed and voted in the late Labour Cabinet for the immediate imposition of tariffs. What can be said of the political honesty of men who play fast and loose with principles for the sake of party advantage?

JEWEL ROBBERY AT DALKEY.

ARTICLES VALUED AT £300.

Jewels valued at nearly £300 were stolen from the residence of the Rev. A. W. B. Mack, Strawberry Hill, Dalkey, Co. Dublin, between 8 and 10 o'clock on Thursday night last.

They included a platinum pendant on a platinum chain, with a diamond and pearl attached, and with a large pear-shaped pearl drop, valued at £200; a gold and platinum diamond cluster ring, with a large diamond in the centre, and a number of small diamonds set around it, and a large one valued at a little over £70; a gold bracelet, and an emerald and diamond ring.

It appears that some of the jewels had been lying on the dressing table, and others were in unlocked drawers. The discovery was made at about ten o'clock by Miss Dorothy Mack, who owned the jewels. She told her father, who was in his study with his wife. The window of the room was found to be open. No person has been arrested in connection with the affair.

THE NEW HOUSE OF COMMONS.

EXCESS OVER FORMER ELECTIONS.

WITH the nomination of candidates for the new House of Commons yesterday a considerable proportion of the members were returned without opposition.

At the close of nominations sixty-five M.P.'s had been returned, including the three elected for the Scottish Universities. They consisted of:—

CONSERVATIVES	47
LABOUR	6

There are thus already 59 supporters of the National Government and six opponents.

FOUR HONORARY DEGREES.

PROFESSOR JOLY AMONG THOSE HONOURED.

MISS ELEANOR HULL.

Dr. Douglas Hyde, speaking in Irish, introduced Miss Eleanor Hull in absentia for the degree of Doctor of Literature. He said that it was not necessary to say anything about Miss Hull's works, which were well known. He did not think that there was anybody who had done more for Irish abroad than Miss Hull. She had done great work for Irish music and Irish folk-lore, but, above all, they owed her their thanks for her work for the Irish Texts Society for many years.

PROFESSOR JOHN JOLY.

Professor Conway introduced Professor John Joly, M.A., Sc.D.F.R.S., for the Degree of Doctor of Science of the National University.

He said that in the present year the Royal Dublin Society celebrated its 200th birthday. After surviving, for two centuries, many vicissitudes, it had now reached a position which rendered it, from several points of view, the admiration of the whole world. In order to join in the congratulations which came from all parts of Europe, America, and even more distant, the National University, which, both in agriculture and science, contributed to no small extent in its work, decided to confer an honorary degree on the President of the Society, John Joly.

It so happened that he who held the highest position was also a scientist of the first rank and of world-wide fame. It would, indeed, take long to recount the achievements of more than forty years of scientific activity. Not only had Professor Joly devised many and diverse instruments of precision, but his hypotheses had illuminated the mysteries of the interior of this earth and its age and of other bodies of the solar system. The discovery of radio activity substances he had utilised in many directions, and his method of attacking the dread disease of cancer by means of radium emanation had spread to all parts of the world.

On this distinguished professor of Trinity College, Dublin, the National University desired to confer its degree of Doctor of Science.

SIR BANISTER FLETCHER AND PROFESSOR A. M. BUTLER.

Professor Purcell, introducing Sir Banister John Joly, M.A., ScD.,F.R.S., for the degree of M.Arch., said that Sir Banister Fletcher had travelled widely in many countries, and his rich store of knowledge had been placed at the disposal of the public in many publications. He had produced many volumes dealing with every phase of architectural theory and practice. They welcomed him that day to receive the honorary degree which his remarkable achievements fully merited.

Referring to Professor Butler, Professor Purcell said that his whole professional life had been spent in Ireland, and many churches in the four provinces bore witness to the high standard of his æsthetic taste. Anxious to work in the native materials of the country, he had built enduring monuments of his skill as an architect.

University College, Dublin, was a beautiful example of his art. It was fitting that he should undertake the duties of the Chair of Architecture in the College which bore the outward mark of his genius, and which was the first to establish an academic school of architecture in Ireland.

IN NORTHERN IRELAND

THREE CONTESTS ONLY.

Elections to the House of Commons will take place in only three divisions of Northern Ireland, the nominations in which were:—

BELFAST, EAST—*Captain the Right Hon. Herbert Dixon (National Conservative); Mr. John Campbell (Socialist).

BELFAST, WEST—Captain A. Crawford Browne, J.P. (National Conservative); Mr. T. J. Campbell, K.C. (Irish Nationalist).

TYRONE and FERMANAGH (two members)—*Mr. Joseph Devlin (Irish Nationalist); *Mr. Cahir Healy (Irish Nationalist); Captain Y. A. Burges (National Conservative); Mr. Hugh Montgomery Irwin (National Conservative).

*Represented division in last Parliament.

M. LAVAL'S DEPARTURE.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

LE HAVRE, Friday.

The French Premier, M. Laval, left for the United States on board the Ile de France. His pretty 19 years old daughter, Josette, has persuaded her father to take her with him.

Among many subjects that will be discussed, the suspension of the gold standard by Great Britain will loom large. Other factors will be the world depression, and the international gold position, since France and America between them hold by far the greater part of the world's gold supplies.

SCIENCE BOOT POLISH AND SHOE CREAM

THEY'RE A PAIR—SCIENCE MAKES ALL THAT DIFFERENCE

Yes, they're a pair, though one does look like a poor relation. Just a difference of polish, that's all. Wonderful how a regular Science-shine will put even a shabby boot into the smart set. Makes them gleam like the bore of a gun-barrel—and it's not all on the surface either. Science feeds the leather, keeps it supple, makes it waterproof. You don't have to believe us—there's a shop round the corner where you can buy Science for twopence a tin.

FIRST CEREMONY PERFORMED.

THE EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS ALTAR.

DR. BYRNE BLESSES THE SITE.

THE first ceremony in connection with the Eucharistic Congress, to be held next year in Dublin, took place yesterday on the ground in Phœnix Park where the High Mass of the Congress will be celebrated on a great altar to be erected on the Fifteen Acres.

The Archbishop of Dublin (Dr. Byrne) went there in the afternoon, and, with an ordinary working spade, raised the first sod on the place where the altar will be built.

His Grace, who was attended by the Rev. T. O'Donnell (Secretary) and the Rev. M. Murphy (Assistant Master of Ceremonies), raised a sod from the ground and turned it over. Having said prayers, His Grace addressed the assembly, saying:—

THE ADDRESS.

"We are all working hard to make the Eucharistic Congress a success. These external actions which we have performed, the blessing of the place where one of the pillars of the altar will be laid, and the raising of the sod, symbolise that the time is approching, and approaching fast, when the great act will be performed. The Holy Mass, the great sacrifice of the New Law, will be offered on this spot, will be offered for our nation at home and abroad—Ireland at home and beyond the seas.

"Let us hope that the blessing of Almighty God may be on our work, and that nothing may be wanting in us or in our people to prevent us from sharing in the greatest blessing of the Sacrament. Christ will walk amongst His people, as He walked upon the sea, to lift us up as He lifted Peter of old, and place us amongst the angels and saints. God grant that our nation may be once again a nation of saints and scholars." (Applause.)

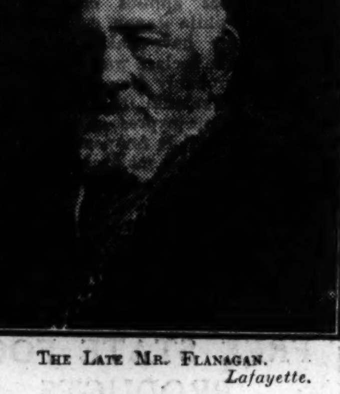
As the Archbishop was about to leave the Lord Mayor of Dublin asked His Grace to cut a piece from the sod he had turned to be sent to Sister Mary Cronan, of the Dominican Convent, Boxburgh, Transvaal. The Archbishop did as requested, blessing the sod.

OBITUARY.

MR. MICHAEL FLANAGAN.

We regret to announce the death, at the age of 99, of Mr. Michael Flanagan, father-in-law of President Cosgrave, which took place at his residence, Portmahon House, South Circular road, Dublin, yesterday.

In his passing there has been snapped another link with the public life of Dublin of those stormy days of the last century. Mr. Flanagan was identified in those times with the municipal government of the city, and was for many years an Alderman for Usher's Quay Ward. Although not given to lengthy orations in the Council meetings, he was always listened to because of the sound common-sense views he had to offer. He took an active interest in public health affairs, and was a member of the Public Health Committee, his work being characterised by a keen desire to improve the conditions of the working people, at the same time having proper regard to the expenditure of money and the avoidance of useless or reckless undertakings.



THE LATE MR. FLANAGAN.
Lafayette.

As a business man he was mainly, if not entirely, interested in agriculture, and had a large farm at Crumlin, and also some lands on the south side of the city. From these he exported annually great quantities of agricultural produce to the English markets, and gave a great deal of employment.

It was in his private life, however, that he was best known. He had a host of friends, who thoroughly enjoyed the pleasant times they spent at his house, as much for the splendid generosity of his table as for the fund of stories and reminiscences which were their invariable accompaniment. In that respect Alderman Flanagan had an almost inexhaustible storehouse from which to draw from the personal experiences of a life which had brought him in contact with virtually everybody of interest in the public life of the country during the last sixty or seventy years.

Apart from his own activities, he was widely known as the father of his three sons, William and Lawrence, who both pre-deceased him, and of his third son, Mr. Frank Flanagan, who is so well known in city life.

His passing will be regretted by a large circle of friends in all sections of the community.

MAJOR W. T. BUTLER.

The death has occurred of Major Walter Theobald Butler, Kilmurry, Thomastown, Co. Kilkenny, at the age of seventy-seven. He was brother of the late Colonel Somerset James Butler, and heir-presumptive to his distant cousin, Lord Mountgarrett.

COST OF LIVING IN BRITAIN.

The cost of living figure on October 1 was 45 per cent. above that of July, 1914. It has remained unchanged since September. The figure for food alone, 28 per cent. above pre-war, was also unchanged.

WATERWAYS, LIMITED.

FROM THE LIFFEY TO THE RIVER SHANNON.

VI.—The Beginning of Calamity.

BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

THE omens were still fair when we filled up the Banba's tank, and set out to make the hazardous journey from Killaloe to Limerick. We had no desire to visit Limerick itself, since it is a reasonably large town, and our idea was to get as far from towns as possible; but Mary had set her heart perversely on going through the great lock at Ardnacrusha. Now, once having passed Ardnacrusha, we had perforce to visit Limerick in order to obtain a permit to go up the Shannon again.

The way of the Shannon Navigation is this. A permit costing 9s. will allow a pleasure boat to travel as far as she likes either up or down the river. There are several locks and bridges, at each of which a separate toll must be paid if one does not possess an inclusive permit; and the total of these separate tolls comes very much heavier than 9s. Accordingly, we determined to pass through the Ardnacrusha lock, pay a hasty call at the navigation office in Limerick, two miles further down the river, and return to Killaloe on the same day.

THE "SUNK CANAL."

Things, alas, did not turn out as we had anticipated. It was on this section of her journey that the first of her two misfortunes came upon the Banba, compelling us to abandon the second half of our journey. However, these shall be told in their due place.

We set off, as I have said, down the Navigation's canal from Killaloe. For a mile, perhaps, the canal was "just ordinary," running peacefully beside the Shannon, which at this place was unnavigable. Then we passed through a pair of derelict lock gates, and all of a sudden one of the strangest of the many strange sights on our journey lay before us. There was no longer a comfortable canal with banks on either side, but instead we chugged along a carefully buoyed and marked channel, in the midst of what appeared to be a lake of quite respectable dimensions.

THE PILOT BUSINESS.

This was the "sunk canal" of which everybody had warned us since we had left Ringsend. The lake that we saw stretching on either side of us was artificial, having been produced when they raised the level of the Shannon in these parts to provide sufficient water for the headrace at Ardnacrusha. My technical details may not be correct; but, so far as I could understand, that was the explanation. Anyhow, the original navigation canal had been covered, and the whole countryside around flooded to a depth, I believe, of thirty feet, or thereabouts. It was vastly weird to sail among the tree-tops and chimney-pots, which just protruded from the water.

We had been informed in Dublin that it was legally incumbent on wayfarers to take a pilot for the course between Killaloe and Limerick, since there was a constant risk of hitting a chimney-pot, or something of the kind. Several people along the canal, too, had hinted that, while the law issued no instructions in the matter, the company of a pilot was distinctly advisable. Our own conclusion is that this is a pleasant fiction, devised and circulated by the pilots themselves, for the benefit of their own pockets. The navigator would be a very poor one who could not steer any part of this course for himself. There is only one tricky spot, and that is where the old canal becomes merged with the Shannon itself. It is impossible now to see the old junction, since 30 feet of water covers it; but the navigation marks, which are very frequent hereabouts, reveal a sharp and sudden turn to port, which calls for quick manipulation of the helm. After this turn, one voyages across the middle of the new lake over the Shannon's old course for the head-race that feeds Ardnacrusha.

THE HEAD-RACE.

A mile or so ahead there appears a high and imposing bridge across the river. Approaching nearer, however, we saw that the buoys marked out a course to a great gate at the right-hand side of this bridge, and for it we duly headed. Passing beneath the great gate, we were in that miracle of construction, the head-race, and remained in it for many miles. The banks of the race, where they slope down to the water, are built of concrete, and there are frequent bridges of an admirable simplicity of design. It was a bright, sunny day, and we let the Banba dawdle, eating sandwiches the while, until, as we rounded a bend, the works of Ardnacrusha lay before us, looking, as the small girl had it, just like their pictures. We saw the great gate of the lock open to receive us; for it is the custom of the Shannon authorities to warn the lockman by telephone that a vessel is approaching. The white stone of the works shone blindingly in the sunlight, and the darkness of the lock, in its perfect stillness, was almost terrifying. There was something of the dragon's mouth about it; but we stilled our beating hearts, shut off the engine, and the Banba glided slowly in.

By means of the Ardnacrusha lock one descends 108 feet—that is to say, somewhere about the height of Nelson Pillar—in two nearly equal stages. We went into a colossal chamber, whose top, from the surface of the water, seemed to be as high as a cathedral. Far above us we could see a balcony and a window. As soon as we were safely inside, there came the clang of a gong, and behind us the great iron gate dropped slowly into the water. A man appeared at the window. Another signal, and we were sinking, but ever so slowly. It was like sinking down a vast chimney. There was not even the familiar sound of rushing water that one hears in an ordinary lock: everything was silent, save for the dim murmur of the works outside. Then the sinking stopped, and another huge metal wall in front rose slowly from the water. We started up the engine, which made an appalling racket in the confined space, and proceeded into the next chamber.

"FEET FIRST."

There is was that I very nearly played the coward. While we were level with the top of the second chamber, the lockman approached and demanded our permit (a separate permit, by the way, is required for the Ardnacrusha lock, but it is thrown in, so far as fee is concerned, with the general permit). Next, as we started to descend, he suggested that we might like to look over the works. Naturally we agreed, and he pointed out that we could leave the Banba at the bottom of the lock, and come up the ladder by its side. Thoughtfully, too, he remarked that it might be as well if the lady came up now, and Mary gleefully stepped from the deck and mounted the ten feet of perpendicular iron ladder which separated the lock quay from the sinking Banba. It was only when she had gone and the Banba continued to sink that I realised what I had let myself in for. By the time the level stopped sinking I would be fifty feet below the quay, and I would have that appalling distance of perpendicular ladder to climb. The prospect turned me chilly inside; for I have no head for heights; and when I strained my eyes upwards to Mary and the lockman, who looked midgets at that horrid distance, I had half a mind to throw up the sponge and stay where I was.

However, the thought of Mary's jeering if I shirked it was too terrible, and, biting my under-lip hard, I set foot upon the ladder, keeping my eyes fast fixed upon its rungs, and turning my head neither to the right nor to the left, neither upwards nor downwards. As a matter of fact, it was not so bad, and I was at the top in no time. But my pleasure was spoiled by the thought that both of us would have to descend the abominable wall again. It was most damnably unpleasant to step over the brink, from which the Banba, as she lay below, appeared about the size of a cigar.

Anyhow, we only saw the outside of the works. One may not enter without a guide, and the four o'clock party had just gone in when we arrived. Mary was not desperately anxious to see them, but we agreed that it was the correct thing to do, and decided to make speed down the river, obtain our upgoing permit at Limerick, and return in time for the five o'clock party. So we shut our eyes, climbed down the lock wall, swung the engine, and started down the tail-race (one bank of which is jagged cliff, highly unsalutary for any boat that might chance to bump it).

But when at last we came back to Ardnacrusha, it was in tow of a Shannon barge; and here the tale of our tribulation begins.

THE IDEAL COMPARED WITH THE ACTUAL.

THE fourth and concluding lecture of the series, under the Lady Ardilaun Foundation, was given yesterday in Alexandra College, Dublin, by Miss Eileen Power, Professor of Economics in the University of London, who took for her subject "Women's Lives in Mediæval France."

"Of all classes of the community," said Miss Power, "the housewife has received least attention at the hands of historians. History has been disposed to take the housewife for granted, and, so far as it has concerned itself with women at all, has taken more romantic figures for its heroines. Nevertheless, for anyone who is interested in the humble annals of the home, it is by no means difficult to collect a great mass of material by which the lives of these dead housewives may be reconstructed, and one-half of human existence given its due place in history.

"There is certainly," she said, "room for a history of the home, to take its place beside the political, constitutional, intellectual, and economic histories which crowd our shelves. In wills, in account books, in private letters, in didactic treatises, and in works of literature, the mediæval housewife lies, like the statue in the block of stone, only waiting for the scapel of the historian to release her."

ROMANCE.

Speaking of the feudal lady of the upper class, Professor Power said that the mind most readily pictures the lady engaged in her complicated love affairs, half formal and half passionate, or else in amusements, playing interminable games of chess, flying hawks, training up young squires in the art of love, or queening it at tournaments.

All this and more was to be seen in the illuminated manuscripts of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries.

To form a picture of the real, rather than the ideal, lady of chivalry we must turn our face sternly away from romances and consider the more homespun material of records, supplemented here and there by a rare biography, and more adequately by those books of deportment for women, which form an important class in the didactic literature of the Middle Ages, and between them deal with almost every side of female behaviour.

In the Middle Ages the constant wars threw a great deal of responsibility on wives as representatives of their absent husbands. The lord, in his clumsy masculine way, got himself taken prisoner. Who was it that collected his ransom, squeezing every penny from the estate? Who was it acted as executor of his will and other family matters? In nine cases out of ten it was the wife. The feudal lady had to be prepared at any moment to do her lord's job as well as her own, were she the Queen regent or an obscure country gentlewoman.

TOWN AND COUNTRY.

The romantic, lonely, and capricious lady of chivalry flirting and embroidering and playing chess was the theory.

We got a sidelight on this in one of those didactic books addressed to women—"The Book of the Three Virtues," written about 1406 by a woman, Christine de Roan, one of the most remarkable women of her day.

Having, so to speak, reconstructed the life and activities of the feudal lady, ruling her household in some castle or mansion lying amid woods and wide fields in the country, the lecturer drew a picture of the town housewife, the well-to-do merchant's wife, who kept house within city walls. In her husband's office and in his home the women of the bourgeoisie, like the great ladies of the countryside, had a full and responsible life, but it had its amusements as well.

The lecture was illustrated by lantern slides.

Sir Philip Hanson paid a compliment to Miss Power for her brilliant series of lectures. They inside this College and the public owed a debt of gratitude to the memory of Lady Ardilaun for having established these annual lectures. He had never enjoyed any course of these lectures more than the one just concluded.

ST. PATRICK AND THE MASS.

PAPER AT CATHOLIC CONFERENCE.

PROTESTANT VIEWS DISPUTED.

THE Bishop of Meath, Dr. Mulvany, presided last night at the Conference of the Catholic Truth Society in the Mansion House, Dublin, when the Rev. John Ryan, S.J., read a paper on "The Mass in the Irish Church."

Father Ryan said that Mass was celebrated regularly by St. Peter, regularly by St. Paul, regularly by the other Apostles, regularly by the Desciples during the two generations that followed the first Pentecost, and so on down to the time of St. John Chrysostom. This saint and St. Patrick were contemporaries. St. Patrick was also contemporary with St. Jerome and St. Augustine, for whom the Mass was a commonplace of Christian teaching and practice. For St. Patrick, therefore, the Mass was also a commonplace of Christian teaching and practice.

So often had this truth been ignored by those who purported to be writing history that it was well to emphasise it. On that point there could be no confusion, no obscurity, no uncertainty. The Church founded by St. Patrick in Ireland had a central act of worship, and that central act of worship was the Eucharistic Sacrifice—the Mass.

There was, said the lecturer, a curious piece of evidence to show that the liturgy introduced by St. Patrick into Ireland, presumably that which he had learned in the south of Gaul during the period of his formation, was strongly influenced by the liturgy of Milan. The Apostle of Ireland said his first Mass on Irish soil for his Irish converts where the river Scan entered Strangford Loch, in the barn of the swineherd Dichu.

FOUNDING OF ARMAGH.

Twelve years after his arrival in Ireland Patrick could proceed to found a primatial see, and his choice fell on the height of Macha, a few miles distant from the ancient fortified dwelling-place of Conor MacNessa and his successors, the Ulster Kings. A spacious church, with walls great and high, soon crowned the hilltop at Armagh. Where St. Patrick stood his successor now stood, a bishop like the great apostle, a primate like the great apostle, a member of that august Senate which aided the Vicar of Christ in the government of the universal Church to offer the same adorable sacrifice to the Eternal Father for the children of the Gael.

Strangers had done their best to oust the Mass from its place of honour in the holy mount, but the Mass remained the same in every substantial part as it was when celebrated by St. Patrick.

To win back to the Catholic fold their non-Catholic countrymen, to unity with themselves in the bosom of the one true Church, was their first duty as a missionary people. It must be chiefly done by example. Once among them they would cling to the Mass as every generation of their race had clung since St. Patrick established his first altar in their midst. Fidelity to the Mass meant fidelity to Ireland's destiny.

The Bishop of Meath remarked that they had seen that their Protestant fellow-countrymen intended to celebrate the fifteenth centenary of St. Patrick's coming to Ireland. They were glad to see Protestants giving honour where honour was due; but when they came to explain their motives their reasons called for protest.

They said that St. Patrick had no Romish ways about him, and, particularly, that he was not tainted with the Romish superstition of the Mass. He (Dr. Mulvany) thought that Father Ryan had blown that pretension to pieces. Protestants told them that St. Patrick never referred to the Mass in his writings. Father Ryan had given the sufficient explanation that St. Patrick did not refer to the Mass because it was a commonplace of his religion.

"THE MASS AND COMMUNION."

The Archbishop of Tuam, Dr. Gilmartin, presided in the afternoon, when the Very Rev. John Flanagan, P.P., gave an address on "The Mass and Communion."

The lecturer said that the Eucharist was the Mass and Holy Communion—the sacrifice of the Body and Blood of Christ under the appearances of bread and wine, offered to God by a priest for the living and the dead, and received by the faithful that they might have in perfection the greatest of all virtues—the virtue of charity. The Mass was the Church's solemn public act of worship. The Communion signified something more. It typified "our cousinship with the Most High," where an accepted sacrifice could bring about that union of brotherly love of which the worship and protecting beneficence of God was the most effective bond.

The official attitude of Popes and Councils had always been in favour of frequent Communions. Frequent and daily Communion was to be considered the right of all the faithful of whatever state or condition in life, provided they were in a state of grace and approached the holy table with a right and pious disposition of mind, not, that was, through custom or vanity or human motives, but with the desire to please God, do His will, and become more and more closely united to Him in charity.

The Archbishop, in moving a vote of thanks to Father Flanagan, said that he was somewhat disappointed that the lecturer did not say a word about children, because there was nothing more delightful to him than to give Communion to children, who showed wonderful reverence. Heads of colleges and schools had told him of the improvement in the morals and conduct of boys and girls since the exhortation was given them by Pope Pius X. to go to Holy Communion. Catholics, the Archbishop said, could not believe in the Holy Eucharist by reason alone. It was a gift of faith. They who had the gift of faith should respond to the love of God.

FEIS CEOIL.

The first meeting of the Feis Ceoil Executive Committee for the season 1931-32 was held on Thursday, at 37 Molesworth street.

Mr. Henry Maguire was in the chair, and there were also present—Mrs. Boxwell, Mr J. Robertson Coade, Mrs. Stewart, Mr. Sealy Jeffares, Miss E. A. Kelly, Mr. Thomas H. Weaving, Mr. Edmond Lupton, Mrs. Larchet, Major Birch, Dr. Larchet, Miss Lynch, Mr. J. E. Geoghegan, Dr. Hewson, Mrs. Lupton, Miss Griffith (Hon. Secretary), and Miss Edith Mortier (Registrar).

The question of the Choral Competitions was discussed, and various members of the Committee expressed the wish that the classes for trades and commercial choirs should be revived. The Committee were in full sympathy with this, and it is hoped that, if sufficient support on the part of choirs can be secured, it may be possible to include a competition of this class in the new syllabus.

OLYMPIA SHOW SURPRISES.

BIG OPENING DAY ATTENDANCE.

WILL THE OPEN BODY BE REVIVED?

LONDON, Friday.

THE attendance at the Olympia Motor Show yesterday, the opening day, was a "record" one, much to the general surprise, as it had been supposed that there might be a falling off in public interest. To-day the price of admission was half-a-crown, half the usual charge on the second day of the Show, and the turnstiles were kept extremely busy. The interest in the world's "record"-breaking machines, the Schneider aeroplane, Miss England II. and the Blue Bird is tremendous, and each is surrounded by a crowd.

One of the surprises of the Show is an inquiry experienced for open touring cars. For years past the tendency has been towards saloons, and last year it was said that the open touring car was dead.

THE 10-14 H.P. CLASS.

The class devoted to cars between 10 and 14 h.p. contains many entirely new models and is of importance, inasmuch as it includes popular four-cylinder types and examples with six cylinders.

The Hillman Minx is an entirely new production. It has a four-cylinder engine rated at 9.8 h.p., of straightforward design, with side-by-side valves and three-speed gear box built in one unit. Particular attention has been devoted to providing as much body room as possible on a chassis with a track of four feet and a wheel-base of seven feet eight inches.

On the new Riley Nine the height has been reduced and more head-room provided by dropping the side members of the frame, and at the same time the rear seat has been widened.

There are several changes on the Standard Big Nine, which now has a four-speed gear box with silent third. Steering and suspension have been improved, and the petrol tank is placed at the rear.

The Crossley Ten is another car which is entirely new. It has a four-cylinder engine, with overhead inlet and side exhaust valves, an unusual feature of a car of so small dimensions, being a down draught carburetter.

The Morris Cowley is shown in a much improved form, with hydraulic brakes, petrol tank mounted at the rear, and with a choice of two engine sizes at the same price, for in addition to the engine of 11.9 h.p., an alternative power unit of 14 h.p. may be obtained. For most purposes in this country the 11.9 h.p. engine has been found powerful enough, and in its new form it is more efficient than its predecessors, but there has been a demand, especially from the overseas Dominions, for a rather larger power output, and to satisfy this requirement the larger engine has been introduced. The Morris Major has undergone several important changes, and the engine, which is fitted with a fume-consuming head, has been reduced so that it comes within the rating of 14 h.p., and will pay a British tax of £14 instead of £15. The third Morris production to come within this class is also a six-cylinder car. It is the Oxford, with a 15 h.p. engine, and the most notable change compared with last year is the adoption of a four-speed gear box, giving a silent third gear. In all cases the Morris models have been improved in appearance, and the new radiators are of a distinctly pleasing design.

A POPULAR CAR.

The Austin "Twelve-Six," introduced earlier in the year, makes its first appearance at Olympia, and is shown with standard coachwork and de luxe bodies. This car achieved instant popularity, which it is likely to maintain next season, and its success has done much to bring the small six-cylinder car into favour.

The Wolseley Hornet, another small six-cylinder car, strikes an unusual note, as the radiator has been brought to about the level of the front wheel rims, so that the utmost use has been made of the area of the chassis to add to the space within the body.

On the Rover "Ten" improved bodywork is noticeable, and the springs are now fitted with zinc interleaves to improve suspension and render lubrication unnecessary.

Two Singer models come within this class, one being the "Ten," and the other the "Twelve-Six." The former has an actual rating of 10.5 h.p., with four cylinders, while the latter is actually 12.95 h.p., with six cylinders. In both cases the valves are of the side-by-side description. The Singers are wonderfully improved cars in appearance, and in mechanical details they are neatly designed and well finished.

No fewer than six examples of the 10 h.p. Peugeot are shown at Olympia. Much of the success of this car, in the way of reliability and smoothness of running, is due to the sturdiness of the crank-shaft, which weighs twenty pounds, and is supported by bearings of large diameter. Coachwork includes a well-made standard saloon and various types of de luxe bodywork, which is of a handsome description.

There are two Talbot cars in this class—the Scout and the Fourteen—the latter being a larger edition of the former, for both are rated at 13.9 h.p.; but the Fourteen has a larger chassis and full-sized coach-work is mounted. In both cases a four-speed gear box is now fitted, and another new feature is a hand pump placed under the bonnet, by means of which warm engine oil may be sent direct to several chassis points. Lubrication is such an important point that the really positive method of delivering oil to the right spots has much to commend it.

The M.G. Magna is an entirely new production, with a six-cylinder engine, rated at 12 h.p., with overhead camshaft. It has four speeds and there are two carburetters. It is shown as a two-door four-seater saloon, with sliding roof, and it strikes a note of speed at every angle.

THE WORM DRIVE.

The Rover Pilot is a new six-cylinder rated at 13 h.p., the distinctive features of which are worm drive enclosed shaft and overhead valves. The revival of worm drive will be watched with interest for the principle is not without supporters in spite of the almost universal adoption of the spiral bevel.

The Renault models to come within this classification are the Twelve-Six, which is a six-cylinder car rated at 12.5 h.p., the Ten, which has a rating of 10.8 h.p., and the 13.9, known as the Speed Four, which is also available as the Big Four, with the same engine, but with larger chassis dimensions. All have side valves, and in bodywork and mechanism they are well up to Renault excellence.

The Triumph Scorpion is an instance of a more commodious body being mounted on a small six-cylinder chassis, and in this case the coachwork has been vastly improved.

Taking this class of from 10 to 14 h.p. or so, generally, it may be said that there is an increasing demand for vehicles within these power limits, and the lead given by British designers in developing this class is being followed in all other motor-building countries.

THE BRITISH LEGION.

WORK OF WOMEN'S SECTION.

There was a good attendance at the annual general meeting of the Central Branch British Legion, Women's Section (Godmothers), held in the Hibernian Hotel during the week.

The Hon. Secretary (Mrs. J. Canning Loughridge), in her report, said that the printed brochure of the work carried out by the Branch during the past six years embodied all she had to say, with the exception of the amount of employment which had been found for men and women during the last year; permanent employment had been found for a great many. For example, during the last month four men had been placed in good posts. They were very proud of the work achieved, and hoped to continue that good work. Members had very kindly offered to knit socks for the winter, which would be a great help. Clothes were in great demand, and parcels addressed to the Chairman or any member of the Committee would be of great assistance during the winter.

The Hon. Treasurer (Mrs. R. H. Lambert), on submitting the accounts and balance sheet for the year and the auditor's report thereon, stated that the figures of these accounts were also embodied in the brochure. She explained that during the year ending 30th September, 1931, the receipts from all sources amounted to £1,000 16s. 5d., disbursements £936 0s. 11½d., leaving a balance to credit of £64 15s. 5½d. on the year's operations. This has been carried to bank balance, which now shows a surplus of £1,149 5s. 1½d.

COAL AND BOOTS.

Mrs. Smith said that during the year 368 bags of coal had been distributed, an increase on the year previous, and this winter a greater demand would be made on the Coal Fund.

The Chairman, who is in charge of the Boot Fund, said that she had not the exact number of boots given out, but she understood that between 300 and 400 pairs of boots had been distributed. Most of these were new boots, and all men working on the garden scheme had been supplied with new boots. Speaking of Major Hamilton's garden scheme, she advised all members to visit Rosevale and Belgard; there they would see the work carried on, and how delighted these men were for even one day's work per week. Any members wanting a casual gardener, or knowing friends who wanted one, should apply to Major Hamilton, who would be able to send one of his men.

Miss Jackson, reporting on the Training Class, said that over fifty children were on the roll, and a great many more wanted to come on. She said that after all expenses had been paid they had a small balance on hands. Discussing voluntary assistance in teaching cooking and other domestic work, it was decided that, as these children attain the age of fourteen years, a grant be made, and the children be sent to the technical schools and taught whatever subject they were best fitted for.

The Secretary reported that a bridge tournament had been arranged to be held in the Leinster cricket pavilion on Thursday, the 29th October, members to do their utmost to make up tables; also that the annual whist drive in the Mansion House would be held on Wednesday, 18th November, and that tickets would be strictly limited owing to the crush of people last year.

Speaking on the election of officers and committee for the ensuing year, she said that she had asked in the notice of the meeting that names be sent to her for election. As she had received no new names for election, she asked that the present officers and committee go forward again for re-election. On this being put to the meeting they were unanimously re-elected.

A vote of sympathy was passed to Mrs. Stephens on the death of her husband, and to the Misses Armstrong on the death of their brother.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

At a joint meeting of the two Presbyteries of Cork and Munster, held at Fermoy, the Very Rev. R. K. Hanna, D.D., presiding, their union was effected and sanctioned by the Assembly's Committee on the Rearrangement of Presbyteries. The united Presbytery, which has the oversight of the Church's work in the province, has agreed to the name of the Presbytery of Munster, and appointed the Rev. Victor Cotter, M.A., as its first clerk, and the Rev. Martin Rea, M.A., as its Moderator.

The autumn reunion of Sandymount Congregation was held in the Lecture Hall on Wednesday evening, the Girls' Auxiliary providing the entire programme. Musical items were contributed by Miss Helen Latchford and Mr. Wilson. During the evening a presentation of a handsome Celtic bag was made by the members of the choir, past and present, to Miss Campbell on the occasion of her retirement from the post of organist, which she has held for many years.

The Rev. Geoffrey Johnston, B.A., assistant minister of First Bangor Congregation, younger son of the Rev. Dr. J. C. Johnston, senior minister of Abbey Church, Dublin, and Mrs. Geoffrey Johnston, were entertained by the people of Bangor in the Guildhall on the occasion of their departure to take up work in America. The Rev. W. J. Currie, B.A., minister, Mr. James Black, session clerk, and others testified to the good work Mr. and Mrs. Johnston had done and the appreciation they had won. Valedictory presentations were made by Mrs. Currie.

APPLE-GROWING IN IRELAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—For the past ten years I have been growing apples under the co-operative system in British Columbia. In order to reach the Free State and other European markets our fruit has to travel 350 miles to the port of Vancouver. From there, after fifty-two days at sea, it arrives on your markets at a cost of approximately eight shillings per box of forty-two pounds, for carriage alone. Such high carriage costs could only be borne by a co-operative association. With your ample rainfall, your mild climate and your home market capable of absorbing the greater proportion of your home-grown fruit, it seems a pity that such advantages are not exploited more fully. There are many professional and business men, with residential small holdings of four or more acres on the outskirts of the city, whose land could be made income-producing by plantings of fifty to one hundred trees, a mixed dessert and culinary apple orchard of between one and two acres.

A "small-holders'" fruit-growing association, controlling a number of such small orchards, would make available for its members the benefits of mass purchase of nursery stock, spray and other orchard materials, and could act as a clearing-house for instruction in modern orchard practices and in supervision of the planting and maintenance of the orchards. After planting, the gardener usually employed on residential small holdings could, under supervision, take care of the young orchard, until it came into bearing. When the small orchards came into bearing, the apples from the controlled acreage could be marketed co-operatively by the association from a centralised packing-house, where all orchard produce would be graded and the packing standardised. Nursery stock, purchased co-operatively, would cost £7 per one hundred two-year-old trees.

The natural advantages in climate and geographical position which the Free State enjoys, together with modern orchard methods in picking, handling, grading and packing, should make an unbeatable combination. Not the least advantage would be that apples grown locally could be tree-ripened before being placed on the market. The full flavour of the apples grown in the Free State would give them a tremendous advantage over imported fruit, which, on account of the great distance it has to travel and the time taken in reaching your markets, must of necessity be picked and shipped before its full sugar content has developed. Most of the imported fruit is shipped immature and ripens in the box. I shall gladly go into further details of such a scheme with any persons interested if they will communicate with me at 179 Pearse street, Dublin.—Yours, etc.,

J. M. JEPHSON.

BALDOYLE TO-DAY.

COLD PUNCH FANCIED FOR THE WILLIAMSTOWN S'CHASE.

Trains—Amiens street, 1.0, 1.30, 1.50, 2.5 p.m.

TO-DAY'S meeting marks the end of the season at Baldoyle, where, of course, there will be racing again in a little over two months' time. The continuance of the wonderful weather we have been experiencing should attract a big crowd to the popular course, and the mixed programme of racing will provide very attractive sport. Big fields do not always mean good racing, and an average of about seven a race, as will be the average to-day, generally works out best.

Although there will be only five runners for the Williamstown Steeplechase it is quite on the cards that this will provide a particularly interesting race. Columbus has incurred a 7lb. penalty by virtue of his win at Naas last Saturday, but Mr. C. A.

Tote Double on Third and Sixth Races.

Rogers's horse has been showing such good form of late that it would not be surprising to see him win. Still one must prefer the chances of such as Cold Punch and Koscie's Star, and, while taking the three as the likely lot to supply the winner, the selection is Cold Punch.

The Irish Cesarewitch candidate, Essexhall is among the runners declared for the Rockingham Plate, and even it he wins he does not incur any further penalty beyond the 5lb. already incurred in the Curragh race. He has a big task to carry 12st. 12lb., and may not be equal to beating either Riverholme or Pucka Ranee. The former of this pair may run instead for the Somerton Hurdle Race, in which case the chance of Essexhall would be considerably enhanced.

Sunny Side Up is another horse with dual engagements, but it is likely that this three year-old will be saddled for the Directors Handicap, in which he will have his work cut out to account for such as Follow Me, Wandering Wing and Regained. Now that Mr. J. J. Maher's mare has broken the long sequence of defeats she sustained, she may keep on winning.

A penalty of 5lb. will not improve Rosemary's Pet's chance of winning the Heath Nursery, and the possibility is that the unlucky Tiger Toy may at last score. Charlatan has a chance in the Mooresfort Plate to atone for the narrow defeat by Queen of Essex at the Curragh September meeting. Selections:—

Directors' Handicap—Regained.
Heath Nursery—Tiger Toy.
Williamstown Steeplechase—Cold Punch.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE.

UNLUCKY CAROLA.

GOOD PERFORMANCE OF PRIVATE PRESENT.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

NEWMARKET, Friday Night.

WE are never looking for much on the last day of a Newmarket meeting, except on the Friday that the One Thousand Guineas is run for, but the proceedings this afternoon seemed even tamer than usual. The weather, however, was gloriously fine, and that made all the difference. Indeed, I have never seen finer weather for a Second October meeting here, or the going so firm. After the sunshine and the drying winds it was distinctly hard in places to-day.

The racing was, indeed, very poor, and the bookmakers had little chance in several races of getting back their losses on the week. No one, for instance, wanted to lay 100 to 9 on Mr. Tattersall's Inglesant in the Royal Stakes, which he duly won without an effort; for the only other runners were Victory VI and Far and Sure.

Nor were many of them keen about laying long odds on Portlaw in the Kennett Stakes, in which he trotted home in front of Quadrel and Straverna. Sir Abe Bailey intends to keep the Beresford colt in training next season, when he should prove himself a great sprinter.

LEADING ALL THE WAY.

Odds of 7 to 4 had to be laid on Mr. Tattersall's Solario filly, Orta, in the Prendergast Stakes, a race she won easily by half a length from the leggy colt, Astronomer, to whom she was giving 11lb. She ran in front all the way. What a wonderful season in the way of two-year-olds trained at Manton we have had!

The Southfield Stakes saw a none too kindly exhibition on the part of the favourite, Gallic, who went to the front coming in to the dip, but ran on afterwards with little or no resolution, and was beaten a length and a half by Lord Londonderry's filly, Rockliffe, who challenged coming up the hill. The Frivole filly, Popotte, who weakened coming up the hill, was beaten two lengths for second place.

The most interesting event of the day, from a speculative point of view, was the Exning Welter, in which Carola, a filly bred and owned by Mrs. Glorney, was soundly supported. She was none too lucky, and was beaten a head by Watch Light, a little-fancied outsider, owned and trained by Mr. Cottrill, who, after winning a seller last month at Leicester, was bought in for only 100 guineas.

NOTHING IN HER FORM.

She is a nice filly by Warden of the Marches, but there was nothing in her form to suggest she would win here. She had bottom weight, was one of the best drawn, and just got there.

Carola was very unlucky, for she was slowly into her stride, and then had to be switched by Fox from No 6 to the outside. She was thus left with a lot of ground to make up, and she did it; for she was able to take the lead coming up the hill.

Fox seemed to be sitting easily on her, and many people, including the jockey, thought she had won, but the judge decided against her. Lindos Ojos was third, a length away.

The biggest field of the day was that for the Kedington Claiming and Selling Plate, won by Private Present, a gelding by Arch Gift out of Soldier's Daughter, bred in Meath by Captain J. J. Cullen, who beat Carnia by a length and a half.

SELECTIONS.

There is the Lingfield Autumn Oaks tomorrow, in which the Manton stable is responsible for five fillies. Of these Links Tor, Volume, and Sunny Devon remain at home, while Lawson sends Poligny and Tirana. Bacchante and Meg Merrilees will be among the other runners. POLIGNY has such a pull in the weights that she may be the best.

GASHMU may win the Lingfield Handicap, and POOR LAD may beat Polveraja in the Non-Stayers Plate.

At Catterick PEACOCK'S SELECTED may win the Hunworth Nursery, and MAN OF PROPERTY the Frenchgate Welter Handicap.

GALTEE MORE.

NEWMARKET HINTS FOR TO-DAY.

NEWMARKET, Friday.

We shall have more runners at Lingfield than at Catterick Bridge to-morrow. Out, Paris Leave, and will run for the Rustic Selling Nursery, and I give the last-named a slight preference over Paris Leave.

In the Cage Selling Plate I look to Varsity Express and to fight out the issue, and give the latter my vote. Meerkat, Plectrum, and Scily will also run.

The Niche, bottom weight in the Lingfield Handicap, appears to have taken a dislike to racing, whilst Gashmu has not yet found his form this season. Although beaten by King Stork at York, Nitakrit put up a good performance, as she was giving the winner 31lb. Her chance would have been enhanced if the going had been heavy, but she may be the danger to SANS ESPOIR (next best).

I like Vermeil better than Wedding Bells, Forbidden Fancy, and Euphemia for the October Nursery. Fastwork has done well in recent gallops, but my vote goes to

VERMEIL*,

TANTINE

to win the Non-Stayers' Plate.

At Catterick Bridge my fancies are:—2.0—Lady Edith; 2.30—Lustrous; 3.0—White May; 3.30—Dilcrag; 4.0—Winsome Prince.

WORK AT THE CURRAGH.

THE CURRAGH, Friday.

A fine morning.

BEHAN'S South Sea Bubble and Knight of the Mist went a mile at half-speed. May Turn, Amor Vincit and Lisburn cantered six furlongs.

BRABAZON'S Cloverdale went a mile and a half at a nice pace. Custodian, Carey Dennis, Chieftain, Claremorris, Clonford, Corey and Chelsea had brisk five-furlong canters.

COLLINS'S Old River Bridge, Koket, Trapper, Little Boy Blue and Jorto had healthy exercise.

DAWSON'S Arab Man and Defiant traversed seven furlongs at half-speed. Scariff and the two-year-olds covered five furlongs.

PARKINSON'S Kyleclare, Johnny Green and The Blacksmith travelled a mile and a quarter. Not Many, Brown Ball, Rockford, Prince Prosper, Curragh Calling, Film Fan and others of the Maddenstown Lodge team were usefully employed over five furlongs.

ROGERS'S Nice Token, Heraclida, Crested Wave and Spiora were sent a mile and a half at a good pace. Wise Act, Queen of Essex, Hot Sun, Hidden Gem and Talkative went a mile. Asphalt came sharply three furlongs. Essexly and others went five furlongs sharply.

SLOCOCK'S Lucy of Rheims, Lista, Jack Hope and Jack o' Glen cantered six furlongs. Bonus, Lass o' Rheims, Runaway Jack, Happy Memories and others were usefully employed.

DOYLE'S Ripple On, Reilly, Olive's Pride, Some Gift, Royal Kirk and the remainder of the Rossmore Lodge team were given useful bouts of healthy exercise.

HARTIGAN'S Summary, High Warrendale, Clara Vere de Vere, Lady Frivol, Gold Cygnet, Arlen and others were similarly employed.

LONDON BETTING.

WAGERING YESTERDAY ON THE CAMBRIDGESHIRE.

There was a very weak market at the Victoria Club last evening, and little wagering on the Cambridgeshire took place. Link Boy closed at 13 to 2, after a few small wagers at 7 to 1 had been taken. St. Oswald opened at 1,000 to 70, followed by 300 to 37½ (twice), 13 to 1 being again offered. Vamos and Anthurium closed at 100 to 6, after 900 to 50 and 500 to 25, respectively has been secured. Disarmament closed firm at 18 to 1, after 1,000 to 50 (twice) had found a backer. Lord Bill was easy at 20 to 1; 1,000 to 50, three times, were wagers noted. Minor sums only went on the others dealt with.

AT LINGFIELD TO-DAY.

AUTUMN OAKS THE CHIEF EVENT ON THE CARD.

THE Lingfield Park Executive presents a bright card for decision to-day. The Lingfield Autumn Oaks carries a £1,000 prize, but the best of those still remaining in the race are not to compete. Thus the stake seems likely to be won by Bacchante, Meg Merrilees or Silver Leaf, each of whom can be said to hold a good chance. Bacchante has been unplaced on her last two outings, but prior to that, in the Irish Oaks, ran third to Nitsichin and Salome, being beaten six lengths by the winner. Her effort immediately prior to that resulted in a success in the Welsh Oaks at Chepstow. If reproducing her best form, Bacchante will not be easily beaten.

Meg Merrilees has one success to her credit, and that was in July, when she won the Leicestershire Oaks. That was quite a fair performance, and she showed scope for still further improvement. Silver Leaf has had quite a strenuous season, having taken part in ten races, three of which she won. She may not, perhaps, be quite as fresh as Bacchante and Meg Merrilees, and it is the latter I expect to prove the best of all.

A good field will turn out for the Lingfield Handicap, including the useful performers, Moyresque, Sans Espoir, Cheery Lad, Silver Mount, Nitakrit and Clydesdale. Moyresque has run some good races this year, but has met with no success. His best effort was when running second to The Masher in the Rosebery Stakes at Kempton Park in April, and another prominent display was when he finished a good third to Lord Bill and The Recorder in the Chesterfield Cup at Goodwood in July. I think he is sure to run well now. Sans Espoir is a favourite of mine, as he rarely runs a bad race. I thought, however, he might have done a little better when finishing fourth to Birthday Book, Rock Star and Orpen in the John Porter Stakes at Newbury last month. That distance, though, was a trifle in excess of his best, and I expect him now to gain at least a place. Cheery Lad is, I think, quite high enough in the weights, and may not prove capable of conceding 13lb. to Clydesdale. The latter won in nice style at Yarmouth on his last appearance. I consider the finish will chiefly concern Moyresque, Sans Espoir and Clydesdale, and I shall name Clydesdale as the best each-way bet.

WATER POLO.

TRINITY'S PLUCKY FIGHT.

PEMBROKE QUALIFY FOR SEMI-FINAL.

PEMBROKE .... 4 DUBLIN UNIV. ... 2

Pembroke, who defeated Clontarf in the first round of the Irish Water Polo Cup, met Dublin University at the Iveagh Baths last evening in the second round, to decide which club would meet Sandycove in the Leinster semi-final. Pembroke had J. P. Shannon in goal for D. Stafford, and on the University team H. J. Butter deputised for T. J. Sanderson.

Pembroke were the better side, and deserved to win, but University put up a very plucky fight, and were unlucky to lose the first and fourth goals, which were decidedly fluky. The ball cannoned into goal off J. P. Wallace's head to give Pembroke an early lead, following a fine shot by Beckett, which Anderson had saved well. Anderson's goalkeeping was quite the feature of the match, several brilliant saves being executed. Carroll shot in at long range, but a goal was not allowed. Ellerker got a smart second goal before half-time.

University played up strongly from the shallow end, and McDowell scored cleverly. Anderson was frequently called upon to save, which he did well, until at last T. D. Wallace scored with a low shot in the corner. J. P. Wallace reduced the lead with a great shot under difficulties, while Ellerker got Pembroke's fourth goal from a scramble.

Pembroke—J. P. Shannon; C. Carroll, J. Beckett; B. McKeown; T. D. Wallace, H. G. Ellerker (capt.), J. H. Morton.

Dublin University—W. M. E. Anderson; R. P. P. Wallace (capt.), H. W. Stevenson; J. P. Wallace, S. J. McDowell, H. J. Butter, W. G. Mitchell.

Referee—Mr. N. M. Purcell.

SWIMMING

REPUBLICAN S.C. GALA.

A good-sized crowd was present at the Tara street Baths last night on the occasion of the sixth annual gala of the Republican S.C. An interesting programme of club events was submitted, and keen competition prevailed. L. Maher won the 100 Yards Championship of the club in the good time of 71 4-5 secs. Details:—

20 Yards Points Competition (Final), under 15 years—R. Henderson (14), 1; F. Traynor (8), 2. Time—24 3-5 secs.

40 Yards Points Competition (Final), under 15 years—T. Smith (ser.), 1; P. McDermott (5), 2; J. Hutton (2), 3. Four competed. Time—38 2-5 secs.

BOXING.

BATTALINO TO DEFEND TITLE AGAINST MASTRO.

CHICAGO, Friday.

After being beaten twice within a fortnight, Battling Battalino, the world's feather-weight champion, will put his title at stake on November 4, when he meets Earl Mastro, an Italian-American, at the Chicago Stadium here. Battalino beat Mastro on points over fifteen rounds last December, and Mastro has also been beaten by Kid Berg and Fidel la Barba. Nel Tarleton was recently signed up for a title fight with Battalino.

LAWN TENNIS.

BOROTRA AND J. SATOH TO MEET IN FINAL.

Jean Borotra (holder) will oppose Jiro Satoh, the champion of Japan, in the men's singles final of the Covered Courts Championships at Queen's Club, West Kensington, London, to-day. Borotra is renowned for his great volleying powers, while Satoh, who has won eleven tournament finals in England this season, is one of the best players ever produced by Japan. Yesterday in the semi-finals Borotra beat E. R. Avory by 3-6, 6-4, 6-1, 6-2, and Satoh defeated John Olliff by 2-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-1.

The finalists in the women's singles are Miss Mary Heeley, of Birmingham, and Miss J. Morfey, of Streatham. Miss Heeley beat Miss K. Stammers in two sets, and Miss Morfey beat Mrs. F. M. Strawson.

THE CATTERICK CARD.

ISTHMUS MAY CAPTURE BRIDGE HANDICAP.

THE Bridge Handicap, an event for three-year-olds run over a mile and a half, is the chief event on the Catterick card this afternoon. Some useful horses are engaged, and it should be an open betting affair. Isthmus, Winsome Prince, Mister Isaacs, who had good form early in the season, and Brawny are those that appear most, and I give preference to Isthmus.

ATHLETICS.

HOLLAND MAY COMPETE IN THE OLYMPIC GAMES.

AMSTERDAM, Friday.

Holland may compete in the Olympic Games at Los Angeles next year after all; for a prominent sporting paper, the Sport Kroniek, states that measures are in the course of preparation which will enable the Dutch Olympic Committee to send a Dutch team on a more limited scale than was at first planned.

The Dutch Olympic Committee recently decided that Holland could not compete, on the grounds that the time was inopportune for an appeal to the public for funds to defray the cost of sending the team.

GAELIC GAMES.

(BY PAT'O.)

JUNIOR footballers occupy attention to-morrow, for the Kildare v. Galway game at Athy is the principal fixture in a light list. Galway's record is the more impressive, for it includes defeats of Sligo, Leitrim and Kerry. Kerry had visions of winning all three championships in 1931, and it was Galway who broke the sequence when they defeated Kerry's second string in a stirring finish at Tuam. The score—2 goals 7 points to 2 goals 4 points—did not flatter the winners, who had physique and dash. The recovery of Western football from a lean period is a welcome feature, and many think Mayo seniors were unlucky when they finished two points down to Kerry.

Kildare juniors had close struggles in Leinster, winning against Offaly, Longford, Louth and Dublin. Against Dublin it was anyone's game to the final whistle, and Kildare approached the inter-provincial game against Down with eager anticipation. Though they won well at Drogheda, their football was not impressive, but many followers think that Kildare had an "off" day against Down, and believe that they will show their expected sparkle to-morrow.

GALWAY MAY GET THROUGH.

Galway had the foot of all the Connaught counties, but surprised Gaeldom in their genuine defeat of Kerry, who had left Tralee with little fear of defeat. Indeed, it is said that Kerry were more confident of their juniors than of their seniors this year. Galway were well led at half-way, but brought out a reserve of stamina in the second half which set their followers cheering continuously as score after score went up for the West. It will be a smart game at Athy, and Galway may qualify to meet Britain (London) in the final.

Senior teams are resting from serious championship games. Monaghan will be at home to Cavan at Oriel Park, and there are groups of inter-club games in many counties. The most interesting to footballers is the Meath final at Kells, where Navan and Martry meet in senior football. The old rivals, Enniscorthy and Ballybogue, meet at Wexford Park, and Faughs travel to Roscrea to play a Tipperary selection in a medal game.

National Leagues will resume their activities in November, when the Fitzgerald Park game on October 25th will have wound up the championship and challenge programme.

GREYHOUND RACING.

NARROW DEFEAT FOR DETECTIVE.

THE Dublin Greyhound and Sports' Association wound-up their season last night at Harold's Cross Park. There was a very large gathering present, and the racing proved keen and interesting. Harwig, as expected, won the final of the Free State Championship Hurdle. Odds of 2 to 1 were freely laid on the son of Hargrove, and he never left his supporters in any doubt, as, jumping perfectly, he won by four lengths from Markham's Cross.

Forbidden Love won the final of the Open Sweepstake, beating the favourite, Cutlet's Pup by three lengths. Nameless Lad created a surprise by winning the Ulster Plate, but it was only by a head he beat Detective, while Hasty Earl only got up in the last stride, to win the Liffey Plate from Cappalagh Lass. Details:—

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

TO-DAY'S INTERNATIONAL

DOLPHIN TO FACE SEVERE TEST AT DUNDALK TO-MORROW.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

AT Belfast this afternoon Ireland meet England in the first international of the season, and, despite the fact that Ireland has done well on her own ground in the last few seasons, an England victory will be expected, despite Ireland's splendid League win over Scotland a short time ago. England have selected a strong side, and, with their strength in attack, I doubt if Ireland will finish less than two or three goals in arrears.

Undoubtedly, the most important match of the week-end in the Free State League is that between Dolphin and Dundalk at Dundalk to-morrow. On last week's form, Dundalk will be a hard side to beat. A team which can defeat Shamrock Rovers on their own ground should be a difficult side to beat at home, yet, I give Dolphin a chance of victory. Their football has been so good this season that even so competent a side as Dundalk may not be able to hold their attack, which has been improved considerably by the inclusion of Lee as partner to Paterson on the left wing. That Dundalk are capable of defeat on their own ground has been proved by Cork, who won by two clear goals a couple of weeks ago, while Drumcondra were only beaten by five goals to three in the Leinster Cup, and at one time led by three goals to one. I will not be surprised if Dolphin do not bring back a point from one of their most arduous League engagements.

SHELBOURNE SHOULD WIN.

Of the two matches to be decided this afternoon, Shelbourne, at home, will have to be at their best to defeat Drumcondra, who have gained five points from their last three matches. Both will have one new player in the field. Drumcondra have signed on Coventry, the ex-Waterford centre-half, while Cameron, a Scottish outside-left, will replace Kendrick at outside-left for Shelbourne. Despite Drumcondra's recent revival, I expect Shelbourne to take both points. They are the cleverer side, and I think their defence will be able to hold the Drumcondra attack.

I cannot see how, on recent form, Jacobs can hold Bohemians, even though they are playing on their own ground at Rutland avenue. The Jacobs' backs failed to hold Dolphin last Sunday, and even though Bohemians' attack is neither as clever nor as forceful as that of Dolphin, yet they should be capable of making victory a certainty. Their defence is certainly sufficiently strong to keep the Jacobs' attack at bay, and the attack should be capable of scoring sufficiently often to win.

Brideville entertain Cork at Harold's Cross, and even though they will strive hard to raise themselves from the bottom position in the League, I doubt if they will do so at the expense of Cork, who are apparently more effective away than they are at home. Cork are as sound in defence as they are in attack, and I should not be surprised to see them win two points.

ROVERS' TASK AT WATERFORD.

Shamrock Rovers are faced with a difficult task when they travel South to oppose Waterford. Against the strong home defence, their attack, which lacks pace, will have to work hard to score sufficient goals to win the match. Though the Waterford attack lacks finishing power, I expect to see either a division of the points or a win for Waterford.

St. James's Gate entertain Bray Unknowns, and it looks as if the rival defences will dominate the game. Both teams have, so far, proved themselves stronger in defence than in attack, and even though Bray have signed a new centre-forward, Kilgour, from a Scottish second division club, the Gate may secure a point. At any rate, it is certain to be a close match.

HOCKEY.

CLEVER DEFENCES IN OPPOSITION AT PARK AVENUE.

TO-DAY'S programme will bring together old rivals in the Senior League, Railway Union and Monkstown, and a close match may be expected. Railway were rather fortunate to lead Dublin University last Saturday, while Monkstown had to work harder than a score of four goals to nil would indicate against National Bank. To-day's game will probably resolve into a battle of defences, and I would not be surprised to see Monkstown bring off victory.

Naas will have a difficult task in trying to bring both points away from Kingstown Grammar School at Tivoli terrace. Neither team showed very convincing form last Saturday, but, with the ground likely to be fast to-day, the speed of the Grammar School attack will test the Naas defence. I would not be surprised to see a Naas victory, nevertheless.

The Three Rock Rovers and Dublin University match should provide a fast game at Londonbridge road, and despite Trinity's defeat by Railway Union last Saturday their attack should have sufficient penetration to win. Despite Dalkey's good showing at Tivoli terrace last Saturday I do not think they will be able to hold the sound Pembroke Wanderers' team, while an even match will be seen at Kimmage between National Bank and Avoca School.

IRELAND AND WALES JOIN IN.

INTERNATIONAL BOARD TO BE RE-FORMED.

The thirty-sixth annual general meeting of the Irish Hockey Union was held last night at 8 Merrion row, Mr. A. Rose (President) in the chair. A large and representative body of delegates attended, the Munster and Ulster Branches being well represented.

Mr. C. S. Waugh, in his annual report, referred to the flourishing condition of the game in the country, some ninety-six clubs being affiliated, and with several new clubs starting this year; at the moment there were over one hundred clubs playing, which is a record figure in Irish hockey.

Mr. W. F. McDonnell, hon. treasurer, presented a balance sheet, showing the Union to have over £200 in hand.

The Emergency Committee for the coming season will be:—Messrs. Dagg, Chiddick, Howe, and Crawford, with the officers of the Union.

Mr. C. S. Waugh and Mr. W. F. McDonnell were re-elected hon. secretary and hon. treasurer, respectively, and thanked for their past services.

Messrs. W. C. Peterson and D. J. Colter were elected hon. auditors.

The important question of the International Rules Board was under consideration, and it was decided to accept the suggestions put forward for its reformation by the Hockey Association, and, as Wales has already acceded to the Hockey Association's proposals, the new board will be started in 1932.

Messrs. I. W. F. Crawford and A. Burney were nominated as the Irish representatives on the International Rules Board.

Votes of condolence were passed to the relative of Messrs. T. Graham (past President), Gavin Tyndall, and A. Hannon.

RUGBY FOOTBALL.

INTER-CITY MATCHES.

THREE SOUTHERN TEAMS TO VISIT DUBLIN.

THE fixture list for this afternoon provides a wide choice for followers of the game. Belfast Collegians pay a visit to Terenure to oppose University College, who are playing right good football this season. Wanderers will have to contend with some very sturdy forwards on the Bohemians' side, which visits them at Lansdowne road. Garryowen, another Limerick team, engage Old Wesley at Donnybrook, and at the conclusion of this match Bective Rangers will be opposed by the Cork team, Sunday's Well. Bangor, a team of which little is known in Dublin, pay a welcome visit to Clontarf, and the only match in which two Dublin clubs will be in opposition is that listed for Sydney Parade between Dublin University and Monkstown. Lansdowne, Blackrock College, and Palmerston travel to Belfast to engage North, Queen's, and Malone, respectively; and Instonians make the long journey to Cork to meet Constitution.

CO. DUBLIN XV. SELECTED.

The County Dublin team to play Dublin Hospitals at Lansdowne road on Wednesday next has been selected, and is as follows:—

Half-Backs—Out (10), E. O'D. Davy (Lansdowne); scrum (9), J. W. Stokes (Dublin University).

Forwards—(1) M. Burns (Blackrock), (2) J. D. Clinch (Wanderers), (3) J. L. Farrell (Bective Rangers), (4) B. Glynn (University College), (5) C. R. Graves (Wanderers), (6) P. H. Mooney (Clontarf), (7) St. J. Pike (Dublin University), (8) V. J. Pike (Lansdowne).

Jerseys on the ground. Players are requested to notify the Hon. Secretary, Leinster Branch, 12 Westmoreland street, by next post certain whether they can play or otherwise.

ANOTHER CHANGE IN LONDON TEAM.

Owing to a leg injury, T. S. Lee, the United Services and Hampshire wing three-quarter, will be unable to play for London against the South Africans at Twickenham to-day, and his place will be taken by R. G. Turnbull (Middlesex).

FOOT-AND-MOUTH DISEASE.

The Free State Department of Agriculture have been officially informed by the British Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries that the Ministry have now made an Order removing, as from the 15th inst., the restrictions on the movement of animals, which were imposed over a large area, including the City of Birmingham, following an outbreak of Foot and Mouth Disease at Rushall Hall Farm, Walsall, Staffordshire, last month.

At the monthly meeting of the management committee of the Irish Trade Union Congress Health Insurance Society, the Chairman, Mr. F. Parkes, moved a vote of sympathy with the secretary, Mr. Terence Waldron, on the death of his brother, Mr. C. B. Waldron, chief executive officer of the Wexford Vocational Education Committee. Mr. P. Bridgeman seconded the vote of sympathy, which was passed unanimously.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

TONE AND COMMENT.

DUBLIN BUSIER.

INDUSTRIALS STRONGER.

There was more briskness about the dealings on Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, and in the Industrial section, at least, there was an improvement in prices. Free State Funds showed mixed changes, but two out of three were upward. British Funds had a dull appearance, especially Funding Loan. Exceptionally, 3 p.c. Land Stock rose 2 points to 60. Dublin new Fives lost 1½ points and marked at par. The Banking section was not bright. Bank Stock rose a point, but Munster and Leinster and National both moved to a lower level.

Rails were idle, and Tram Ord. and Pref. repeated former prices. The strength of Cables issues persisted, and the "A" Stock rose 1⅝ to 20⅝, while the "B" remained at 13½.

The Industrial section showed an almost unbroken series of rises, and there was record confidence in the buying. The London market seems to have made up its mind that the National Government will get a comfortable majority at the polls, and that means increased industrial activity. The constant repetition of poor dividend statements must not for this reason be overlooked. Bleachers, Bradford Dyers, Coats and Courtaulds all gained a few pence, and they were followed by the Tobacco issues and Unilevers. Exceptionally, Dunlops recorded a small fall.

Locally there was very little doing, although there are some tempting bids on the list. Findlater Debs. rose 6s. 8d. to 57s. 6d. Artisans' Dwellings were ⅛ up at 12⅛, and Thom Ord. came to business at 25s. 6d. Parkes Pref. repeated 12s., and Irish-American Oil Pref. 21s. 9d. A slightly easier price was recorded for White, Tomkins Ord.

LONDON FIRM.

BRITISH RAILS REVIVE.

Although it cannot be said that the volume of trading passing in the London Stock Markets yesterday showed any marked expansion cheerful conditions were apparent everywhere, a more confident feeling being expressed regarding the election outlook. Yesterday majorities were quoted on the Stock Exchange at 168-175, an advance of 12 points on Thursday. A number of bright features developed in the Industrial Markets, Motors presenting a firm appearance on favourable reports from Olympia, while there was a renewal of inquiry for Textiles. Tobaccos also moved forward, as did the Match issues, while the Insurance section again ruled firm under the influence of the satisfactory dividend announcements. Elsewhere Oils moved irregularly, while there was very little going on among Mines, and movements in prices were irregular in character and mostly of insignificant amounts, though Cam and Motors were an outstanding bright spot.

Trading was on very quiet lines in the gilt-edged department, and with the pound cheaper on New York a slightly easier tendency was evident. Actual price movements, however, were few and of little consequence. A firm tone prevailed among Foreign Government Stocks, and some sharp upward movements were scored. German Sevens advanced sharply to 60 x.d., at which level they showed an advance of 2½ points, and it is evident that dealers are taking a more optimistic view of the political situation in Germany. Peruvian Corporations continue in the ascendant, the Debs. spurting to 50, a rise of 5 points on the day. Brazilians were firmer in most directions, and Belgian Sevens and Turkish Unified went harder, but Chinese were inclined to droop, while Greek Sevens went back sharply to 81. At the commencement British Rails remained quiet on Thursday's lower values, but in the afternoon a firmer tone developed, and quotations were not slow to respond to the change in sentiment. Great Western Ord., Midland Ord. and Southern Pref Ord. all rose by a point, while North-Eastern 5 per cent. Pref. Ord. finished 1½ points firmer. The Pref. issues also scored some good advances, while Underground Ord. stiffened further to 19s. Colonial and Foreign Rails were neglected, but, apart from Buenos Ayres, Great Southern and Western and Central Argentine Ord., each of which finished a further point lower, the overnight levels were maintained.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

CABLES AGAIN PROMINENT.

Cheerful conditions prevailed in most sections of the Industrial Market yesterday, under the influence of election developments. Trading generally remained on a modest scale, with good support noticeable for some of the leading home issues, especially in the late dealings. Textiles continued in request on provincial account, with Courtaulds the favourite among Rayons.

On the cash dividend announcement Brazilian Traction Common improved to 12⅝ at one time, eventually closing at 12¼. U.S. Steel gave way to 85 at first, but recovered eventually to 88.

Cables and Wireless stocks again attracted considerable attention, closing prices being practically the best of the day. The Preference finished 1½ higher at 57½, after 58; the "A" Ordinary a point up at 20⅝, after 21, and the "B" Ordinary ½ higher at 13⅝.

Favourable reports from the Olympia Show were reflected in the leading Motor issues. Rolls Royce rose 1s. 3d. to 32s. 6d., Singers 9d. to 11s., and Rovers 6d. to 5s., with buyers also in evidence for Austins at 35s. Thomas Tillings gained ⅛ at 3⅜, and Dennis hardened to 1 1/32. Fords, however, remained on the dull side, the price further receding to 1⅝. A steady inquiry was again reported for Iron, Coal and Steel descriptions, but changes on balance did not amount to much.

Apart from Linen Thread, which eased to 25s., Textiles continued in request. Wardle and Davenport took the lead with an advance of 1/16 to 1⅛, while Bradford Dyers finished buyers at 22s., Bleachers at 15s., Fine Spinners at 20s. 3d., Wm. Hollins at 15s. 7½d., Patons and Baldwins at 28s. 6d., and Whitworth and Mitchell at 49s. 3d. Calico Printers, J. and P. Coats, Sewing Cottons and Listers remained around the overnight levels

Fresh buying orders from the provinces were received for Courtaulds, which finished 1s. 9d. to the good at 38s. 3d. Grouts further advanced 1s. 3d. to 17s. 6d., British Celanese Ord. to 7s., and the Second Pref. to 5s. 9d. On the other hand, American Celanese Common eased 1/16 to 11 1/16, and Canadian Celanese to 1⅛. Woolworths hardened 3d. to 39s. 9d., and the Pref. 1½d. to 19s. 7½d.

Provision shares were firm, but few changes occurred. Unilever and Unilever N.V. gained 1/32 at 1½ and 1 17/32 respectively, while United Dairies rose 6d. to 35s. on the excellent report. Aerated Bread eased 3d. to 18s., but Crosse and Blackwell issues strengthened slightly.

The Tobacco leaders were bid for in the late dealings, and both "Bats" and "Imps" gained 1/16 at 4 1/32 and 3 25/32 respectively. Carreras well maintained their recent advance, the "A" shares closing at 4⅛ and the "B" at 10s. 9d.

Breweries generally presented a firmer front. Watney Defd. improved to the extent of 1s. 3d. to 38s. 6d., and Mitchell and Butlers were marked up to 42s., with steady support noticeable for Distillers, which gained 9d. at 50s. 6d., while Taylor Walkers were inquired for at 28s. The only dull spot was Allsops at 19s. 3d. Bass and Guinness closed unchanged.

The influence of the Motor Show was responsible for the increased attention directed to Joseph Lucas Ord., which finally showed a gain of 1/16 at 2 25/32. A good turnover was reported in Turner and Newall, and they finished 9d. up at 29s. 3d., while United Molasses improved 4½d. to 6s. 10½d. and Dunlops 3d. to 18s. 3d. Imperial Chemical Ord. and Pref. closed unchanged at 15s. 9d. and 19s. 6d. respectively, but the Defd. were favoured and advanced 3d. to 4s. 6d. The Swedish issues again went ahead and closed almost at the best. Kreuger and Toll touched 6⅞ at one time and left off ½ higher at 6⅝, while Swedish Match "B" rose ¼ to 5⅝, after being 5 11/16.

OIL SHARES FLUCTUATE.

A firm start was made in the Oil Share Market yesterday, with slightly higher prices quoted for the leading counters. The better tendency was attributable to the more encouraging advices received overnight from New York, a general recovery having occurred in American stocks on Thursday. Actual business, however, remained small, and the course of prices was governed mainly by sentiment. Nevertheless, during the morning quotations further strengthened.

A setback occurred following the announcement by the Burmah Oil Co. of an interim dividend on the Ord. shares of 5 per cent., which compares with a distribution of 10 per cent. at this time last year. Paris operators were only in the market to a slight extent, and, after offering Canadian Eagles, turned buyers in a small way. On balance prices showed only a few irregular changes.

RUBBER SHARES IDLE.

Trading was again on extremely modest lines in the Rubber Share Market, but, despite the easier conditions apparent in the commodity market, share values were well maintained, and the final quotations without exception were unaltered from Thursday's levels. A subdued tone pervaded the raw material market, and slightly lower quotations were returned. Spot and November realised only 2 11/16d. per lb., while January to March fetched 3⅛d. per lb., April to June 3 5/16d. per lb., and July to September 3 7/16d. per lb. London stocks of rubber on Monday next are expected to show an advance of 150 tons, but Liverpool stocks may be 250 tons lower.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

CHEAPER BACON.

Owing to a rather slow demand and heavy Danish killings prices of all descriptions of bacon have been substantially reduced. Canadian No. 1 sizeable was 11s. lower on the week at 52s. to 54s.; Danish No 1 sizeable fell 8s. to 58s., whilst Polish No. 1 sizeable declined 12s. to 42s. to 46s. per cwt. Irish lean sizeable was about 4s. cheaper at 58s. to 80s., which compared with 78s. to 98s. a year ago. Compared with this time last year Danish shows a fall of 16s., Canadian 26s., and Polish a decline of 19s. per cwt. Danish killings this week were a record at 166,500, against 131,761 in the preceding week and 114,000 a year ago.

CABLES AND WIRELESS.

Imperial and International Communications is at present known to be enjoying by far the best traffics it has experienced this year. In a great measure this is due to an unusual preponderance of "urgent" messages, paid for at the highest scale says The Financial Times). The market is particularly optimistic as to the probable effect on the company's business of a large majority for the National Government. Not only would this be likely to keep the revival in trade going, but it is thought that the P.M.G. would see that the more friendly attitude recently in evidence was maintained between the G.P.O. and the Cables-Wireless group. "Buy British" and no more American contracts would then doubtless be the slogan. The last of a substantial line of Cables "A" Seven and a Half per Cent. Ordinary, which has been in process of liquidation, is now believed to have found a permanent home. If that proves actually to be the case, then the recent lag in the advance of this stock, as against the Cumulative Preference and the "B," should quickly be remedied.

FLIGHT FROM MONEY.

Advices from Helsingfors (Finland) states that a condition of extreme nervousness prevails among the inhabitants of that city. Not only is there a run on banks, but the people are extensively buying jewellery, gold and even plate, land and house property, and, indeed, any material object of negotiable value, in exchange for their notes.

CANADIAN FAILURES.

The liabilities of McDougall and Cowans will total almost $20,000,000 (£4,000,000 nominal), those of Greenshields and Co. over $3,000,000 (£600,000), and those of Watson and Chambers $1,600,000 (£320,000). The failure of McDougall and Cowans, a well-known brokerage firm of the Montreal Stock Exchange, together with that of Greenshields and Co., was announced on 5th October. Watson and Chambers, also of Montreal, suspended on the following day.

NEW OIL DISTRIBUTING COMPANY.

With the object of effecting the most efficient and economical distribution of their products in the United Kingdom and Ireland, the Anglo-Persian and Royal Dutch-Shell groups are creating a company to ensure the closest co-operation in their distributing businesses, at present conducted by the British Petroleum and Shell-Mex Companies.

BOSTON AND CHICAGO FEDERAL RESERVE BANKS RAISE RE-DISCOUNT RATES.

The Federal Reserve Banks of Boston and Chicago have raised their re-discount rate from 2½ per cent. to 3½ per cent.

Princess Ingrid, of Sweden, who is to be one of the bridesmaids at Lady May Cambridge's wedding on October 24th, is expected to arrive in London on Monday. She will be accompanied by Prince Gustav, the son of the Crown Prince of Sweden.

LONDON MINING MARKET IRREGULAR.

RHODESIAN ISSUES STILL POPULAR.

The Mining Market was almost featureless and even the usually active counters moved within very narrow limits, while, as professionals were inclined to secure profits, the trend of values was mostly downward. Little change was shown among Kaffirs, but the few movements recorded were irregular in character. In the Rhodesian department Roan Antelope continued a centre of attraction, and, despite the circulation of adverse rumours, for which no justification could be discovered, the price again rose sharply. Rhodesian Anglo-American were also something to the good, but Rhokana and Bwana M'Kubwa left off without alteration. Of the Gold shares Cam and Motor, on a wider appreciation of the company's position and prospects, came into request and went ahead. The Diamond section was neglected, and no quotable alterations could be recorded. The price of tin fell back to £129 5s. per ton, but the share market was not greatly perturbed. Business was still very limited, and quotations showed little alteration. The Australian Gold shares came in for rather more attention, and Lake View and Starr and Sons of Gwalia both advanced on a better demand. Mount Isa also went ahead, but Wiluna were content to maintain the overnight's level. Copper remained at £32 17s. 6d., and in the share market business was almost at a standstill. The only quotable alteration was a small gain in Mount Lyell. Closing prices:—

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS

CASTLEBELLINGHAM AND DROGHEDA BREWERIES.—Six per cent. (12/- per share) on Ordinary for year ended August 31. (Same.)

AUSTIN REED—Interim dividend of 5 per cent., against 6 per cent. last year, announced. Last year's interim was followed by a final of 9 per cent., making 15 per cent., less tax, for the year. The directors state that the company was affected by the general depression, but that dividends on both classes of shares are well covered by profits.

BURMAH OIL COMPANY—Interim dividend on the Ord. shares 5 per cent., less tax, against 10 per cent. last year, when the final was 12½ per cent., making 22½ per cent. The Ordinary capital is £6,868,256.

BROWNE AND EAGLE—The directors of Browne and Eagle, warehousekeepers and wharfingers, have declared an interim dividend of 3 per cent. per annum, less tax, on the Ordinary shares. Hitherto dividends of recent years have been paid annually after the closing of the accounts. For 1930 a distribution of 9 per cent. was made for the twelve months on the £100,000 of issued Ordinary capital.

CALCUTTA ELECTRIC SUPPLY CORPORATION—The directors announce an interim dividend on the Ord. shares of 5 per cent. (Same.)

CRANSTON'S TEA ROOMS, LTD., GLASGOW.—The half-yearly dividend of 8 per cent. per annum on the Cumulative Participating Preference shares, together with a participating dividend of 1 per cent., actual (making a total of 5 per cent., actual), will be paid on November 1, 1931. An interim dividend of 5 per cent., actual (same), on the Ordinary shares will also be paid on that date. Both these dividends are in respect of the half-year ending July 31, 1931, and will be paid less income tax.

GOODSON'S MANTLE—The Board of Goodson's Mantle and Costume Company (1920) reports that the accounts for Goodsons for the past six months show an increase compared with the corresponding period of last year; up to the moment the same applies to the autumn trading. But experience of past autumn trading has been most disappointing, and the directors, therefore, feel that no good purpose would be served by further comment upon the accounts until the results of the full year are before them. Upon the information before him, Mr. Douglas McCraith, the chairman, says he feels "bound to pass the personal opinion that the price prevailing for our shares is an inadequate one." Goodson's Mantle and Costume Company (1920) is controlled by John V. Hutton and owns all the issued shares of Goodsons. The shilling Ordinary shares are quoted 3d.-1s. 3d., and the £1 eight per cent. Cumulative Preference ¼-¾.

HERBERT MORRIS, LTD. (Lifting and Transporting Machinery Manufacturers, Loughborough)—The report of the directors for the year ended July 31st, 1931, states that, after making allowance for income tax, there is a profit from the year's trading of £27,074, to which must be added £10,180 dividends from investments, £4 transfer fees, etc., and the sum of £51,849 brought in. From the total of these sums there are to be deducted directors' fees, Pref. dividends for the year, and depreciation. There is then left a disposable balance of £47,010, and from this the directors recommend the placing of £10,000 to reserve, leaving £37,010 to be carried forward. The report further states that demand for the company's manufactures has been restricted, especially in overseas markets. As a consequence, the output was considerably reduced, so that it was not possible to keep the works fully employed. For much of the business which was available it was necessary to accept very low prices. It is considered wise to maintain the scale of depreciation and to add to the reserve. These items will take £24,744 and £10,000 respectively. In the previous year the profit was £58,827, and a dividend of 10 per cent., less tax, was paid on the Ord. shares

HODGSON'S KINGSTON BREWERY.—Final dividend of 8 per cent., less tax, for the year ending September 30, 1931, making 12 per cent., actual, less tax, for the year. (Same.)

INTERNATIONAL FINANCIAL SOCIETY.—A final dividend of 3 per cent. on Ord. stock, less tax, making 6 per cent. for year (8 per cent.); forward, £6,841.

KOTA TINGGI (JOHORE) RUBBER—The accounts for the year ended March 31st last show that the net profits declined from £9,353 to £537, to which is added £15,621 brought in, and a sum of £7,000 transferred from reserve account, making a total of £23,158. Owing to the heavy depreciation which has taken place in the value of all industrial securities, and particularly of rubber estates, the Board have considered it prudent to write off a considerable part of the advances made to the two associate companies. This amounted to £16,601 in advances and £2,555 in interest. After allowing for the balance of liability in income tax for the year 1930-31, there remains £3,352 to be carried forward. Last year £23,000 was allocated from reserve and written off estate account. No dividend has been paid since 1928-29, when the distribution was 7½ per cent.

K.M.S. (MALAY STATES) RUBBER.—Profit amounted to £1,449. Add balance brought forward, £11,077, making £12,526. Interest on Debenture stock absorbed £31, leaving £12,495, which directors propose to carry forward. (Last year £2,000 to reserve, and dividend 2½ per cent.)

MAYFIELD (DIMBULA) TEA OF CEYLON.—Interim dividend of 5 per cent., less tax, on Ord. in respect of year 1931. (Last year 6 per cent.)

OUVAH CEYLON ESTATES.—Interim dividend of 6 per cent., less tax, in respect of year 1931. (Last year 7½ per cent.)

PELEPAH VALLEY (JOHORE) RUBBER ESTATES.—During the year to March 31 last there was a net loss of £1,532, which compares with a profit of £6,852 for 1929-30. The sum of £10,341 was brought in, to which is added £7,000 transferred from reserve, leaving a balance of £15,809 after deducting the net loss referred to. The directors have also written off the advances made to the Tanjong Labu Rubber Estates a sum of £12,775, leaving a balance of £3,033 to be carried forward. Last year £30,000 was appropriated from reserve and written off estate account. No dividend has been paid since 1928-29, when the payment was 7½ per cent.

SMEDLEYS HYDROPATHIC—Actual dividend of 6¼ per cent., tax free, on Ord., making 12½ per cent. (Same.)

SOUTH BRITISH INSURANCE.—A dividend proposed for last six months of 1/4 per share, making 2/8 for year.

SECOND AMERICAN TRUST.—Final dividend of 2½ per cent., less tax, on Ord., making 5 per cent. for year (against 7 per cent.); forward, £11,334.

TANJONG MALIM RUBBER.—After providing £1,000 for income tax, profits for the year ended June 30 last amounted to £4,664, which compares with £30,108 for the preceding twelve months, after providing £7,500 for income tax. A further profit of £5,502 was realised on the sale of the company's holding of British Government securities, while £16,610 was brought in, making a total of £26,776, which the directors recommend to be carried forward subject to any staff division that may be payable. Last year a dividend of 5 per cent. was paid.

SALE OF SHEEP.

Messrs. Gavin Low, Ltd., held their final sale of breeding ewes, wethers, lambs and rams in the Dublin Cattle Market yesterday, when some 2,000 sheep were shown. There was a large attendance of buyers, and a steady trade was experienced for all classes of sheep. A few lots failed to reach owners' expectations under the hammer, but these were afterwards disposed of privately, a complete clearance being made. Galway ewes made from 32/- to 39/-, Galway hogget wethers 34/- to 43/-, cheviot ewes 30/- to 47/6, black-faced horny ewes 18/- to 26/6, lambs (cheviot and crossbred) 15/- to 30/-.

THE MONEY MARKET

TREASURY BILL RATE LOWER.

Applications were received at the Bank of England yesterday for £40,000,000 Treasury Bills. Tenders, dated Monday to Friday of next week at £98 12s. 1d., get about 74 per cent., above in full. Tenders, dated Saturday, at £98 12s 5d. and above, receive in full. These figures indicate an average rate of about 5½ per cent., or a shade under last week's average.

Easy conditions prevailed in Lombard street, old money being renewed at 4 per cent., while fresh advances until to-day were offered at 4 per cent. down to 3½ per cent.

The Discount Market was also a little weaker under the influence of cheap money, the rise in the New York Bank rate being practically ignored. Fine three months' bank bills were not better than 5⅜ per cent., and second-hand Treasuries were changing hands at 5 5/16 to under. The banks were buyers of Novembers at 4¾, and of December at 4⅞ per cent.

Speculative buying of silver on China account lifted the price ⅛d. to 17⅛d. per ounce for spot, while the forward quotation was 1/16d. higher at 17 1/16d. Gold was quoted 5d. dearer at 106s. 11d. per ounce fine, owing to the slight reaction in sterling.

The weakness displayed by sterling in terms of the principal gold currencies on Thursday was further accentuated in the Foreign Exchange Market yesterday, when in practically all cases final rates were lower on balance. The £ opened ½c. cheaper on New York at 3.86½, and later depreciated further to 3.85. A mild rally occurred towards the close, but at 3.85¾ the final rate was 1¼c. lower on the day. The Canadian Exchange also participated in the movement, and finished at 4.36½, compared with 4.40 at the previous close.

Among the Continental currencies, francs fluctuated between 97⅝ and 98¼, and were finally ⅜f. dearer at 97⅞. The Belgian rate was quoted at 27 7/16, against 27½, while Italian lire appreciated by ¼ lira to 74⅜. Reichsmarks at 16⅝, and Swiss francs at 19 11/16, were also both dearer. The peseta appreciated to 43. Swedish kroner strengthened a little to 16⅝. In the South American section, Brazilian milreis lost part of its previous day's advance, and closed ⅛d. weaker at 3½

TRADE UNIONISTS' RESOLUTION.

CONFERENCE IDEA COMMENDED.

The National Executive of the Irish Trade Union Congress issued the following statement in Dublin last night:—

"The National Executive of the Irish Trade Union Congress is of the opinion that the amendment of the Constitution as adopted in Dail Eireann is capable of being used to suppress the lawful constitutional activities of the working-class movement; that it removes the safeguards in the Constitution which are essential for the protection of the liberty of the people, and that it is calculated to arouse animosity and cause strife throughout the country.

"They are further of the opinion that the economic development of the country would be best promoted by a reign of peaceful developments based on democratic principles and a general acceptance of lawful authority.

"The National Executive, therefore, approves the proposal of the leader of the Labour Party, that a conference be convened representative of the various shades of political opinion, the Churches and economic interest, and we commend as a basis of discussion for the purpose of the proposed conference the opinions stated in Dail Eireann by Deputy Aiken. Therefore, we urge the holding of this conference in the interval before the Constitutional Amendment Bill becomes law."

CORPORATION MARKET, DUBLIN.
Auction Sales Daily. Empties Supplied.
—(Advt.)

DUBLIN POTATO.—Supplies fairly large, for which there was a fair demand at last day's prices —namely, 4/6 to 8/- per cwt., best arrivals.

DUBLIN POULTRY.—With more favourable weather and the usual improved week-end attendance of buyers, trade here was more active for the heavy supply of all classes. Good quality chickens and turkeys were more freely bid for, but prices showed no advance. Better inquiry for game and fresh rabbits, which were sold easily, business closing satisfactorily at—Chickens, best 9d. to 10d. per lb., smalls 1/6 to 1/10 each; hens, large fat 2/- to 2/6 each, smalls 1/- to 1/6; ducklings, fatted 3/- to 4/- each, stores 1/6 to 2/6, old 6d. to 1/-; geese, fatted 6d. to 8d. per lb., stubble 3/- to 4/- each; grouse, prime young 2/6 each, old 1/6; pheasants, cocks 3/- to 3/6 each, hens 2/6 to 3/-; wild duck 1/6 to 2/- each, widgeon 8d. to 10d., teal and snipe 6d., woodcock, 1/-; rabbits 10d. to 1/2 each, graziers 3d. to 6d.; plover, golden 8d. each, green 5d.

DUBLIN BUTTER AND EGG.—Our creamery market continues quiet. Local demand slightly better at the reduced prices, but trade on the whole is disappointing, particularly export, which at the moment is very dull. The production is still falling off, but so far arrivals are quite sufficient for trade passing. Farmers' butter of best quality is somewhat scarce and readily cleared, but coarse grades are neglected. There is practically no demand for factory butter. Finest creams, 56lb. 1/0½, 28lb. 1/1 lb., cold stored 1/0¼ to 1/0½. Farmers' best 9d. to 10d., coarse 5d. to 8d., and factory 9½d. to 10d. Local trade is steady for reliable fresh eggs, but cross-Channel inquiry is very poor, due to the drop in price of Danish and heavy arrivals of Continental eggs on English markets. Supplies show the usual falling off for season, but so far there is no scarcity, except for duck, which are none too plentiful. Extra selected 16 and 17lb. grades 16/3 to 17/-, case lots ordinary and selected 14/6 to 15/9, medium 13/6 to 14/3, smalls 9/- to 10/- and 12/6, and duck 14/6 to 15/6 per 120.

CORK BUTTER.—The market continues unchanged. Creameries 120/- per cwt.

DUBLIN FISH.—Large supplies arrived here, for which demand was very slow, especially for mackerel, which cleared at exceptionally low prices. On offer—17 chests lobster, 70 boxes herrings, 150 boxes mackerel, and heavy arrivals from country and local senders. Lobsters 10/- to 11/- per 13 large, medium 3/- to 5/-, small 1/- to 2/-; soles 25/- to 30/- per 9 pairs large, medium 10/- to 15/-, slips 5/- to 7/6, turbot 1/- to 10/- each, brill 6d. to 2/6, herrings 10/- to 15/- per box, mackerel 3/- to 5/- per box, plaice 30/- to 40/- per half-box, whiting 3/- to 12/-, ray 7/6 to 10/-.

PRODUCE.

LONDON.—SUGAR: A subdued tone pervaded the market, but the moderate business arranged in British refined and home-grown was at previous prices. Offers from the near Continent of 88 per cent. beet are on a freer scale, and sales made during the week at 6/6 c.i.f. U.K. Cane 96 per cent. still sparingly offered. Terminal section quiet and easier. December delivery sold 6/7¼ to 6/7½ and 6/7¼, March 6/9¾, May 6/10 to 6/11¼, August 7/0¼ to 7/0½ and 7/0¼. COFFEE—A quiet market generally on the spot, but no essential change in prices. COCOA—Only a quiet business in spot parcels. Forward positions steady, and Accra G/F November shipment sold 27/3, December-February sold 27/3 to 26/9 c.i.f. Terminal steady, and 30 tons December sold 27/6. TEA—Private contract market quiet and without new feature. JUTE—A moderate volume of business was effected, but, with sellers inclined to meet buyers, prices took a downward turn. Firsts October-November to Continent sold £19 6/3 to £19 5/-, November-December £19 10/- to £19 7/6, December-January £19 15/- to £19 12/6. Lightnings October-November sellers £18 2/6, Hearts £17 2/6, Daisee £18 value, and Tossa £19 5/- c.i.f. SHELLAC—Market steady, and business proceeded on more active lines. T.N. spot 75/-, October sellers 66/-, December sold 67/-, and buyers, March sold 70/- to 70/6, October-November shipment sold 63/6, and November-December 65/- c.i.f. RUBBER quiet. A subdued tone pervaded this market. Standard sheet spot and November buyers 2 15-16d., December 3d., January-March 3⅛d., April-June sold 3 5-16d., July-September buyers 3 7-16d., October-December at 3⅜d. London stocks on Monday expected to be 150 tons higher, and Liverpool 250 down.

OILCAKES—Linseed cakes: The markets have shown less activity during the past week, and there not only has been a lull in the volume of trade, but a distinct check to the upward movement in prices, probably occasioned by profit-taking and increased offerings from the other side at the advanced rates. London-made are in fair demand at late quotations of £7 15/- to £8, while imported may be bought at £7 10/- for Californian, Spanish, Bombays, etc. Cotton cakes—Only a very limited quantity of Egyptian are available in near positions, and for these there are free buyers at £4 15/- ex ship, with October loading quoted at £4 13/9, and November-January monthly shipments at £4 12/6. English makes command rather more money at £5 7/6 to £5 10/-. Groundnut cakes—Prime quality 54 per cent. screw pressed Bombays remain scarce on spot, and £6 15/- to £7 ex ship is now asked for monthly shipments to the end of the year. Rangoon 39 per cent. undecorticated offer sparingly at £5 10/- to £5 12/6 ex ship October-November loading. Offals—English straight run middlings meet a good inquiry at £5 17/6 to £6, while bran is firmly held at £5 for ordinary and £6 for broad. Fancy plate middlings are again the turn dearer at £5 17/6 to £6 ex ship, and Plate pollards £4 15/-. Maize foods—Garton's maize gluten feed meets a free sale at £5 5/- to £5 10/-, with sellers of flake maize at £6, maize germ meal at £5 15/-, and finely ground English maize meal at £5 5/- per ton, all ex factory.

OILS—Linseed firm, but quiet. Spot sellers 18/-, October-December 15/6, January-April 17/7½, May-August 18/-. Rape dull. Crude spot 29/-, unrefined 31/-. Cotton steady; crude Egyptian spot 22/6, common edible 26/6, deodorised 28/6. Cocoanut quiet; Ceylon spot, cylinders 25/-, drums October 21/3. Turpentine quiet; American spot 52/6 per cwt. OILSEEDS—Linseed market quiet, but generally steady. Calcutta to London October-November £10 15/-; Bombay to London October-November £11 10/-; Plate to Hull October-November also November-December £8 12/6, December £8 15/-, new January-February also February-March £8 7/6. Rapeseed steady; Toria to Hull-Continent October-November also November-December and new December-January £11. Cottonseed quiet and easier: Egyptian black to Hull new October £6 11/3, November-January £6 10/-, white new October £6 5/-, November-January £6 3/9. Groundnuts quietly steady; Coromandel machined October £13 17/6, November £12 15/-, new December £12 7/6, January £12 2/6. Soya beans steady; Manchurian October also November £6 10/- per ton.

LIVERPOOL.—CANE SUGAR quiet. Sellers 6/10½ per cwt. c.i.f. October-November shipments to U.K. COCOA—West African continues in slow request on spot. Forward shipments quietly steady. Fair fermented Accra new crop October-December and November-January shipments sellers 24/3, and buyers at 24/- per cwt. f.o.b. D clause. Futures idle. COFFEE quietly steady. HEMP—Manila slightly steadier, with buyers where there were sellers at £17 5/- basis K grade, £16 5/- L 1, and £15 per ton L 2 c.i.f. November-January shipments. JAPANESE PEAS—There is little or nothing offering on spot, and values more or less nominal. Forward shipments fully steady at 17/6 to 17/9 per cwt. c.i.f. RICE BRAN steady, but quiet. Burmah for October-December shipments unaltered at £4 8/9 per ton ex ship terms. OIL CAKES—Imported descriptions firmly held, with a moderate enquiry in evidence. American linseed quoted £7 10/- for October shipments and £7 12/6 November-December, and River Plate £8 2/6 for October and £8 5/- November-December shipments, all c.i.f. terms. PALM KERNELS easier. Sellers October-November and November-December shipments £10 16/3 and buyers at £10 13/9 per ton; later 2/6 easier sellers. TALLOW—South American fully steady, but slow. No. 1 frigorifico quoted 24/6 November per cwt. c.i.f.

LIVERPOOL SUGAR.—Tate and Lyle's (Ltd.) quotations:—Crystals—Ones, 23/-. Granulated—Standard, 20/10½. Yellows—Thirds, 20/9 ex refinery Liverpool, less 1½ per cent. discount.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DUBLIN HAY AND STRAW—The supply of hay was much the same as last day; no improvement in quality. Sales were again poorly supported for the bulk of arrivals, which were of old meadow classes. There was a fair attendance of buyers, who quickly bought up the small number of choice loads on offer, last day's prices closing firm; other classes were as slow as last day, with any reasonable offer accepted to clear. Prime first crop 3/9 to 4/3 per cwt., second and third 3/3 to 3/6; old meadow, best, 2/3 to 3/-, second cutting 2/6 to 3/3, and inferior 1/6 to 2/-. Straw in fair supply, principally oaten. Demand equal to an early clearance of best sorts, inferior classes, however, were late to sell up at poor prices. Best oaten 2/9 to 3/- per cwt., inferior 2/3 to 2/6, wheaten 3/- to 3/3.

LONDON METALS MARKET.
TIN IRREGULAR—COPPER STEADY.

TIN—Eastern advices were easier, but Prices steady, in face of a good demand, though dealings disclosed a good deal of irregularity. On balance, however, cash officially reduced by 2/6 and forward 2/6 to 5/- per ton down. Standard cash quoted £130 17/6 to £131 2/6, three months £133 to £133 5/-, settlement price £131. Sales amounted to 1,100 tons, cash at £129 15/- to £129 10/- and £131, three months £132, £131 17/6, £133 5/- and £133, English ingots quoted £132 10/- to £134 10/-. In the East, 125 tons reported sold, on the basis of £135 7/6 c.i.f. COPPER opened firmer, with active dealings, but later a quieter tone prevailed, with cash officially 1/3 to 2/6 and forward 1/3 per ton lower on balance. Standard cash quoted £34 16/3 to £34 17/6, three months £35 12/6 to £35 13/9, settlement price £34 17/6. 1,200 tons changed hands, cash at £34 17/6, three months £35 17/6 to £35 10/- and £35 12/6, electros £40 10/- to £41 10/-, wire bars £41 10/-, best selected £37 10/- to £38 15/-, strong sheet £75. LEAD in fair support and market about steady. 550 tons sold, good soft foreign pig October at £13 3/9, December £13 3/9, January £13 5/-, settlement price £13 5/-; English quoted £14 15/-. SPELTER dull and barely steady. 175 tons sold, December at £12 17/6, January £13, settlement price £12 10/-. ALUMINIUM maintained, home trade £95 per ton. THE AMERICAN MARKETS.

UTILITIES AND RAILS AGAIN HARDER.

STRONG CLOSE.

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.

NEW YORK, Friday.

Sentiment on the Stock Exchange was encouraged to-day by the expectation of imminent favourable news from Washington in regard to rail freight rates and Railway Bonds, while the increase in the Federal Reserve Bank's re-discount rate and interest rates was welcomed as a factor which will tend to discourage hoarding.

The market opened firm, with trading of a very quiet nature. Erie advanced to 13⅝, Southern Railroad to 17⅞, Atchison Topeka to 111½, American Telephone and Telegraph to 132¼, United States Steel to 66⅝, American Tobacco "B" to 88¾, Columbia Gas to 21, and Allied Chemical and Dye to 77½. Baltimore and Ohio, however, declined to 36½, while American Can fell back to 80.

A general upward movement was led by Railroad issues, Atchison Topeka, New York New Haven, New York Central and Southern Pacific being among those which rose from 2 to 5 points, while leading Industrials and Utilities advanced from 1 to 2 points.

Later in the session the market continued to push slowly upward in very quiet trading. While the high-grade low-yield bonds were naturally depressed by the firming of money rates, the higher yield issues improved with the Stock market.

The news that the Bruening Government had been upheld in the Reichstag reassured Wall Street.

The weekly mercantile reviews were somewhat more cheerful to-day, reporting a better retail trade, following the cooler weather and the existing signs of a restoration of confidence. Moreover, the foreign trade figures for September showed a fair seasonal gain, compared with the returns for August. The market closed strong.

Advances of 2 to 6 points were recorded by Public Service of New Jersey, Westinghouse Electric, Du Pont, United States Steel, American Can, Western Union Telegraph, American Tobacco "B," American Telephone and Telegraph, Case Threshing Machine, Allied Chemical and Dye, Eastman Kodak; and the following Railroads: Northern Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central, Delaware and Hudson, Delaware Lackawanna, Union Pacific, Atchison Topeka and Norfolk and Western.

Call money to-day was renewed at 2½ per cent., reflecting the advance in the Federal Reserve re-discount rate; while bankers' acceptances moved sharply higher.

Government Bonds easy; Railroad Bonds steady. The day's sales approximated 1,400,000 shares. Money on call closed firm at 2½ per cent. bid and 2¾ per cent. asked. All business during the day was concluded at 2½ per cent. Prime mercantile paper was quoted to-day at 3¾ per cent. Sterling exchange opened at 3.86, a decline of 1½ cents compared with last night's close. The rate declined slightly during the day, but closed at 3.87. Silver ⅝c. higher at 29⅞.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Friday.

Trading was light on all the grain markets to-day, and prices moved within narrow limits. Wheat advanced on scattered buying and in unison with the strength at Winnipeg and Liverpool. The upward movement was further assisted by lack of selling pressure, advices of insufficient moisture in parts of the winter wheat belt, and the steadiness of the Stock market. Offerings were well absorbed, while there was an encouraging foreign demand and increased export interest. There were no important features on the maize market to-day. Prices early eased under local selling, scattered liquidation, and news of excellent weather for the crops. Later a rally ensued on professional buying and local support, while prices also moved up in unison with the strength of wheat. Rye was dull and featureless, while oats moved in unison with corn.

WHEAT commenced steady at ⅝c. to ⅜c. advance, and closed steady, ⅜c. to ⅝c. dearer.

OTHER LOTS.

NON-PEDIGREE DAIRY SHORTHORN HEIFERS.

The most promising of the dairy Shorthorn heifers, a coming two-year-old out of the 992 gallon cow Bella, was sold to Mr. M. O'Connor for 16½ gns., a two-year-old whose dam had a record of 607 gallons going to the same buyer for 13 gns. Other dairy Shorthorn heifers ranged from 12½ to 15½ gns., the buyers being Messrs. R. Meredith, Corbally, and P. O'Connell, Bagenalstown.

Other stock included springing heifers of Shorthorn type, which met with a good demand at £15, £17, £18 and £21 10/-.

Two-year-old Shorthorn heifers brought £13 10/- to £15, and one and a half year-olds from £12 10/- to £15, the buyers being General Lecky, Messrs. O'Connor, Brennan, Kirby, Dempsey and Cullen.

Store bullocks, two to three years old, ranged from £15 15/- to £17 10/- each, and Aberdeen-Angus bullocks and heifers, one and a half years old, from £13 5/- to £14 7/6.

HOSPITAL SUNDAY FUND.

THE EFFECT OF SWEEPSTAKES.

The fifty-sixth annual meeting of the Hospital Sunday Fund Committee was held on Thursday at the Royal College of Physicians, Dublin.

The Right Hon. the Earl of Wicklow, D.L., was in the chair.

Resolutions adopting the statement of accounts and tendering the thanks of the Council to the ministers of religion, "who, by their zealous and earnest advocacy of the claims of the sick poor, have contributed so much to the success of the Fund during the past fifty-six years," and also to the Dublin Press, were unanimously adopted.

Dr. T. G. Moorhead said he did not wish to enter into the merits or demerits of sweepstakes, but he would like to say that he hoped that in future years the Council of the Hospital Sunday Fund would keep an open mind as regards the distribution of the funds at their disposal.

The Rev. Canon Hughes said he would like to know exactly where the Council stood. He did not wish to say anything at all with reference to the propriety or otherwise of hospitals' sweepstakes, but, unless the Council made it perfectly clear that any hospitals participating in the sweepstakes would not get a penny out of the Fund, there was no use in asking clergymen to go into the pulpit and appeal for funds.

Mr. Pollock said it was not only on the minutes, but in the rules and the reports, that any hospital promoting or taking part in the formation of a sweepstake would cease to participate in the Hospital Sunday Fund. That was also set out in the leaflets issued to all the churches that were making collections on behalf of the Fund.

Canon Hughes said that there was a great deal of difference of opinion as regards the sweepstakes, and he did not intend to dogmatise on the matter. He wanted the Council to keep on telling the public that any hospitals participating in the sweepstakes would not get a penny out of the Fund.

The Rev. J. C. Breakey asked how many hospitals were now benefiting from the Hospitals' Sunday Fund.

Mr. Pollock said there were eight.

Dr. Moorhead said he would like to make his position perfectly clear. He was aware of the regulation Mr. Pollock had referred to, and knew that it could not be altered except by notice of motion. He had been opposed to the introduction of hospital sweepstakes, but had seen fit to retain his seat on the boards of three hospitals that had become participants. When the Rotunda Hospital failed, in spite of the devoted efforts of the Church of Ireland, and had to become a participant in the sweepstakes he realised, as they might realise, that the voluntary contribution system was largely dead. That being so, he did not wish to close his mind to the possibility of again admitting to membership these hospitals that were participating. He had no wish to throw the apple of discord into the working of so worthy a charity.

MISS ELEANOR HULL.

DISTINGUISHED IRISH SCHOLAR.

THE degree of Doctor of Literature, Honoris Causa, was conferred on Miss Eleanor Hull at University College, Dublin, yesterday. As Miss Hull's health has been poor for the past months, she was unable to attend the University personally, and the degree was conferred in absentia.

Dr. Hull was, with Professor Powell, the founder of the Irish Texts Society, at the beginning of this century, and she has been Joint Secretary ever since, first with Miss Bortheswick, and later with Mr. T. D. Fitzgerald. The work which she accomplished for this society was enormous, and Ireland as a whole is indebted to her for numerous historical works, books on research and valuable Irish translations. She is a member of the Council of the Folklore Society, and she published a book in 1928 called "The Folklore of the British Isles." This includes valuable data connected with the special days and festivities in Ireland. At one time she was President of the Irish Literary Society of London, and she was Secretary for some years to the Royal Asiatic Society.

Her first book, "The Cuchulain Saga in Irish Literature," appeared in 1898. At that time Miss Hull's family had moved from Dublin to London, where she had become acquainted with Dr. Standish Hayes O'Grady, who encouraged her to publish this volume, and assisted her with some translations for it. "The Cuchulain Saga" was originally published in a limited edition, and is now difficult to obtain even secondhand.

Her next two books, "Pagan Ireland" and "Early Christian Ireland," grew out of short addresses given to students of the Gaelic League classes in London.

After this publication Miss Hull became engrossed with the study of older forms of the Irish language, and that for two reasons. She was anxious to read the old manuscripts herself, and also to conquer the difficulties of grammar and idiom of Ancient Irish. She attended classes given by Dr. Bergin, Dr. Holder Pedersen and Kuno Meyer at the School of Irish Learning in Dublin, and later she listened to the addresses of Dr. Flower at University College, London. The most difficult piece of old Irish which she translated is contained in her "Poem Book of the Gael," published in 1912. It is entitled Saltair na Rann in the original.

Miss Hull's most important work is her "History of Ireland," which was completed last year. It covers ground to the close of the Tudor period.

The Hull family came from County Down originally, and were of Devonshire stock. Her father owned property near Carlingford Lough. Born in Antrim, he was the son of the Rector of Antrim. He was educated at the Clergy Sons' School at Lucan, and later at Dublin University. His work on Geological Survey took him to England, and after some years he was appointed Director of the Geological Survey of Ireland and Professor of Geology at the College of Science, Dublin. Miss Hull herself was educated, together with one of her sisters, at Alexandra College, Dublin. Her sister, Mrs. Ferguson Davie is an M.D. of London University. She carried through some remarkable medical work in Singapore, for which she was awarded the O.B.E. She is now in Natal studying the condition of the Indian settlers there.

Miss Hull's eldest brother is also a doctor. He took his degree of M.D. at Dublin University, winning two gold medals. He practises in London to-day, where the whole family settled after retirement of their father, Mr. Edward Hull, F.R.S., L.L.D. Dr. Hull lives with one of her sisters in Richmond, outside London.

Fianna Fail's Fears.

FROM OUR REPORTER.

BALBRIGGAN, Friday Night.

SPEAKING at a Fianna Fail meeting in Balbriggan to-night, Mr. Sean MacEntee, T.D., said that the Public Safety Bill, to which the Dail had given its approval, tore up the Constitution, and left the people at the mercy of the military dictatorship created by the bill. It was a safety bill in so far as it stood between the wrath of the Irish people and a Government that had proved a dismal failure in every way. It was a safety bill for the Government against the thousands of hungry men who during the winter would be walking the streets of the cities and towns. It was a danger to every citizen of the Free State, whether he was a worker or an employer, as long as the power given by the bill remained in the hands of the desperate men who had got it.

Every sensible man realised that the recent murders only gave an excuse to the Government to set up a dictatorship. If murders were committed, and if the gang system, as they said, had failed, it was because the heads of the Civic Guards were politicians, and not policemen. They did not want to find the men who had shot Curtin and Ryan.

It seemed to him that the present Government's course was run; because if there was one thing history taught, that was that dictatorships did not last for ever.

This bill was not aimed at Saor Eire or Cumann na mBan, or any organisation except Fianna Fail, because that was the only organisation in Ireland that had the opportunity and the power to turn the present Government out of office.

Mr. Sean Brady, T.D., said that the bill gave power to the Free State Army and police that was never before given to any army or police in the history of the world. He believed—and sincerely hoped that he was wrong—that the bill was designed to bring about the execution of a few men already in custody. He believed that by the act of the Government to-day the blood of some Irishman would be shed. Nobody in Ireland wanted to go back to the horrors of the civil war, and God forbid that an Irishman should execute an Irishman again.

Mr. Eamonn Donnelly, organiser, said that the Cumann na nGaedheal Party had no programme for the general election. They were beaten in the country, and they knew it, and this was responsible for the scare. The Public Safety Act had a better chance of lasting than the Government had. He hoped that the prayer and the warning of Cardinal MacRory might be heard

Mr. John Reynolds, Balbriggan, presided.

LUCAN HOUSE AND DEMESNE.

In connection with the recent sale of the Lucan House and demesne, Messrs. Jackson Stops and Joyce, of 33 Kildare street, Dublin, the auctioneers who negotiated the sale, state that the demesne will be open to the public until Sunday, the 25th October, inclusive. Lucan House, however, will be closed after to-morrow.

HOSPITAL SUNDAY FUND.

CORTOBER HOUSE,
COOTEHILL, CO. CAVAN.
THAT VALUABLE FARM AND RESIDENCE FOR SALE.

Containing 118 acres 3 roods and 10 perches, Statute Measure, held under the Irish Land Commission at the yearly interest of £48 16s. 2d. It is all thoroughly drained, properly fencied, well supplied with water, and heavily manured for the last 80 years, with a good rich soil. It is fit to fatten stock, or any field on it will realise a heavy crop of hay. The land is level and easy of access, bounded on each side by the county road. There is a nice residence, which contains 12 apartments and approached by a short avenue and surrounded by a small wood. The out-offices are extensive; there is a range of 103 feet by 35, which contains barn, stable for 4 horses, byre for 30 head of cattle and 5 loose boxes, with loft overhead; 15 loose boxes, turnip shed, cart shed, implement shed, hay shed, boiling house, fowl houses, etc.

No. 2—Situated in the townland of Corbeagh, containing 60 acres 4 roods and 25 perches, Statute measure or thereabouts, bought out under the Irish Land Commission at the yearly interest of £23 6s. 8d.

This is a very good farm, good fattening land, and abundantly supplied with meadow, well watered and fenced; it is all in grass and meadow at present.

There is a comfortable dwellinghouse, out-offices and hay shed attached. It is convenient to the road joining No. 1, and will be Sold together or separately.

The Farms can be seen by arrangement, and proposals will be received up to 21st October, 1931, by

TALLAGHT COTTAGE REPAIR.

At Rathfarnham District Court yesterday, before District Justice Reddin, the Dublin Board of Public Health summoned Miss Mary Martin, Tallaght, for failing to comply with an order from the Board of Health to render two of her cottages at Tallaght habitable.

Miss Martin stated that she had carried out the repairs, and the work was finished ten days ago.

The Justice pointed out that the notice from the Board of Health required the work to be carried out in fourteen days. The order had not been complied with, and he made an order that the repairs be carried out and allowed 31s. costs.
